GILLIS LONG

Gillis Long Wins Seat In U.S. Congress

Harold McSween Is Defeated By Narrow Margin

His cousin, three - time governor Earl K. Long two years ago lost the post to death.

The controversial former governor had defeated McSween for the position, died a short while after, and McSween went back to Washington.

CLOSE RACE

McSween and Gillis Long Saturday night dueled neck - and neck until rural returns finally pushed Long safely ahead. McSween conceded at 11 p.m. when the vote total showed 24,553 votes for Long, 20,454 for McSween and 2,917 for W. H. Lambdin veteran Alexandria city commissioner.

Latest returns showed Long with 29,829, McSween, 23,743 and Lambdin, 3,327. Eight parishes are in the district.

In Winn Parish, Earl's home parish, his cousin Gillis downed McSween by a vote of 2,709 to 1,735.

Nearly complete but unofficial returns from Saturday's Democratic primary gave incumbent U. S. Senator Russell Long a better than two-to-one victory in the Fifth Congressional District over Phil A. St. Amant of Baton Rouge.

With 268 of a total of 274 north central Louisiana precincts reporting, Long, trying for a third successive six year seat in Washington, polled 25,729 votes to St. Amant's 10,591.

Lacking from the tallies were only two precincts in Catahoula Parish, and four in Concordia. Reporting complete were Caldwell, East Carroll, Franklin, Jackson, Lincoln, Madison, Morehouse, Ouachita, Richland, Tensas, Union and West Carroll Parishes.

Unofficial tabulations from all 51 precincts in Ouachita Parish gave Long nearly a three-to-one sweep with 10,775 votes to St. Amant's 3976. He carried every precinct.

St. Amant made his strongest showings in Ward 10, precincts one and two, where he pulled 310 and 200 ballots, respectively, to the Louisiana junior senator's 449 and 229. He attracted the greatest number of votes in the big West Monroe fairgrounds box at Ward 5, precinct 11, with 330, but lost to Long's 690.

In rolling to victory in the district, Long carried every parish, looking strongest in Catahoula Parish, winning 820 to 96, Tensas Parish, taken 229 to 82, and in Ouachita.

Parker carried both Morehouse and Ouachita parishes with substantial leads.

After the polls closed, George Fink, who was also seeking the position, issued a statement conceding.

In complete, but unofficial tabulations, Parker received 9,968 votes in Ouachita parish, to 5,632 for Fink.

Within three hours after the polls closed, Fink issued a statement congratulating the victor, and asking the people to work

HALF-MILE HIGH

Youths Spend Day Trapped On Ledge

PINE SPRINGS, Tex. (AP) — Two high school youths, trapped 24 hours on a half-mile high mountain ledge, were brought to safety Saturday night by rescuers and were reported in "good condition," the state police said.

State police said the boys were lowered from their perch by a rope basket for several hundred feet and then were carried part of the way to the ranch.

One of the 17-year-old youths, John Myers suffered a sprained ankle in their fall of some 150 feet Friday afternoon. The youth was to be flown from Carlsbad, N.M., to his hometown of Abilene, Tex., for a physical check-up.

State police said the other boy, Lowery Thomson, is "all right and in very high spirits. They added that Myers "appeared all right except for the sprained ankle."

The pair were among 39 Abilene, Tex., high school students and 3 or 4 adults who were guests of Carolyn Hunter, a high school student on whose father's ranch the mishap occurred.

The two boys struck out Friday afternoon for one of the high peaks of the 8,000-foot high range. Coming down, they chose a short cut to the ranch.

The two boys shouted for help and were heard by other members of the party nearly half a mile away.

Long, Boggs Take Leads In Elections

Other Lawmakers Hold Edges In Congress Voting

NEW ORLEANS (AP) —The Kennedy Administration scored an apparent victory in the Deep South Saturday night as Rep. Hale Boggs, House Majority whip, pulled into a commanding lead over three conservative and segregationist opponents.

With some 25 per cent of the vote counted, Boggs held a lead of better than 2-to-1 over his three rivals.

Returns from 67 of 287 precincts in Louisiana's 2nd District gave Boggs 14,559 votes to 7,067 for his rivals. Their totals were, respectively, State Rep. John G. Schwegmann Jr., 3,365, Stuart McClendon, 3,202, and Paul C. Pottharst, 500.

RUNOFFS

The Democratic nomination is tantamount to election in Louisiana. Candidates who failed to receive a majority in the primary faced a Sept. 1 runoff.

Returns from 361 of 2,106 precincts across the state gave Long 65,420 to 18,506 for St. Amant.

Rep. T. A. Thompson of Ville Platte, had a strong lead over three opponents and appeared to have at least an even chance of gaining a first primary majority.

Train's Cars Fall In River, 25 Are Dead

STEELTON, Pa. (AP) — A Pennsylvania Railroad special loaded with baseball fans jumped the track alongside the Susquehanna River Saturday night. The last three cars rolled down a 40 foot embankment into the water.

There were 25 known deaths, and another 120 injured reported by area hospitals. Many were children.

OTHER BODIES

State police said it was possible there might be other bodies in the river.

The three cars which rolled into the river were the only ones in the nine-unit train which carried passengers.

Because of the extended drought the Susquehanna, one of the East's major streams, was only about three feet deep as it ran through this hamlet about seven miles from Harrisburg.

In all five cars derailed, but two of them remained upright.

Ira Markley, 64, of Lancaster, Pa., conductor of the train, said he was in an empty car when he felt it wobble. He looked out of the window and saw the last three cars whip off the rails and tumble down the bank.

"It happened so fast there was no way to tell what possibly could have happened," Markley said. He, like the other railroad crew men, was not hurt.

A railroad spokesman said many passengers were trapped in the cars standing in the water. Divers equipped for underwater work and carrying acetylene torches worked to free them.

There was no immediate explanation for the derailment.

Smoke and fire could be seen for miles.

Helicopters from Olmsted Air Force Base, across the river from the scene, were pressed into service to ferry the injured to Harrisburg hospitals. Pleasure boats also maneuvered into position to help.

Many children were on the train, the railroad said.

Negroes' Voting Is Quiet

By JIMMY HATTEN
State EDITOR

LAKE PROVIDENCE — The federal government's showcase Civil rights voting case Saturday produced some red faces as one of East Carroll Parish's court-qualified Negro voters had to be bonded out of jail on a non-support charge to exercise his federal-judge-given right to vote.

Benjamin J. Blockwood, husband of Rosa Blockwood, was released after his wife paid $54 to get her husband released after the State Department of Welfare filed charges against him for failing to make payments to the children of his first wife.

A told of 26 Negroes had been certified by a three-judge federal court in Shreveport Tuesday as eligible to vote, but one of them could not vote in Saturday's primary since he was not a Democrat.

C. W. Baggett of ward three, precinct two, listed his party affiliation as "none."

The first of the 25 voted at 6:10 a.m. Saturday at the second precinct in Ward two, the parish courthouse.

From then until noon, they filed into the voting precincts in one's and two's. They had all voted by noon.

Blockwood was picked up Friday by a parole officer of the State Department of Welfare for being two months behind on his payments to the children of his first wife, a beauty parlor operator.

After his second wife the Negro home demonstration agent, voted Saturday, she went to the

More Showers Expected Today

The weatherman predicts widely scattered mostly afternoon and evening thundershowers today, with the added chance of rain tonight. Saturday, afternoon showers dropped .02-hundredths inch on the Twin Cities.

The mercury today is scheduled to drop two degrees from the Saturday high to 92. Temperature for tonight is forecast at 72. It was 71 Saturday.

And so far, Monroe and northeast Louisiana, the outlook is for a little rain in places, with warm days but no terrible scorchers likely, such as the 103 Saturday at resort center Las Vegas, Nev.

Whetstone, Mulhearn Two Leaders

By MARY ANNE CORBIN
World Staff Writer

W. E. (Ed) Whetstone and John E. Mulhearn led Saturday in the race for Louisiana Board of Education member from the fifth congressional district, and apparently will go into the September 1 runoff election.

Whetstone received 15,014 votes, while Mulhearn drew 8,244. Both are from Monroe.

Returns were complee from 268 of the 274 precincts in the fifth district. Votes from the other six precincts were not available.

14 PARISHES

Fourteen parishes were represented in the vote. A total of 34,925 voters turned out to ballot for the Board of Education candidates, in the precincts recorded.

O. N. (Nick) Hamilton of Oak Grove received 7,631 votes, while Bobby C. Wilson of West Monroe was bottom man on the totem pole with 4,036.

An increase of 614 votes could send Hamilton into the second primary, instead of Wilson, but there is little chance this many votes were cast in the six precincts not recorded.

Two precincts in Catahoula parish, and four in Concordia are the missing element in the election total.

Based on the 34,925 votes recorded, a candidate would have to have 17,463 votes for a majority. Whetstone came closest to this.

District manager for Southern Bell Telephone and Telegraph Co., Whetstone led in 10 of the 14 parishes. Caldwell, Concordia, Franklin, Lincoln, Madison, Morehouse, Ouachita, Richland and Union.

He drew his greatest number of votes in Ouachita, with 6749.

Hamilton led in the other four parishes. Catahoula, East Carroll,

Fournet Trailing For Judge

Returns from 248 of 411 precincts in the 3rd judicial district gave Lee a slim 357-vote lead over Fournet, a veteran of state politics back to the days when he was one of the late Huey P. Long's key aides.

Lee had 30,747 votes to 30,390 for Fournet, with Vance Thompson of Alexandria holding the balance of power with 4,500 votes.

It appeared likely that Lee and Fournet would be thrown into a

Senate Defeats Solon Talkathon Over Satellite

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate leaders won an unusual 10-hour battle Saturday night over filibustering foes of a bill to set up a privately owned communications satellite corporation.

They spent nearly the entire 10 hours and 12 minutes getting the 50 senators required to conduct Senate business, with only six minutes of talking during the unusual Saturday session.

When a bipartisan group finally was able to get a second quorum shortly after 8 p.m., Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., acting majority leader, won a quick voice vote to recess until 10 a.m. Monday.

Liberal senators, who have been using most of the tricks of delay and filibusters, had hoped to force the Senate to adjourn, instead of recessing, so they could force another fight on the motion to take up the controversial bill.

The first move to assemble the necessary 50 senators took nearly five hours. The second ran about as long.

During the long hours spent getting the quorums, few senators remained on the floor. They congregated in the rooms just off the Senate chamber, or returned to their offices to await calls by bell or telephones.

TEN ENLISTED MEN

Complainers May Get Court Martial

TAMPA, Fla. (AP)—The Army said Saturday that 10 men who went 512 miles over the hill to complain about conditions in their bivouac did wrong.

It hinted that the men — eight soldiers and two airmen — may find themselves trying to explain their action to a court-martial.

The 10 are members of the U.S. Strike Command communications support element, which has permanent headquarters at MacDill Air Force Base in Tampa. However, for several weeks now the unit has been in the field near Camden, S.C., setting up communications for a giant exercise that will involve 70,000 men. It begins Aug. 5.

On July 17, the 10 took unauthorized leave, boarded a bus and returned to MacDill where they registered several complaints with the inspector general.

Strike headquarters said, "The complaints covered a variety of matters including friction between three noncommissioned officers under whom they work, some instances of uncertainty from whom they were to receive orders, and employment on duties inconsistent with the Air Force specialty codes or Army military occupational specialties they respectively hold."

The men were sent back to Camden the next day.

In a statement Saturday from the headquarters of Gen. Paul D. Adams, commander of Strike, the Army said: "Each complaint registered has been investigated with only limited justification of some of them being sustained by the facts. No conditions were found to exist which were any more rigorous than those which good soldiers and airmen have accepted without complaint throughtout history during field training and combat.

"No satisfactory explanation for the action taken by the 10 men can be found either from them, or from other military personnel in the unit who stayed on the job, built themselves a good camp, and accomplished splendid results toward establishing essential communications for Exercise Swift Strike II."

Four Facing 2nd Primary In Ouachita

By HOWARD PAGE
World Staff Writer

Three of the four Ouachita Parish School Board races were settled in Saturday's first Democratic primary, with the only runoff scheduled in Ward Five.

M. L. Owens Jr., Roy C. Cash, A. P. Burkett and Paul L. Crowell will vie in the Sept. 1 second primary election for the two posts on the board from Ward Five.

Winning school board seats were Charles G. Drennan, Ward One; Warren E. Palmer, Ward Two; and Dr. F. H. Hammonds and Fred McVay, Ward Three.

Complete unofficial returns at the parish clerk of court office Saturday night showed a total vote of 14,751 cast in Ouachita. The parish had 26,098 registered voters for the election, and more than half of them went to the polls.

Returns will be promulgated this week by the Parish Democratic Executive Committee, headed by Bert Sperry.

Drennan, the incumbent, defeated Bruce F. Gregg in Ward One by a count of 494 to 316. Drennan presently is serving as president of the board.

Drennan carried both precincts in Ward One, winning in precinct one by a 182 to 110 margin and in precinct two by 312 to 206.

Palmer was re-elected to the board from ward two by a slum margin of 14 votes over challenger Mrs. Evelyn Marie Ramsey. With only one precinct in ward two, Palmer polled 265 votes to Mrs. Ramsey's 251 in precinct one.

Dr. Hammonds and McVay led a field of four candidates for the two posts from ward three. McVay was one of the incumbents while the other incumbent, Everett Zengler, was defeated.

Dr. Hammond, McVay and Zeagler all received a majority of the vote, and election officials

Complete Opposition Rejected

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Allen J. Ellender, D-La., Saturday rejected the idea he said has been advanced by constituents that he oppose whatever proposals and moves are made by President Kennedy.

Such a position, he said, would be "nothing more than blind opposition" and in keeping with the Republican attitude.

"It is as bad to be entirely against the President as it is to be entirely for him," Ellender said. "The people and the nation will best be served by representatives who follow neither extreme, but approach every problem with a positive attitude and an open mind."

Ellender, in a talk for broadcast in Louisiana, said he has received "quite a lot of mail" from constituents calling on him to oppose the administration.

"They apparently do not expect me to consider each of the various proposals on its individual merits and decide for myself whether that proposal would be good or bad for the country in general and Louisiana in particular," he said.

He counseled that "Mr. Kennedy is no flaming socialist trying to lead the country down a road of ruination that will end in the destruction of our free enterprise economic system.

"As a matter of fact, I can think of many instances in which the reverse is true."

HALF-MILE HIGH

Youths Spend Day Trapped On Ledge

PINE SPRINGS, Tex. (AP)—Two high school youths, trapped 24 hours on a half-mile high mountain ledge, were brought to safety Saturday night by rescuers and were reported in "good condition," the state police said.

State police said the boys were lowered from their perch by a rope basket for several hundred feet and then were carried part of the way to the ranch.

One of the 17-year-old youths, John Myers suffered a sprained ankle in their fall of some 150 feet Friday afternoon. The youth was to be flown from Carlsbad, N.M., to his hometown of Abilene, Tex., for a physical check-up.

State police said the other boy, Lowery Thomson, is "all right and in very high spirits. They added that Myers "appeared all right except for the sprained ankle."

The pair were among 39 Abilene, Tex., high school students and 3 or 4 adults who were guests of Carolyn Hunter, a high school student on whose father's ranch the mishap occurred.

The two boys struck out Friday afternoon for one of the high peaks of the 8,000-foot high range. Coming down, they chose a short cut to the ranch.

The two boys shouted for help and were heard by other members of the party nearly half a mile away.

Long, Boggs Take Leads In Elections

Other Lawmakers Hold Edges In Congress Voting

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—The Kennedy Administration scored an apparent victory in the Deep South Saturday night as Rep. Hale Boggs, House Majority whip, pulled into a commanding lead over three conservative and segregationist opponents.

With some 25 per cent of the vote counted, Boggs held a lead of better than 2-to-1 over his three rivals.

Returns from 67 of 287 precincts in Louisiana's 2nd District gave Boggs 14,559 votes to 7,067 for his rivals. Their totals were, respectively, State Rep. John G. Schwegmann Jr., 3,365; Stuart McClendon, 3,202; and Paul C. Pottharst, 500.

RUNOFFS

The Democratic nomination is tantamount to election in Louisiana. Candidates who failed to receive a majority in the primary faced a Sept. 1 runoff.

Returns from 361 of 2,196 precincts across the state gave Long 65,420 to 18,506 for St. Amant.

Rep. T. A. Thompson of Ville Platte, had a strong lead over three opponents and appeared to have at least an even chance of gaining a first primary majority.

Negroes' Voting Is Quiet

By JIMMY HATTEN
State EDITOR

LAKE PROVIDENCE — The federal government's showcase Civil rights voting case Saturday produced some red faces as one of East Carroll Parish's court-qualified Negro voters had to be bonded out of jail on a non-support charge to exercise his federal-judge-given right to vote.

Benjamin J. Blockwood, husband of Rosa Blockwood, was released after his wife paid $54 to get her husband released after the State Department of Welfare filed charges against him for failing to make payments to the children of his first wife.

A told of 26 Negroes had been certified by a three-judge federal court in Shreveport Tuesday as eligible to vote, but one of them could not vote in Saturday's primary since he was not a Democrat.

C. W. Baggett, of ward three, precinct two, listed his party affiliation as "none."

From then until noon, they filed into the voting precincts in one's and two's. They had all voted by noon.

Blockwood was picked up Friday by a parole officer of the State Department of Welfare for being two months behind on his payments to the children of his first wife, a beauty parlor operator.

The weatherman predicts widely scattered mostly afternoon and evening thundershowers today, with the added chance of rain tonight. Saturday, afternoon showers dropped .02-hundredths inch on the Twin Cities.

The mercury today is scheduled to drop two degrees from the Saturday high to 92. Temperature for tonight is forecast at 72. It was 71 Saturday.

And so far, Monroe and northeast Louisiana, the outlook is for a little rain in places, with warm days but no terrible scorchers likely, such as the 103 Saturday at resort center Las Vegas, Nev.

STEELTON, Pa. (AP) — A Pennsylvania Railroad special loaded with baseball fans jumped the track alongside the Susquehanna River Saturday night. The last three cars rolled down a 40-foot embankment into the water.

There were 25 known deaths, and another 120 injured reported by area hospitals. Many were children.

OTHER BODIES

State police said it was possible there might be other bodies in the river.

The three cars which rolled into the river were the only ones in the nine-unit train which carried passengers.

Because of the extended drought the Susquehanna, one of the East's major streams, was only about three feet deep as it ran through this hamlet about seven miles from Harrisburg.

In all five cars derailed, but two of them remained upright.

Ira Markley, 64, of Lancaster, Pa., conductor of the train, said he was in an empty car when he felt it wobble. He looked out of the window and saw the last three cars whip off the rails and tumble down the bank.

"It happened so fast there was no way to tell what possibly could have happened," Markley said. He, like the other railroad crewmen, was not hurt.

A railroad spokesman said many passengers were trapped in the cars standing in the water. Divers equipped for underwater work and carrying acetylene torches worked to free them.

There was no immediate explanation for the derailment.

Smoke and fire could be seen for miles.

Helicopters from Olmsted Air Force Base, across the river from the scene, were pressed into service to ferry the injured to Harrisburg hospitals. Pleasure boats also maneuvered into position to help.

Many children were on the train, the railroad said.

Whetstone, Mulhearn Two Leaders

By MARY ANNE CORBIN
World Staff Writer

W. E. (Ed) Whetstone and John E. Mulhearn led Saturday in the race for Louisiana Board of Education member from the fifth congressional district, and apparently will go into the September 1 runoff election.

Whetstone received 15,014 votes, while Mulhearn drew 8,244. Both are from Monroe.

Returns were complee from 268 of the 274 precincts in the fifth district. Votes from the other six precincts were not available.

14 PARISHES

Fourteen parishes were represented in the vote. A total of 34,925 voters turned out to ballot for the Board of Education candidates, in the precincts recorded.

O. N. (Nick) Hamilton of Oak Grove received 7,631 votes, while Bobby C. Wilson of West Monroe was bottom man on the totem pole with 4,036.

An increase of 614 votes could send Hamilton into the second primary, instead of Wilson, but there is little chance this many votes were cast in the six precincts not recorded.

Two precincts in Catahoula parish and four in Concordia are the missing element in the election total.

Based on the 34,925 votes recorded, a candidate would have to have 17,463 votes for a majority. Whetstone came closest to this.

District manager for Southern Bell Telephone and Telegraph Co., Whetstone led in 10 of the 14 parishes: Caldwell, Concordia, Franklin, Lincoln, Madison, Morehouse, Ouachita, Richland and Union.

He drew his greatest number of votes in Ouachita, with 6749.

Hamilton led in the other four parishes: Catahoula, East Carroll,

Fournet Trailing For Judge

Returns from 248 of 411 precincts in the 3rd judicial district gave Lee a slim 357-vote lead over Fournet, a veteran of state politics back to the days when he was one of the late Huey P. Long's key aides.

Lee had 30,747 votes to 30,390 for Fournet, with Vance Thompson of Alexandria holding the balance of power with 4,500 votes.

It appeared likely that Lee and Fournet would be thrown into a

TEN ENLISTED MEN

Complainers May Get Court Martial

TAMPA, Fla. (AP)—The Army said Saturday that 10 men who went 512 miles over the hill to complain about conditions in their bivouac did wrong.

It hinted that the men — eight soldiers and two airmen — may find themselves trying to explain their action to a court-martial.

The 10 are members of the U.S. Strike Command communications support element, which has permanent headquarters at MacDill Air Force Base in Tampa. However, for several weeks now the unit has been in the field near Camden, S.C., setting up communications for a giant exercise that will involve 70,000 men. It begins Aug. 5.

On July 17, the 10 took unauthorized leave, boarded a bus and returned to MacDill where they registered several complaints with the inspector general.

Strike headquarters said, "The complaints covered a variety of matters including friction between three noncommissioned officers under whom they work, some instances of uncertainty from whom they were to receive orders, and employment on duties inconsistent with the Air Force specialty codes or Army military occupational specialties they respectively hold."

The men were sent back to Camden the next day.

In a statement Saturday from the headquarters of Gen. Paul D. Adams, commander of Strike, the Army said: "Each complaint registered has been investigated with only limited justification of some of them being sustained by the facts. No conditions were found to exist which were any more rigorous than those which good soldiers and airmen have accepted without complaint throughtout history during field training and combat.

"No satisfactory explanation for the action taken by the 10 men can be found either from them, or from other military personnel in the unit who stayed on the job, built themselves a good camp, and accomplished splendid results toward establishing essential communications for Exercise Swift Strike II."

Senate Defeats Solon Talkathon Over Satellite

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate leaders won an unusual 10-hour battle Saturday night over filibustering foes of a bill to set up a privately owned communications satellite corporation.

They spent nearly the entire 10 hours and 12 minutes getting the 50 senators required to conduct Senate business, with only six minutes of talking during the unusual Saturday session.

When a bipartisan group finally was able to get a second quorum shortly after 8 p.m., Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., acting majority leader, won a quick voice vote to recess until 10 a.m. Monday.

Liberal senators, who have been using most of the tricks of delay and filibusters, had hoped to force the Senate to adjourn, instead of recessing, so they could force another fight on the motion to take up the controversial bill.

The first move to assemble the necessary 50 senators took nearly five hours. The second ran about as long.

During the long hours spent getting the quorums, few senators remained on the floor. They congregated in the rooms just off the Senate chamber, or returned to their offices to await calls by bell or telephones.

Four Facing 2nd Primary In Ouachita

By HOWARD PAGE
World Staff Writer

Three of the four Oauchita Parish School Board races were settled in Saturday's first Democratic primary, with the only runoff scheduled in Ward Five.

M. L. Owens Jr., Roy C. Cash, A. P. Burkett and Paul L. Crowell will vie in the Sept. 1 second primary election for the two posts on the board from Ward Five.

Winning school board seats were Charles G. Drennan, Ward One; Warren E. Palmer, Ward Two; and Dr. F. H. Hammonds and Fred McVay, Ward Three.

Complete unofficial returns at the parish clerk of court office Saturday night showed a total vote of 14,751 cast in Ouachita. The parish had 26,098 registered voters for the election, and more than half of them went to the polls.

Returns will be promulgated this week by the Parish Democratic Executive Committee, headed by Bert Sperry.

Drennan, the incumbent, defeated Bruce F. Gregg in Ward One by a count of 494 to 316. Drennan presently is serving as president of the board.

Drennan carried both precincts in Ward One, winning in precinct one by a 182 to 110 margin and in precinct two by 312 to 206.

Palmer was re-elected to the board from ward two by a slum margin of 14 votes over challenger Mrs. Evelyn Marie Ramsey. With only one precinct in ward two, Palmer polled 265 votes to Mrs. Ramsey's 251 in precinct one.

Dr. Hammonds and McVay led a field of four candidates for the two posts from ward three. McVay was one of the incumbents while the other incumbent, Everett Zeagler, was defeated.

Dr. Hammond, McVay and Zeagler all received a majority of the vote, and election officials

Complete Opposition Rejected

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Allen J. Ellender, D-La., Saturday rejected the idea he said has been advanced by constituents that he oppose whatever proposals and moves are made by President Kennedy.

Such a position, he said, would be "nothing more than blind opposition" and in keeping with the Republican attitude.

"It is as bad to be entirely against the President as it is to be entirely for him," Ellender said. "The people and the nation will best be served by representatives who follow neither extreme, but approach every problem with a positive attitude and an open mind."

Ellender, in a talk for broadcast in Louisiana, said he has received "quite a lot of mail" from constituents calling on him to oppose the administration.

"They apparently do not expect me to consider each of the various proposals on its individual merits and decide for myself whether that proposal would be good or bad for the country in general and Louisiana in particular," he said.

He counseled that "Mr. Kennedy is no flaming socialist trying to lead the country down a road of ruination that will end in the destruction of our free enterprise economic system.

"As a matter of fact, I can think of many instances in which the reverse is true."

New Algerian Threat Seen

ALGIERS (UPI) — Provisional Premier Ben Youssef Ben Khedda bowed Saturday before the growing military might of dissident Vice Premier Ahmed Ben Bella and said he would accept the idea of a political bureau to run Algeria if the revolutionary parliament agreed.

Ben Khedda called for an urgent meeting of the National Council of the Revolution (parliament) to avert civil war as Ben Bella's troops invaded the port city of Philippeville and moved to within 60 miles of a mountain stronghold of Ben Khedda's supporters.

Peace talks were underway in Algiers among the three rival political factions now struggling for power, but a new threat of blood shed was seen in ominous statements Saturday from former Minister Mohammed Boudiaf who threatened to fight to keep Ben Bella from power.

There were these three political factions in the tangled mess of Algerian politics which has threatened to repeat the chaotic conditions of the Congo since Algeria gained its independence early this month:

Most powerful is the faction led by Ben Bella who contends that the provisional government is illegal. Ben Bella commands the loyalty of most of the liberation army and now holds more than three-fourths of the country.

Ben Khedda, though deserted by many of his ministers, remains provisional premier. He holds the loyalty of troops of the third military district (Willaya) threatened by Saturday's troop movements and about half the troops in the Algiers military district.

A new "third force" has developed in the past few days led by Belkacem Krim, a former tough guerrilla leader who has sworn to keep Algeria out of Ben Bella's hands, and Mohammed Boudiaf, another unrelenting enemy of Ben Bella's. They more or less support Ben Khedda.

The peace negotiations in Algiers Saturday were held between Mohammed Khider, an emissary of Ben Bella, and the fiery Krim. They met for 3½ hours and appeared optimistic afterwards that some solution short of war would be found.

Khider met Friday with one of Ben Khedda's representatives who also expressed optimism that a compromise solution would be found. As a result of these conferences it appeared the provisional premier was emerging as a mediator between the Ben Bella-Krim factions.

A spokesman for Krim and Khider said Saturday's peace talks were held in "fraternal atmosphere."

FOGGIA, Italy (AP) — Death rode the Italian railroads again Saturday, pushing to 153 the toll in seven months of persistent train accidents.

A switching locomotive and a two-car diesel passenger train collided just outside this south-central Italian city in the predawn hours Saturday morning. The locomotive's two engineers died. The diesel's motorman and 16 passengers were injured.

It was the sixth fatal accident on Italian railroads in little more than seven months. During that time there have been more than a dozen lesser mishaps. Hundreds have been injured.

Italians recalled the old boasts of Benito Mussolini that he had made Italy's trains run on time, and asked what had gone wrong with Italian railroads now.

Officials investigating the train wrecks generally have blamed human lapses. But government critics, especially the Communists, say the workers are being made scapegoats and that faulty equipment is to blame.

The accidents have occurred on major state-run railways and on smaller privately operated lines.

In Saturday's accident, officials said the locomotive had been erroneously switched to the wrong track. Two employes in the Foggia central switching tower were taken into police custody.

ROADBLOCK FOR BRITAIN

Sweden, Austria Request Place In Common Market

By NEL SLIS

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP) — Britain's bid to join the prosperous European Common Market ran into a roadblock Saturday. Neutrals Austria and Sweden asked for associate membership but a decision was postponed until fall.

Yet a fourth nation, Denmark, applied for semimembership pending full membership, but the Common Market's ministerial council deferred action until after the British negotiations are settled.

Britain, Austria, Sweden and Denmark are members of the rival European Free Trade Association, also known as the Outer Seven. Foreign Minister Bruno Kresky of Austria said members are morally bound to find a solution that will admit all to the six nation Common Market. Other Outer Seven members are Switzerland, Portugal and Norway.

The British talks bogged down on Britain's insistence that commonwealth agricultural products be given "reasonable access" to the Common Market nations of Belgium, France, Germany, Italy, Luxembourg and the Netherlands.

Britain also asked that the Common Market nations keep prices on farm commodities low so it can continue to import food and fibers from such commonwealth nations as Canada, Australia and New Zealand.

Due to pressure from their own farmers, the Common Market wants to kept prices high for agricultural products. Farmers in France, for example, have staged riotous demonstrations demanding higher prices.

Informants said France led the opposition to concessions to Britain, and one delegate said "There is no doubt about it that the French are negotiating as if the British are standing with their back against the wall." France is cool toward Britain's entry.

Chairman Eugene Schaus of Luxembourg said the talks with Britain will resume Wednesday and expressed hope of a solution. Deputy Foreign Minister Edward Heath of Britain said on his return to London the issue is whether there is going to be room for imports of food from the commonwealth, the United States and the Argentine."

Stressing their neutral status, Austria and Sweden urged they be permitted to trade with the Common Market which is reducing tariff barriers among members while raising a common tariff wall against outsiders. The neutrals would avoid involvement in any moves toward political integration in the Common Market.

Austria's Kreisky said about half his country's exports went to the Common market nations while about 60 per cent of its imports came from there. He said Austria already is feeling the pinch of the accelerated reduction in trade barriers inside the market.

Using much the same argument, Trade Minister Gunnar Lange of Sweden said "I earnestly believe that it would be wrong, both economically and politically, to discriminate against Austria, Switzerland and Sweden."

Carlo Russo of Italy said that since the applications of the neutrals were interdependent, the council will wait to get an over-all picture of the problems after Switzerland submits its application for membership late in September.

Meredith Plans For Ole Miss Enrolling Move

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — James Meredith made plans Saturday to enroll as the first Negro at the University of Mississippi under an order of the U.S. Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals.

The three-judge appeals court handed down a sharply worded decree Friday night which directed Dist. Judge Sidney Mize of Mississippi to enjoin state officials from blocking enrollment of the 29-year-old Negro.

Meredith hailed the decision and said he plans to enroll at Mississippi in the fall term that starts Sept. 21.

"I'm not getting any younger," Meredith said. "There's been so many decision. I hope this is the last."

Meredith applied for admission to Ole Miss in January, 1961. He had been attending Jackson State College (for Negroes) at Jackson.

Mississippi refused to admit him and Meredith appealed to Judge Mize. But Mize ruled that Meredith was not barred from the school because of race.

The same three-judge panel that issued its ruling Friday night overthrew the district court's ruling June 25 and ordered Meredith's entry into Mississippi.

On July 18, U.S. Dist. Judge Ben F. Cameron granted Mississippi a stay of the appeals court's order. The appeals court Saturday overthrew Cameron's stay.

Mississippi Atty. Gen. Joe Patterson indicated he will file an appeal with the U.S. Supreme Court.

Sea Rocketry Is Predicted

PARIS (UPI) — Western diplomatic sources said Friday that the United States and its NATO allies are likely to switch gradually from land-based rockets to a sea-borne nuclear deterrent strategy after Gen. Lauris Norstad's retirement as supreme commander in Europe.

The possibility of such a major U.S. strategy switch has been under discussion for some time by NATO officials, the sources said.

ROADBLOCK FOR BRITAIN

Sweden, Austria Request Place In Common Market

By NEL SLIS

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP)—Britain's bid to join the prosperous European Common Market ran into a roadblock Saturday. Neutrals Austria and Sweden asked for associate membership but a decision was postponed until fall.

Yet a fourth nation, Denmark, applied for semimembership pending full membership, but the Common Market's ministerial council deferred action until after the British negotiations are settled.

Britain, Austria, Sweden and Denmark are members of the rival European Free Trade Association, also known as the Outer Seven. Foreign Minister Bruno Kresky of Austria said members are morally bound to find a solution that will admit all to the six-nation Common Market. Other Outer Seven members are Switzerland, Portugal and Norway.

The British talks bogged down on Britain's insistence that commonwealth agricultural products be given "reasonable access" to the Common Market nations of Belgium, France, Germany, Italy, Luxembourg and the Netherlands.

Britain also asked that the Common Market nations keep prices on farm commodities low so it can continue to import food and fibers from such commonwealth nations as Canada, Australia and New Zealand.

Due to pressure from their own farmers, the Common Market wants to kept prices high for agricultural products. Farmers in France, for example, have staged riotous demonstrations demanding higher prices.

Informants said France led the opposition to concessions to Britain, and one delegate said: "There is no doubt about it that the French are negotiating as if the British are standing with their back against the wall." France is cool toward Britain's entry.

Chairman Eugene Schaus of Luxembourg said the talks with Britain will resume Wednesday and expressed hope of a solution. Deputy Foreign Minister Edward Heath of Britain said on his return to London the issue is "whether there is going to be room for imports of food from the commonwealth, the United States and the Argentine."

Stressing their neutral status, Austria and Sweden urged they be permitted to trade with the Common Market, which is reducing tariff barriers among members while raising a common tariff wall against outsiders. The neutrals would avoid involvement in any moves toward political integration in the Common Market.

Austria's Kreisky said about half his country's exports went to the Common market nations while about 60 per cent of its imports came from there. He said Austria already is feeling the pinch of the accelerated reduction in trade barriers inside the market.

Using much the same argument, Trade Minister Gunnar Lange of Sweden said: "I earnestly believe that it would be wrong, both economically and politically, to discriminate against Austria, Switzerland and Sweden."

Carlo Russo of Italy said that since the applications of the neutrals were interdependent, the council will wait to get an over-all picture of the problems after Switzerland submits its application for membership late in September.

Meredith Plans For Ole Miss Enrolling Move

NEW ORLEANS (UPI)—James Meredith made plans Saturday to enroll as the first Negro at the University of Mississippi under an order of the U.S. Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals.

The three-judge appeals court handed down a sharply-worded decree Friday night which directed Dist. Judge Sidney Mize of Mississippi to enjoin state officials from blocking enrollment of the 29-year-old Negro.

Meredith hailed the decision and said he plans to enroll at Mississippi in the fall term that starts Sept. 21.

"I'm not getting any younger," Meredith said. "There's been so many decision. I hope this is the last."

Meredith applied for admission to Ole Miss in January, 1961. He had been attending Jackson State College (for Negroes) at Jackson.

Mississippi refused to admit him and Meredith appealed to Judge Mize. But Mize ruled that Meredith was not barred from the school because of race.

The same three-judge panel that issued its ruling Friday night overthrew the district court's ruling June 25 and ordered Meredith's entry into Mississippi.

On July 18, U.S. Dist. Judge Ben F. Cameron granted Mississippi a stay of the appeals court's order. The appeals court Saturday overthrew Cameron's stay.

Mississippi Atty. Gen Joe Patterson indicated he will file an appeal with the U.S. Supreme Court.

Sea Rocketry Is Predicted

PARIS (UPI) — Western diplomatic sources said Friday that the United States and its NATO allies are likely to switch gradually from land-based rockets to a sea-borne nuclear deterrent strategy after Gen. Lauris Norstad's retirement as supreme commander in Europe.

The possibility of such a major U.S. strategy switch has been under discussion for some time by NATO officials, the sources said.

FOGGIA, Italy (AP) — Death rode the Italian railroads again Saturday, pushing to 153 the toll in seven months of persistent train accidents.

A switching locomotive and a two-car diesel passenger train collided just outside this south-central Italian city in the predawn hours Saturday morning. The locomotive's two engineers died. The diesel's motorman and 16 passengers were injured.

It was the sixth fatal accident on Italian railroads in little more than seven months. During that time there have been more than a dozen lesser mishaps. Hundreds have been injured.

Italians recalled the old boasts of Benito Mussolini that he had made Italy's trains run on time, and asked what had gone wrong with Italian railroads now.

Officials investigating the train wrecks generally have blamed human lapses. But government critics, especially the Communists, say the workers are being made scapegoats and that faulty equipment is to blame.

The accidents have occurred on major state-run railways and on smaller privately operated lines.

In Saturday's accident, officials said the locomotive had been erroneously switched to the wrong track. Two employes in the Foggia central switching tower were taken into police custody.

U.S. Officials Recognize Compromise With Peru's Military Junta Necessary

WASHINGTON (AP) —The nited States intends to maintain onomic pressures against the ilitary junta ruling Peru until receives assurances of a reanably early return to civilian d constitutional government, .S. officials said Saturday.

But these authorities now recgnize that in the end a comproise solution may be necessary. first step in this direction, deending on consultations with othr Western Hemisphere countries, ould be formal diplomatic recogition of the Lima regime.

This would not necessarily lead o simultaneous resumption of .S. economic aid.

The military group seized powr 10 days ago because it disaproved of the result of the national election in Peru June 10. The United States reacted by cutting off diplomatic relations with Lima and then by halting $81-million worth of U.S. aid—a form of economic pressure.

These measures were described by officials here Saturday as constituting the development of an activist policy by the United States toward Latin American countries. The aim of the policy, officials said is to promote the security of orderly civilian government in Central and South America where periodic military seizures of power are traditional.

The policy is closely associated with the Kennedy administration's Alliance for Progress Program, which aims at broad-scale economic, political and social reforms throughout Latin America as well as the development of the economies of cooperating countries with U.S. financial assistance.

Informants reported that so far there have been no behind-the-scenes discussions between U.S. representatives and representatives of the military junta. There have been some informal contacts initiated in Lima by persons claiming to speak for the junta and indicating that Peru's military rulers would like to straighten out their relations with the United States and other countries. To date, informants said, the United States has not responded to these overtures.

Specifically, in the case of Peru, officials said that the United States wants to see a quick return to civilian rule and wants a reasonably early date set for holding national elections. The junta has said elections will be held next June, but American officials believe they could be moved up substantially. Meanwhile, they would like to see the power of the country transferred to civilian hands.

Officials said the strong actions taken so far by Washington, including the statement by President Kennedy several days ago denouncing the military seizure of power, have already produced some results pleasing to Washington. They cited reports that the junta would release deposed President Manuel Prado, the absence of a purge of former government officials and political leaders, and promises of national elections next summer.

So far, according to the State Department's information, only two countries have established relations with the Peruvian ruling group—Haiti and Portugal. The State Department considers this to be an encouraging sign of disapproval of a military seizure of power. Even countries—such as Mexico and Brazil — which are traditionally opposed to any action which could be construed as intervention in the internal affairs by another nation have refrained from rushing into full diplomatic acceptance of the Peruvian regime.

Nevertheless, it appears that official hopes here for evidence of strong disapproval of the regime in Peru itself have been disappointed. Signs of widespread dissatisfaction failed to develop in the days immediately following the military takeover, and a general strike which was expected to demonstrate the power of the American popular revolutionary alliance failed to materialize.

The main pressures on the regime therefore, are those generated outside the country and this appears likely to continue to be true in the predictable future. Some additional external pressure may be generated through actions of the Organization of American States.

Venezuela, with support of several other OAS members, entered a formal call Friday for an inter-American foreign ministers meeting to consider the problem of seizure of power in Latin America.

The United States is now considering what position it will take on Venezuela's proposal. Its decision undoubtedly will be influenced by what a majority of the Latin American governments want to do. Whether to call a meeting is expected to be discussed and probably decided at a session of the OAS council early next week.

Informants said one of the dangerous aspects of the Peruvian situation is the possibility it opens up for Communist agitation to undermine the power of moderate political forces.

At the moment U.S. policymakers are worried about the possibility that Peru's right-wing military administration and Communist elements in that country will develop a common interest in trying to destroy the political power of middle-of-the-road parties and that the Reds will seek to work themselves into positions from which they can eventually seize control.

WASHINGTON (AP) —The United States intends to maintain economic pressures against the military junta ruling Peru until it receives assurances of a reasonably early return to civilian and constitutional government, U.S. officials said Saturday.

But these authorities now recognize that in the end a compromise solution may be necessary. A first step in this direction, depending on consultations with other Western Hemisphere countries, could be formal diplomatic recognition of the Lima regime.

PRESIDENT ASSERTS

Adventists' Church Believes In Mixing

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The Seventh-day Adventist church "believes in the integration of all peoples regardless of race," its world president declared Saturday in answer to a charge that an Adventist academy had rejected a Negro girl.

Donald W. Hunter, chairman of the board of trustees of Mount Vernon Academy, and J. R. Shull, principal, said Saturday the school has no policy against Negroes. They said it has admitted a Negro boy, Theodore Slaughter, 15, of Rome, Ohio, who is a member of a white church in the conference which supports the school.

World President Reuben R. Figuhr of Washington, D.C., newly re-elected to a third four-year term, told 17,000 Adventists gathered for worship in the Cow Palace: "Sometimes a small group creates a situation that is not at all representative of an organization's point of view. This Church believes in the integration of all peoples regardless of race and this has been its stand through all the years. In the world leadership of the denomination, there is thorough integration in the world officers group with no regard to race."

He made reference to a charge that the Church through its Negro conferences and Negro schools fosters segregation. The charge was made by Mr. and Mrs. Burrell Scott of Oberlin, Ohio, at a news conference Friday night.

Frank W. Hale of Wilberforce, Ohio, Enlish department chairman at Central State College, said the laymen's leadership group of Adventists plans a mass meeting at 3 p.m. Sunday to make an appeal to church officers to end discrimination.

Civitan Dance Will Benefit MAVTEC

The Monroe Civitan Club will sponsor a dance August 3, proceeds to be used to purchase equipment for the Monroe Area Vocational Training and Evaluation Center at Selman Field. The dance will be held at the Paragon club from 8 to 12 p.m. Friday.

A group from the Northeast Louisiana State College Jazz Ensemble, the Constellations, will provide the music, under direction of Phares Corder.

Part of the equipment to be provided will be a simulated service station, to be built at the evaluation center. The equipment will be used to train abndicated students in an occupation that is within their capabilities and in which there is considerable demand for personnel.

The MAVTEC program includes an evaluation on the general profile of each student, including I. Q. test, potentiality, personality, and individual preference. The program includes evaluation and training.

Physical and mental capabilities determine the course of study to which each student is assigned. After evaluation, a period of training is begun.

Boys and young men learn service station, grocery store, and general wood work. Girls take a general home economics course which helps prepare them for various jobs.

Personal and social adjustment is constantly emphasized.

Bastrop Native To Teach At Baptist School

PINEVILLE (Special) — Jerry W. Brown, Louisiana College's top honor graduate of recent years, will return to his Alma Mater this fall, after a one-year absence, as a member of the school's mathematics department faculty.

The 23-year-old Bastrop native received his B. A. degree summa cum laude in May, 1961, after compiling a perfect straight "A" (3.00) quality-point average during his four-year (1957-61) student tenure.

He was reputedly the only male graduate ever to record a perfect average since the present grading system was installed nearly two decades ago at Louisiana College.

Brown, a mathematics major, will serve as an assistant professor during the ensuing 1962-63 scholastic year, according to a report this week from Dr. Edward L. McMillan, dean. He will teach classes in both mathematics and physical science.

Brown is currently completing his master's degree at Oklahoma State University, Stillwater, on a Woodrow Wilson Fellowship that he won during his senior year at Louisiana College.

He served as president of the Student Congress during 1959-60 and as president of his freshman class during 1957-58.

SPECIAL AIDS NOT SO LIKELY

Senators Likely To Okay JFK Tariff Cut Measure

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy appears likely to win from the Senate Finance Committee the sweeping new tariff-cutting powers he seeks in the trade expansion bill.

But the provision for special aids to workers and companies hard - hit by import competition faces a tough fight and may be watered down.

This estimate of the bill's prospects emerged from a check of the committee's 17 members Saturday. The group has just completed the first of four scheduled weeks of public hearings on the measure.

One factor making for uncertainty over the proposal is the lukewarm attitude toward it on the part of Chairman Harry F. Byrd, D—Va.

Byrd has fought for such legislation in the past and is fond of saying his maiden Senate speech 28 years ago was in support of Cordell Hull's reciprocal trade proposal.

But as of now he probably will vote to strike out or sharply cut down the trade - adjustment provision containing grants and loans for those who can show they have lost jobs or business because of imports.

The Virginian said he is concerned about this provision because he thinks:

1. It would set up a double standard of unemployment compensation payments, with workers affected by imports getting larger checks for a longer period than those who lose jobs because of domestic factors.

2. It could bring renewed pressure to federalize the unemployment compensation system - set federal standards for size and duration of payments which all states would have to meet.

Byrd said also that many large textile manufacturers who originally favored the bill have now switched, adding that they advised him they believe the White House had not carried out a commitment made to them.

The senator said the industry under stood the commitment to be that the United States would quit selling raw cotton to Japanese companies at 8 cents a pound under the price which American firms must pay. This differential is a subsidy paid to U.S. growers to help get rid of surplus cotton production

Sen. Frank Carlson, R—Kan., second Republican in seniority on the committee, siad in a separate interview he would vote to knock out the trade - adjustment aid.

But, aside from this special relief provision, most senators on the committee said they expect the final version to contain a broad new authority Kennedy seeks on tariffs.

The bill would give him power to reduce all present duties up to 50 per cent. An unprecedented provision in the bill would allow the chief executive to wipe out entirely tariffs on items on which this country and Western Europe dominate world markets.

Kennedy says he needs this power to negotiate on even terms with the European Common Market, generally appear to agree with him.

Aside from the trade-adjustment provision, most concern in the committee has centered on the problem of trying to assure that U. S. farm products are not excluded from the Common Market.

Carlson said he and other committee members are seeking to find language to give the President authority to deal with this matter, but so far have not determined what can be done.

The Kansan said he fears that, if Great Britain is admitted to the Common Market, it will be able to obtain special provisions for its commonwealth partners under which they will displace American farm product sales in Western Europe.

Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy, D—Minn., another member of the committee, said he considers the trade - adjustment section essential to the bill.

"We would not need this if we had been able to get an employment program with national standards," said the Minnesotan "But, failing that, I think it must be retained."

CITY FORK LIFT truck operator Walter Kiley prods Annie the wandering honey bear down from tree this morning, some 44 hours after she fled her Ross Park Zoo cage for the freedom of the treetops. This is Annie's last trip down—she was captured by rolling her into a sheet of canvas by three other city park employes. (AP Wirephoto)

Annie Bear Is Captured By Machine

BINGHAMTON, N.Y. (AP) — Annie, the baby bear on the loose, was captured Saturday but it took a couple of tries and a lot of pole-jabbing.

Modern machinery — not raw meat, sugar, bread or honey — was employed to bring down the 10-month-old cub from the tree where she had slept the last two nights. Annie had snubbed food and coaxing.

Annie escaped Thursday from her cage in the city's Ross Park Zoo while a wire mesh that surrounds the bars was being repaired.

Park Commissioner Michael Bednar and zoo attendants manned a bucket-equipped fork lift to reach Annie, perched on a tree limb 40 feet above the ground.

An attendant poked the 65-pound North American honeybear with a pole and she scurried down the tree into a snow-fence enclosure. Annie wasn't to be penned in, however. She broke through the fence and climbed another tree.

The bucket-lift and pole operation was repeated. This time Annie didn't have a chance. Attendants spread a large piece of canvas on the ground beneath the tree and within the fence. When Annie's feet hit the canvas, attendants quickly rolled it up with Annie inside.

The 4-foot-5 black cub was returned to her cage. Her eyebrows were painted red so visitors could single her out from the other bears.

Peru Junta Seeks Recognition Anew

LIMA, Peru (AP) — Declaring itself "a democratic government," Peru's military junta redoubled its efforts Saturday to win diplomatic recognition from doubting American neighbors

President Manuel Prado, imprisoned by the military in a bloodless coup July 18, was expected to be released at any time as one gesture His six year term as president ended at midnight

As 12 million Peruvians began a three - day celebration of the 141st anniversary of independence from Spain, the junta restored all civil rights suspended at the time of the uprising

Junta members expressed confidence that Washington and other Latin American capitals that followed the U S lead in suspending diplomatic relations soon would recognize it

Gen Ricardo Perez Godoy, junta president, set the tone of his regime in the first of what he said would be many meetings with the common people Friday night

About 150 men, women and children marched into the presidential palace's beautiful gold salon carrying the Peruvian flag and banners saying "Viva Junta!" Some were laborers Some claimed to represent the slum dwellers

The laborers boasted they had refused to join this week's general strike against the junta. The slum dwellers called for government housing projects Then Perez Godoy spoke

"This is a democratic nation," he said "This is a democratic government is the house of everyone"

Reiterating his pledge that elections next June, the general said

"There will be land, houses, work and food There will be schools First we will decrease the cost of living We can't wait years These are problems of the day, of the hour

We of the armed forces are middle class and like you, we are of the people by the people and for the people"

To the cheers of the little gathering, Perez Godoy declared

"We will do all this in 12 months not one day more Not one day more will the military junta govern Peru The people will prevail That is our aim"

In an obvious reference to the United States, which suspended economic aid along with diplomatic recognition, the general added

"We want our friends to remain friends We want their aid But we want aid with dignity."

The military junta declared the June 10 presidential elections were fraudulent and overthrew Prado when he refused to nullify the results. They threw out the election results and abolished congress.

They feared victor Raul Haya de la Torre, an old foe of the military, would be elected by congress. He led in the voting for president but failed to obtain the necessary plurality. His leftist but anti - Communist APRA party was dominant in congress.

The junta appears solidly entrenched Labor's general strike failed Opposition moves to have congress convene secretly collapsed. The supreme court pledged cooperation and only Friday Juan Cardinal Landazuri Ricketts, head of the Roman Catholic Church in Peru, said the church found it necessary to work with the junta explained that the first two would be elected because of receiving the most votes.

A total of 2,560 votes were cast in ward three, with 1,281 representing a majority.

Owens missed a majority in ward five by approximately 440 votes.

Owens led the 18-candidate field in ward five with 1,972, with the other three aspirants entering the runoff and their totals are Cash, 908; Burkett, 852; and Crowell, 672.

In leading the field in five, Owens carried all 14 precincts in the voting.

In ward one, precinct one was the first to report at 9:14 after the polls closed at 8 p.m. Drennan grabbed a 72-vote margin in the first precinct and increased his lead to the final margin of 178 when precinct two reported at 9:35 p.m.

Dr. Hammonds carried seven of the 12 precincts in ward three and tied with McVay in precinct eight. McVay carried two precincts. Zeagler also carried two precincts.

Precinct one reported first in ward three at 8:35 p.m. and set the trend that was to follow. Dr. Hammonds led with 70 votes, followed by McVay with 66, Zeagler with 37 and Pitarro with 21 in this precinct.

By 9 p.m., five precincts had reported in ward three and the totals showed Dr. Hammonds with 1,221, McVay with 1,123, Zeagler with 950 and Pitarro with 393 at that time.

Precinct three, reporting at 8:53 p.m., was the first to come in from ward five. And the trend that was to prevail in five was set in the first precinct reporting —Owens, 120; Burkett, 79; Cash, 72; and Crowell 47. Precinct 14 was the last to report at 10:13 p.m.

Parker led in all but 10 of the 51 precincts in Ouachita parish. Ward 9 with only one precinct was the single ward in which Parker lost.

Parker, 1704 North Second street, Monroe, is 57 years old. He has been assistant district attorney for the past six years. Prior to that he was assistant city attorney for the City of Monroe.

A native of Monroe, he served in the state legislature as a representative from Ouachita parish from 1940 until 1943, when he resigned to enter the armed forces.

When contacted last night, Parker said he "wanted to thank the people of Morehouse and Ouachita parishes for their vote confidence which they gave me in today's Democratic primary. I shall earnestly work to fulfill the confidence placed in me."

Fink issued the following statement: "My sincere congratulations to Dooley Parker on his victory this day. He will make you and me a good judge, and although I have fought the good fight during the judgeship race, I have nothing but the kindest feelings for him as for more than 40 years we have been good, close friends.

"In the years ahead, I will leave no stone unturned to assist him in every way possible to make the people of our district a good judge. To those of you who worked for George Fink, please accept my sincere thanks. May God bless and keep us free."

Services Today For Mrs. Davis; Died Saturday

Funeral services will be held Sunday at 3 p.m. for Mrs. Alice Lolley Davis, 77, of 1213 Ridge Ave., West Monroe, who died Saturday morning in her home.

The Rev. Dr. Clifton Tennison, pastor of the First Baptist Church of West Monroe, will officiate at the services to be conducted from the chapel of Mulhearn Funeral Home.

Burial will be in Riverview Cemetery under the direction of Mulhearn.

Mrs. Davis, a native of Simsboro, had lived in the Twin Cities since 1917. She was a member of the West Monroe First Baptist Church and of the Order of the Eastern Star.

Cotton Forum Plans Outlined; Set August 1, 2

SHREVEPORT (Special) —The second annual Louisiana Cotton Forum being held here Aug. 1-2 will emphasize the economic importance and the ways and means of improving and expanding Louisiana's cotton industry.

The forum will bring to Shreveport some 500 members of the cotton industry, from growers to millers, and its speakers will include some of the top cotton authorities of the nation.

The event is being sponsored by the agricultural committee of the Shreveport Chamber of Commerce. Dr. Garth Cline is chairman of the Chamber committee; James K. Boone is general chairman of the forum, and Jack Dillard is general co-chairman of the meeting.

The forum will include a five-stop tour of the Red River Valley Experiment Station near Shreveport on Wednesday, beginning at 1 p.m., and a program of speeches at the State Museum Auditorium at the Louisiana State Fair Grounds on Thursday, beginning at 8:30 a.m.

The value of the U. S. cotton crop at the farm level in 1961 amounted to almost $2.4 billion. Louisiana's more than 23,000 cotton farmers accounted for $90 million of the nation's total cotton crop value. In dollar value, cotton lint and seed accounted for 23 per cent of the total farm marketings of Louisiana during 1961.

Fournet Trailing For Judge

runoff Sept. 1. Fournet had been a strong favorite.

In the 4th Circuit of the state Court of Appeals, two New Orleans civil district judges scored overwhelming victories.

In the race for the unexpired term of Judge George Janvier, running until December, 1964, Judge Paul Chasez routed Juvenile Court Judge Anna Judge Veters Levy.

In a contest for a newly-created seat, with the term lasting until December, 1970, Judge Luther Hall, who has been sitting by appointment, easily defeated three opponents, G. Wray Gill Jr., Cyril J. Gracianette and Arthur V. Flotte.

Grip Loosens; Girl Plummets Down To Death

GATLINBURG, Tenn. (UPI) —A teen-aged girl holding onto a bush while she looked over a cliff in the Great Smoky Mountains National Park apparently lost her grip and fell 50 feet to her death Saturday.

Louise Ann Barber, 14, Knoxville, was found dead at the foot of Ramsey Cascades by rangers after a male companion had run four miles from the scene to get help.

According to her young companion, identified by Frank Oliver who investigated the accident, as Gerry Wade, about 16, the girl was alive when he left to get help.

The youths had been hiking along the top of the cliff.

Vidalia Man Killed By Shotgun Blast

VIDALIA (Special) — A 43-year-old Vidalia man, Harry Wooten, was killed from the blast of a .12 gauge shotgun Friday night after reportedly threatening to break into the home of Mrs. Joe Reed.

According to the Concordia Parish sheriff's department, Mrs. Reed, 40 - year - old neighbor of Wooten, fired on him when he threatened to force his way into her home located on the Mississippi river levee near Riverside Church in Vidalia.

Mrs. Reed was being held on an open charge pending completion of a coroner's investigation Saturday. Dr. Herman Gibson, coroner, said that first inspection of the incident indicated justifiable homicide.

Witnesses allegedly told officers that Wooten had been drinking and talking loud.. They said he threatened to force his way into the woman's house, said he was going to get a gun and then returned.

As he approached on return, Mrs. Reed allegedly shot him one time in the chest as he was about middle ways in the street. She also reportedly fired one warning shot over the victim's head.

Safety Awards Are Presented

John C. Jackson, Southern Bell Telephone and Telegraph Co. employee, along with other Bell workers, recently received a safe driving award.

In 15 years with the company he has never been involved in a traffic accident. Capt. M. E. Kidd of the state police made the presentations and commended the group.

Negroes' Voting Is Quiet

Judge Frank Voelker Sr. signed the papers releasing her husband ater she paid the amount of money due.

There was no incident throughout the day as the Negroes, first of their race in 40 years to vote in an election in East Carroll, cast their ballots.

Among the Negroes voting was Joseph P. Atlas, who filed a civil rights suit against East Carroll officials several months ago charging they were discriminating against him by not ginning his cotton.

The Columbia Broadcasting System dispatched a reporter-photographer team to cover the election. The team was from Dallas, Tex. Several persons representing other news media were on hand.

The Negroes voted without incident, and the only persons on hand to witness their ballot-casting were the voting officials, reporters, and law enforcement authorities.

Federal agents appeared in East Carroll, on guard against action to keep the Negroes from voting, and an informed source said a "riot squad" of federal men were stationed in Monroe to act against possible violence.

However, East Carroll officials said there had been no hint of any law - breaking. The Negroes who voted were treated courteously. precinct workers inquired as to their names as they approached the voting machines. The Negroes gave their names and were asked if they knew how to use a voting machine. The ones who did not were instructed, entered the booths, voted and left.

Blockwood's wife, when asked if she knew how to use the machine, answered, "No, I've never used one before."

A meeting of the Negro voters was held Friday night, and the Columbia Broadcasting System was on hand to help in publicizing the event.

However, Negroes who had been instructed to show up at a designated hour at the polling place at Manning's store were about 45 minutes late where the newsmen, one of whom was dressed in a dress suit and trench coat in warm muggy weather, sweated it out.

Television camera men posed the Negroes at the courthouse after they emerged from the polling place. They were instructed to walk forward, backward, and to look at each other and smile.

State and parish official were under federal injunction prohibiting them from interferring with the Negroes who voted.

No crowds gathered as the Negroes voted.

Federal Judge Edwin F. Hunter presided at Monroe July 12 as the Negroes passed voting tests, while a three - judge panel in Shreveport declared they were eligible to vote in Saturday's election.

Ironically, four of the Negroes cast ballots at Cecil Manning's Store in ward five, precinct one. Manning resigned June 14 as vote registrar after Federal Judge Ben Dawkins of Shreveport issued an injunction restraining the registrar from "discrimination" in administering voting tests.

One of the Negroes who voted Saturday had failed one of the tests administered by Manning, but passed the test presided over by Judge Hunter.

In Washington, the Justice Department said records showed no Negroes had voted in East Carroll since Reconstruction. It said the last time the parish had registered Negores was in 1922. It did not say whether or not the Negroes who registered in 1922 voted. Reconstruction ended in 1878.

A total of 13 Negroes voted in ward three, precinct two, the courthouse; seven voted at ward three, precinct one, the city hall, four voted in ward five, precinct one, Manning's store, and one voted in ward six, precinct one.

East Carroll officials said they had exhausted their efforts to keep the Negroes, who they said they considered unqualified, from voting.

They added they had expected no trouble at the polls. A total of 1,100 persons, not counting the Negroes, were registered to vote in East Carroll in the election.

The parish is still without a vote registrar. The police jury is expected to act on the matter at its next meeting.

Long Wins In Fifth District

test vote handed Long but a 1339 to 1161 win in Lincoln Parish Richland Parish, reporting from Rayville with 20 of 20 precincts, gave the 14-year national legislator about a two-to-one victory when it cast 1586 votes to 716 for retired Army officer St Amant.

Election officials called the overall turn-out in the Fifth District "good" and estimated that roughly half of those qualified cast ballots. Unofficial total last night set the figure at 36,320.

Incomplete tallies from Concordia Parish, where 17 of 21 precincts had reported by midnight, gave Long 684 votes to St. Amant's 200.

Other totals lined up like this, with Long's totals shown first:

Morehouse Parish, 1283 to 1009; Caldwell, 683 to 280; East Carroll, 359 to 194; Franklin, 1560 to 666; Jackson, 2605 to 773; Madison, 645 to 334; Union, 2218 to 662; and West Carroll Parish, 943 to 397.

In the Senate for 14 years, the 43 year old, Baton Rouge-bred Long is seeking his third consecutive term. He was elected first in a special election in 1948 to choose a successor for the deceased John Overton.

He replaced an interim appointment, Bill Feazel of Shreveport and West Monroe.

Long, Boggs Take Leads In Elections

Long, making his first race for public office in the home territory of the Long family, led McSween 6,850-6,316 in returns from 60 of 320 precincts. A third candidate, W. H. Lambdin, polled only 888 votes, but that was the difference between a majority for Long at that stage of the race.

Returns from 122 of 280 precincts in the 7th District, in the southwestern part of the state, gave Thompson 18,816 to a combined vote of 18,356 for his opponents. Allen Commander was running second with 7,523, followed by Hugh Shearman with 6,972 and Larry Stephenson with 3,861.

Reps. F. Edward Hebert of New Orleans and James Morrison of Hammond easily defeated token opponents in the 1st and 6th districts.

Unopposed for renomination—and so far in the general election were Reps. Edwin Willis of St. Martinville, Joe D. Waggonner Jr. of Plain Dealing and Otto Passman of Monroe.

At least three Republicans will run for congressional posts Nov. 6. They are Taylor W. O'Hearn of Shreveport, for the U.S. Senate; David Treen of New Orleans, former chairman of the Louisiana States Rights party, in the 2nd District; and Dorothy Lewis, wife of Alexandria's postmaster, in the 8th District.

Father Of Local Resident Dies; Services Pend

JONESBORO (Special) —Francis Moffett, 65, father of a Monroe resident, Mrs. Frances Lawrence, died Saturday morning in a Vinita, Okla., hospital.

Funeral arrangements, under direction of Edmonds's Funeral Home of Jonesboro, are incomplete but services will be in the Jonesboro Baptist Church with interment in Jonesboro Cemetery.

Mr. Moffett was a native of Jackson Parish and was a hospital attendant at Vinita Hospital. He has lived in Oklahoma for several years.

Survivors other than the daughter include one brother, Linus Moffett, Quitman; two sisters, Mrs. Etta Allen, Freeport, Tex., and Mrs. Loucreacy Doremus, Eros; one grandson; and a number of nieces and nephews.

In the race for the unexpired term of Judge George Janvier, running until December, 1964, Judge Paul Chasez routed Juvenile Court Judge Anna Judge Veters Levy.

In a contest for a newly-created seat, with the term lasting until December, 1970, Judge Luther Hall, who has been sitting by appointment, easily defeated three opponents, G. Wray Gill Jr., Cyril J. Gracianette and Arthur V. Flotte.

Grip Loosens; Girl Plummets Down To Death

GATLINBURG, Tenn. (UPI) —A teen-aged girl holding onto a bush while she looked over a cliff in the Great Smoky Mountains National Park apparently lost her grip and fell 30 feet to her death Saturday.

Louise Ann Barber, 14, Knoxville, was found dead at the foot of Ramsey Cascades by rangers after a male companion had run four miles from the scene to get help.

According to her young companion, identified by Frank Oliver who investigated the accident, as Gerry Wade, about 16, the girl was alive when he left to get help.

The youths had been hiking along the top of the cliff.

Vidalia Man Killed By Shotgun Blast

VIDALIA (Special) — A 43-year-old Vidalia man, Harry Wooten, was killed from the blast of a .12 gauge shotgun Friday night after reportedly threatening to break into the home of Mrs. Joe Reed.

According to the Concordia Parish sheriff's department, Mrs. Reed, 40 - year - old neighbor of Wooten, fired on him when he threatened to force his way into her home located on the Mississippi river levee near Riverside Church in Vidalia.

Mrs. Reed was being held on an open charge pending completion of a coroner's investigation Saturday. Dr. Herman Gibson, coroner, said that first inspection of the incident indicated justifiable homicide.

Witnesses allegedly told officers that Wooten had been drinking and talking loud. They said he threatened to force his way into the woman's house, said he was going to get a gun and then returned.

As he approached on return, Mrs. Reed allegedly shot him one time in the chest as he was about middle ways in the street. She also reportedly fired one warning shot over the victim's head.

Safety Awards Are Presented

John C. Jackson, Southern Bell Telephone and Telegraph Co. employee, along with other Bell workers, recently received a safe driving award.

In 15 years with the company he has never been involved in a traffic accident. Capt. M. E. Kidd of the state police made the presentations and commended the group.

Negroes' Voting Is Quiet

Judge Frank Voelker Sr. signed the papers releasing her husband ater she paid the amount of money due.

There was no incident throughout the day as the Negroes, first of their race in 40 years to vote in an election in East Carroll, cast their ballots.

Among the Negroes voting was Joseph P. Atlas, who filed a civil rights suit against East Carroll officials several months ago charging they were discriminating against him by not ginning his cotton.

The Columbia Broadcasting System dispatched a reporter-photographer team to cover the election. The team was from Dallas, Tex. Several persons representing other news media were on hand.

The Negroes voted without incident, and the only persons on hand to witness their ballot-casting were the voting officials, reporters, and law enforcement authorities

Federal agents appeared in East Carroll, on guard against action to keep the Negroes from voting, and an informed source said a "riot squad" of federal men were stationed in Monroe to act against possible violence.

However, East Carroll officials said there had been no hint of any law - breaking. The Negroes who voted were treated courteously. precinct workers inquired as to their names as they approached the voting machines. The Negroes gave their names and were asked if they knew how to use a voting machine. The ones who did not were instructed, entered the booths, voted and left

Blockwood's wife, when asked if she knew how to use the machine, answered, "No, I've never used one before."

A meeting of the Negro voters was held Friday night, and the Columbia Broadcasting System was on hand to help in publicizing the event.

However, Negroes who had been instructed to show up at a designated hour at the polling place at Manning's store were about 45 minutes late where the newsmen, one of whom was dressed in a dress suit and trench coat in warm muggy weather, sweated it out

Television camera men posed the Negroes at the courthouse after they emerged from the polling place. They were instructed to walk forward, backward, and to look at each other and smile.

State and parish official were under federal injunction prohibiting them from interferring with the Negroes who voted.

No crowds gathered as the Negroes voted.

Federal Judge Edwin F. Hunter presided at Monroe July 12 as the Negroes passed voting tests, while a three - judge panel in Shreveport declared they were eligible to vote in Saturday's election.

Ironically, four of the Negroes cast ballots at Cecil Manning's Store in ward five, precinct one. Manning resigned June 14 as vote registrar after Federal Judge Ben Dawkins of Shreveport issued an injunction restraining the registrar from "discrimination" in administering voting tests.

One of the Negroes who voted Saturday had failed one of the tests administered by Manning, but passed the test presided over by Judge Hunter

In Washington, the Justice Department said records showed no Negroes had voted in East Carroll since Reconstruction. It said the last time the parish had registered Negores was in 1922. It did not say whether or not the Negroes who registered in 1922 voted Reconstruction ended in 1878

A total of 13 Negroes voted in ward three, precinct two, the courthouse, seven voted at ward three, precinct one, the city hall, four voted in ward five, precinct one, Manning's store, and one voted in ward six, precinct one.

East Carroll officials said they had exhausted their efforts to keep the Negroes, who they said they considered unqualified, from voting.

They added they had expected no trouble at the polls A total of 1,100 persons, not counting the Negroes, were registered to vote in East Carroll in the election.

The parish is still without a vote registrar. The police jury is expected to act on the matter at its next meeting test vote handed Long but a 133 to 1161 win in Lincoln Parish Richland Parish, reporting from Rayville with 20 of 20 precincts, gave the 14-year national legisla tor about a two-to-one victory when it cast 1586 votes to 71 for retired Army officer St Amant.

Long Wins In Fifth District

Election officials called the overall turn-out in the Fifth District "good" and estimated that roughly half of those qualified cast ballots. Unofficial total last night set the figure at 36,320.

Incomplete tallies from Concordia Parish, where 17 of 21 precincts had reported by midnight, gave Long 684 votes to St. Amant's 200.

Morehouse Parish, 1283 to 1009; Caldwell, 683 to 280; East Carroll, 359 to 194; Franklin, 1560 to 666; Jackson, 2605 to 773; Madison, 645 to 334; Union, 2218 to 662; and West Carroll Parish, 943 to 397.

In the Senate for 14 years, the 43 year old, Baton Rouge-bred Long is seeking his third consecutive term. He was elected first in a special election in 1948 to choose a successor for the deceased John Overton.

He replaced an interim appointment, Bill Feazel of Shreveport and West Monroe.

Long, Boggs Take Leads In Elections

Long, making his first race for public office in the home territory of the Long family, led McSween 6,850-6,316 in returns from 60 of 320 precincts. A third candidate, W. H. Lambdin, polled only 888 votes, but that was the difference between a majority for Long at that stage of the race.

Returns from 122 of 280 precincts in the 7th District, in the southwestern part of the state, gave Thompson 18,816 to a combined vote of 18,356 for his opponents. Allen Commander was running second with 7,523, followed by Hugh Shearman with 6,972 and Larry Stephenson with 3,861.

Reps. F. Edward Hebert of New Orleans and James Morrison of Hammond easily defeated token opponents in the 1st and 6th districts.

Unopposed for renomination—and so far in the general election were Reps. Edwin Willis of St. Martinville, Joe D. Waggonner Jr. of Plain Dealing and Otto Passman of Monroe.

At least three Republicans will run for congressional posts Nov. 6. They are Taylor W. O'Hearn of Shreveport, for the U.S. Senate; David Treen of New Orleans, former chairman of the Louisiana States Rights party, in the 2n District; and Dorothy Lewis, wif of Alexandria's postmaster, in th 8th District.

Serio Taps Wilcox Sand In Wilkinson

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — Serio-Punches Oil Co. completed the Rosenblatt No. 1, sec 47-2n-4w, as the discovery well of North Fort Adams oil field in Wilkinson County this week.

The new discovery was completed from a Wilcox sand at 8,385-87 feet, flowing 119 barrels of oil daily.

In the recently discovered Wausau field of Wayne County, Chismor Co. has staked locations for two new tests. The discovery well of the field is Chismor Co.'s No. 1 Sausau, sec. 28-8n-9w, completed as a dual producer from the Paluxy and Mooringsport formation.

The discovery well logged a total of 157 feet of oil sand in four different zones with reports that commercial production could be obtained from two other sands in the well.

In the Maxie field of Forrest County, Humble Oil and Refining Co. is reported to have set surface cashing on its Maxie Gas unit se-61, sec. 18-1s-12w. The important venture is scheduled to be drilled to 12,000 feet, and will be the first deep test in this part of gas producing areas. The current test depth is 8,400 feet.

Calto - Gulmon is erecting a pumping unit at the Drane No. 3, sec. 58-5n-1w, in Adams County, after the venture flowed for a short period from sands in the Wilcox formation at 6,701-03 feet. Te potential new pool opener is a mile south of the Deerfield oil field.

In Jones County, Larco Drilling Co. and O. D. Brame are below 12,900 feet in the Walker No. 1 sec. 8-7n-11w, located about seven miles south of Laurel. The depth schedule is 15,000 feet.

A new wildcat venture in Amite County should get underway shortly with Larco Drilling Co. and Best & Launius staking location for the White No. 1, sec. 4-2n-5e, a 11,550 foot try. The venture is two miles south of the East Fork Field.

In Marion County, north of the Dexter Field, Skelly Oil Co. is beginning drilling operations at the Stringer No. 1, sec. 20-2n-13e, with the schedule depth of 12,800 feet.

In the Chaparral Field of Wayne County, Humble Oil and Refining Co. completed the Chaparral oil unit No. 18-5, sec. 18-10n-6w, flowing 594 barrels of oil daily from 8,702-10 feet.

Texaco, Inc., completed the Alfred Foote No. 4, sec. 15-9n-10w, as a dual completion at Pool Creek in Jones County. A sand at 11,194-204 feet flowed 282 barrels of oil daily and the second zone at 10,810-20 feet flowed 552 barrels of oil daily.

Several Grains Record Losses Over Past Week

CHICAGO (AP)—Except for a show of firmness at midweek, the grain futures market was belabored by speculative liquidation and short selling most of the time on the Board of Trade.

Losses were posted for all contracts of wheat, corn and oats and nearly all soybeans. At times during the week most of them sold at their lowest levels of the season.

Rye derived a good deal of support from a report that West Germany will buy about six million bushels next week, probably most of it in the United States. Export business, actual or potential, had little bullish influence in the trade otherwise.

Flour mills were good buyers of wheat early in the week but brokers noted the demand was handled without any display of urgency and much of it was on price scaledowns. At the end of the week, that support was virtually absent, too.

The basic firmness which had characterized the general trade in wheat the past few weeks and attracted a preference for the long side of the market was much less prevalent in the late trade.

Corn and new crop soybeans yielded to frequent reports of good to excellent growth. One survey late in the week said development was about a week ahead of normal with corn well into the tassel stage and conditions generally perfect for pollination.

August soybeans afforded speculators the most room for in and out trading.

At the end of the week, wheat was 1⅛-1⅝ cents a bushel lower than a week ago, September $2.12⅝-¾; corn 2⅛-2¾ lower, September $1.07¼-⅛; oats 1-1⅝ lower, September 62⅞-¾; rye unchanged to 1⅝ higher, September $1.23-23⅛; soybeans 2¼ higher on August to 1½ lower on new crop months, August $2.47¾-⅞.

Tactics For Cities

LOS ANGELES (AP) — New approaches in urban evangelism—such as a "bilingual ministry," "group ministry," special "age group" programs and "public housing" ministries — are urged by Dr. Russell E. Clay, Methodist district superintendent, to "break through to people who are outside the church" in swelling metropolitan areas.

Algerians Disdain Emblems

ALGIERS (AP) — They were selling nationalist emblems in the streets of Algiers Saturday but few passersby looked at them.

Four weeks after proclamation of independence, bitterness and disappointment are replacing the intoxicating chant of triumph and victory by this capital's half a million Moslems.

Few men had jobs and women had little food to give their children while the politicians wrangled for power.

"The people will impose unity," proclaimed posters pasted over the city's walls.

And word seeped out from the squalid Casbah and crowded Moslem markets that the people will not stand too long for chaos and the political manipulation of their leaders.

In dingy meeting rooms, youth leaders and trade organizations held feverish conferences. There was no word what they were preparing.

"It is our internal problem," they told newsmen.

But some of them were saying that if the leaders don't come to terms "they will be swept away by the anger of the people."

"We did not suffer under colonialism only to witness this spectacle," one Algerian intellectual said bitterly.

Europeans who stayed behind watch cautiously.

"Will France intervene?" they ask anxiously every day.

They would like to see French troops again take over the capital—not because it would solve anything but because it would prove they were right in saying the Algerians are not capable of being independent.

In street intersections, newly organized Moslem policemen in cork helmets direct traffic. Trucks loaded with French military policemen slowly cruise the streets.

Groups of people crowd around French newspapers displayed by vendors. Big headlines describe chaos in Algeria and the threatening civil war. And the radios announce that projects are being prepared to give the people bread.

"Long live the martyrs," proclaim signs painted on the walls in the early stages of triumph and joy.

Malaya Official Sees Macmillan On Federation

LONDON (AP) —Tunku Abdul Rahman, Malaya's prime minister said Saturday he and Prime Minister Harold Macmillan have agreed on a compromise which may lead to a firm date for the establishment of a Federation of Malaysia.

"On Monday or Tuesday we may be able to announce the agreement and date of the merger," the 59-year-old Malayan leader said after lunching with Macmillan at Chequers, the official country residence of British prime ministers.

Tunku indicated he was obliged to make some concessions to Macmillan's point of view in the project to set up the federation, to be made up of Malaya, Singapore, North Borneo, Brunei and Sarawak.

Vienna Police Go On Strike; Third Stays

VIENNA, Austria (AP) — A strike left Austria with only a third of its 16,000-man police force on duty Saturday and Austrians feared the busy weekend would bring traffic jams and other trouble.

The strike, climax of a wage dispute with the government, left the nation's cities manned by only about 5,000 uniformed federal policemen and plainclothesmen. The force totals 16,000 men, of which 5,000 were on strie and another 5,000 or more off duty and unavailable for work, even in emergency.

A police spokesman said "some real trouble" lies ahead Sunday with the usual heavy flow of weekend traffic flooding back to the capital and far too few police to handle it properly.

The entire standby force walked out Saturday morning. Normally a third of the force is on duty, a third on standby reserve and the rest off duty. The walkout was engineered by the Union of Public Employees to press demands for about $920,000 in police wage raises and allowances.

The walkout did not affect gendarmerie forces, numbering about 12,000 officers, doing duty in the provinces. But if no compromise is reached with the government by the middle of next week, the union is ready to call a full strike of police and gendarmerie forces.

A spokesman said Vienna would be short about 1,500 officers for traffic control alone on Sunday.

FAUBUS SEEKS FIFTH

Arkansas Slates Election Tuesday

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — Gov. Orval E. Faubus, Arkansas' political giant since the Little Rock integration crisis of 1957, takes his popularity to the polls Tuesday for what he says will be the last time.

The 52-year-old governor asks for a fifth term without benefit of support from segregation leaders, who say he has deserted their cause.

Faubus has campaigned not on the race question but on what he says is a record of progress in his eight-year administration. He told audiences this week that if he wins a fifth term, it will be his last.

Opposing him for the Democratic nomination, tantamount to election, is a strong field of five, including former Gov. Si McMath, who gave Faubus his political start, and Rep. Dale Alford, D-Ark., who in turn got his start from Faubus.

Sen. J. William Fulbright, D-Ark., seeks renomination to a fourth term against Winston Chandler, a Little Rock business and political novice who has marshaled some support with conservative views.

U.S. Reps. Wilbur Mills, E. C. Gathings, J. W. Trimble and Oren Harris are unopposed in the Democratic primary, but Trimble and Harris will have Republican opponents in the November general election, as will the Democratic nominees for the Senate and governorship.

All four congressmen are up for election because of congressional redistricting due to a population loss which cost Arkansas two House seats.

Most of Faubus' opponents agree that the governor will lead the ticket, but all five have predicted they will be in a runoff with him. No incumbent governor ever has survived a runoff in Arkansas.

Faubus said before the campaign that he had 52 per cent of the voting support. That would be the lowest figure since the school crisis. He won with 70 per cent in 1958 and 57 per cent in 1960.

The others in the race are Kenneth Coffelt, a Little Rock attorney who campaigns with old-time southern gusto; Vernon Whitten, a sedate businessman who says he will sue Faubus for slander because of some campaign remarks, and David Cox, a farmer who has been jailed twice during the campaign for drunkenness and disturbing the peace.

DEMOCRATIC PRIMARY

Tennessee Selects Governor Thursday

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP)—Tennessee Democrats will decide Thursday which of three candidates they prefer for governor — Frank G. Clement of Nashville, City Commissioner William W. Farris of Memphis or Chattanooga Mayor P. R. Olgiati.

About 700,000 persons are expected to vote and the winner, subject to the formality of the November general election, will serve for the next four years.

Of the three, Clement, 42, is most wideley known for his previous terms as governor from 1953 to 1959. He also delivered the keynote address to the Democratic National Convention in 1956.

Farris, 38, the youngest contestant, is old enough to have picked up a dozen years of experience in city and state politics. He entered the state scene after climbing to prominence in the Memphis city government.

Olgiati, 61, has been mayor of Chattanooga since 1951, and held various other city posts for 16 years before that. Olgiati is proud of the fact he started earning his living as a brickmason.

The winner succeeds Gov. Buford Ellington, barred by the state constitution from succeeding himself. Ellington never has declared his public support of any candidate.

The summer campaign has developed few issues except Clement's public record. He based his campaign speeches on that record, invited his opponents to examine it and said he would extend it into his next term, if elected.

Both his opponents began criticizing Clement and especially his reported associations with Texas financier, Billie Sol Estes, now under indictment. Clement has not answered these criticisms.

Voters will elect two members of the state Supreme Court and one member of the Public Service Commission, will nominate candidates for all nine congressional seats, and will choose candidates for all 132 seats in the legislature.

Forest Girl, 19, Captures Crown In Mississippi

BILOXI, Miss. (UPI)— Loren Mitchell Ormond, a 19-year-old Belhaven College student from Forest, Saturday night was crowned Miss Hospitality of 1962-63 to represent Mississippi at travel and tourist functions.

The crown was placed on Loren's head by Gov. Ross Barnett as outgoing Miss Hospitality Joann Watts of Poplarville looked on.

Loren, who was born in Jackson, is the daughter of Mrs. Maybeth M. Ormond of Forest. She is 5-feet-6½ inches tall and weighs 120 pounds. She has brown hair and brown eyes and tips the tape at 36-23-36.

Loren, who will be a seinor at Belhaven in Jackson this fall, is majoring in art. She lists drawing, painting, singing and dramatics as her hobbies.

Patricia Ann Turk, 20, of Jackson, was named first alternate, and Virginia Boyd Sojourner, 20, of Natchez, was picked as second alternate in the annual contest.

Fifty-five Mississippi beauties went through four days of judging here to determine who was to represent the state during the next year. She will attend travel shows and tourist attractions as the official representative of Mississippi.

CREWMEN LOST

MANILA (AP) — Fifteen crewmen are missing after the sinking of the Philippines cargo vessel Don Ricardo off Tablas Island in the central Philippines Thursday, the constabulary announced Saturday. Eleven other crewmen were rescued by fishermen.

Transit Tokens Are Accepted At Box Office

NEW YORK (AP) — The 15-cent tokens used for fares on the city's transit system aren't generally accepted for other purchases. But an exception is being made at the boxoffice of "Subways Are for Sleeping."

If a ticket - buyer happens to include a token when offering coins in payment, the cashier just smiles and counts it at face value. A recent checkup showed the St. James theater has accumulated 284 tokens thus far.

Algerians Disdain Emblems

ALGIERS (AP) — They were selling nationalist emblems in the streets of Algiers Saturday but few passersby looked at them.

Four weeks after proclamation of independence, bitterness and disappointment are replacing the intoxicating chant of triumph and victory by this capital's half a million Moslems.

Few men had jobs and women had little food to give their children while the politicians wrangled for power.

"The people will impose unity," proclaimed posters pasted over the city's walls.

And word seeped out from the squalid Casbah and crowded Moslem markets that the people will not stand too long for chaos and the political manipulation of their leaders.

In dingy meeting rooms, youth leaders and trade organizations held feverish conferences. There was no word what they were preparing.

"It is our internal problem," they told newsmen.

But some of them were saying that if the leaders don't come to terms "they will be swept away by the anger of the people."

"We did not suffer under colonialism only to witness this spectacle," one Algerian intellectual said bitterly.

Europeans who stayed behind watch cautiously.

"Will France intervene?" they ask anxiously every day.

They would like to see French troops again take over the capital—not because it would solve anything but because it would prove they were right in saying the Algerians are not capable of being independent.

In street intersections, newly organized Moslem policemen in cork helmets direct traffic. Trucks loaded with French military policemen slowly cruise the streets.

Groups of people crowd around French newspapers displayed by vendors. Big headlines describe chaos in Algeria and the threatening civil war. And the radios announce that projects are being prepared to give the people bread.

"Long live the martyrs," proclaim signs painted on the walls in the early stages of triumph and joy.

Malaya Official Sees Macmillan On Federation

LONDON (AP) —Tunku Abdul Rahman, Malaya's prime minister said Saturday he and Prime Minister Harold Macmillan have agreed on a compromise which may lead to a firm date for the establishment of a Federation of Malaysia

"On Monday or Tuesday we may be able to announce the agreement and date of the merger," the 59-year-old Malayan leader said after lunching with Macmillan at Chequers, the official country residence of British prime ministers

Tunku indicated he was obliged to make some concessions to Macmillan's point of view in the project to set up the federation, to be made up of Malaya, Singapore, North Borneo, Brunei and Sarawak

Vienna Police Go On Strike; Third Stays

VIENNA, Austria (AP) — A strike left Austria with only a third of its 16,000-man police force on duty Saturday and Austrians feared the busy weekend would bring traffic jams and other trouble

The strike, climax of a wage dispute with the government, left the nation's cities manned by only about 5,000 uniformed federal policemen and plainclothesmen The force totals 16,000 men, of which 5,000 were on strie and another 5,000 or more off duty and unavailable for work, even in emergency

A police spokesman said "some real trouble" lies ahead Sunday with the usual heavy flow of weekend traffic flooding back to the capital and far too few police to handle it properly

The entire standby force walked out Saturday morning Normally a third of the force is on duty, a third on standby reserve and the rest off duty The walkout was engineered by the Union of Public Employees to press demands for about $920,000 in police wage raises and allowances

The walkout did not affect gendarmerie forces numbering about 12,000 officers, doing duty in the provinces But if no compromise is reached with the government by the middle of next week, the union is ready to call a full strike of police and gendarmerie forces

A spokesman said Vienna would be short about 1,500 officers for traffic control alone on Sunday

FAUBUS SEEKS FIFTH

Arkansas Slates Election Tuesday

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — Gov. Orval E. Faubus, Arkansas' political giant since the Little Rock integration crisis of 1957, takes his popularity to the polls Tuesday for what he says will be the last time.

The 52-year-old governor asks for a fifth term without benefit of support from segregation leaders, who say he has deserted their cause.

Faubus has campaigned not on the race question but on what he says is a record of progress in his eight-year administration. He told audiences this week that if he wins a fifth term, it will be his last.

Opposing him for the Democratic nomination, tantamount to election, is a strong field of five, including former Gov. Si McMath, who gave Faubus his political start, and Rep. Dale Alford, D-Ark., who in turn got his start from Faubus.

Sen. J. William Fulbright, D-Ark., seeks renomination to a fourth term against Winston Chandler, a Little Rock business and political novice who has marshaled some support with conservative views.

U.S. Reps. Wilbur Mills, E. C. Gathings, J. W. Trimble and Oren Harris are unopposed in the Democratic primary, but Trimble and Harris will have Republican opponents in the November general election, as will the Democratic nominees for the Senate and governorship.

All four congressmen are up for election because of congressional redistricting due to a population loss which cost Arkansas two House seats.

Most of Faubus' opponents agree that the governor will lead the ticket, but all five have predicted they will be in a runoff with him. No incumbent governor ever has survived a runoff in Arkansas.

Faubus said before the campaign that he had 52 per cent of the voting support. That would be the lowest figure since the school crisis. He won with 70 per cent in 1958 and 57 per cent in 1960.

The others in the race are Kenneth Coffelt, a Little Rock attorney who campaigns with old-time southern gusto; Vernon Whitten, a sedate businessman who says he will sue Faubus for slander because of some campaign remarks, and David Cox, a farmer who has been jailed twice during the campaign for drunkenness and disturbing the peace

Tennessee Selects Governor Thursday

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Tennessee Democrats will decide Thursday which of three candidates they prefer for governor — Frank G. Clement of Nashville, City Commissioner William W. Farris of Memphis or Chattanooga Mayor P. R. Olgiati

About 700,000 persons are expected to vote and the winner, subject to the formality of the November general election, will serve for the next four years

Of the three, Clement, 42, is most wideley known for his previous terms as governor from 1953 to 1959 He also delivered the keynote address to the Democratic National Convention in 1956

Farris, 38, the youngest contestant, is old enough to have picked up a dozen years of experience in city and state politics He entered the state scene after climbing to prominence in the Memphis city government

Olgiati, 61, has been mayor of Chattanooga since 1951, and held various other city posts for 16 years before that Olgiati is proud of the fact he started earning his living as a brickmason

The winner succeeds Gov. Buford Ellington, barred by the state constitution from succeeding himself Ellington never has declared his public support of any candidate

The summer campaign has developed few issues except Clement's public record He based his campaign speeches on that record, invited his opponents to examine it and said he would extend it into his next term, if elected

Both his opponents began criticizing Clement and especially his reported associations with Texas financier Billie Sol Estes, now under indictment Clement has not answered these criticisms

Voters will elect two members of the state Supreme Court and one member of the Public Service Commission, will nominate candidates for all nine congressional seats, and will choose candidates for all 132 seats in the legislature

STOP

Target: BLIND CORNERS

By MARY ANNE CORPIN
Staff Writer

Monroe may be launching a new idea in a drive to get rid of blind corners that create traffic hazards, or mark them with special signs. Officials estimate there are between 100 and 150 such corners on stop streets. Here is a report on what is being done about them.

"BLIND CORNER".

Ever pull up to a corner, look both ways to see if any other traffic is coming - - and get a king - sized view of a big bush.

Blind corners also are caused by trees, especially mimosa, weeping willow or small pines, tall weeds, vine-grown fences and utility poles, signs (movable and permanent) and buildings.

Besides keeping down the crime rate, Monroe police also are supposed to make sure that foliage, signs, etc., don't obscure the driver's vision.

TIME CONSUMING

"In a city of this size," says lawyer Jesse D. McDonald, "policing of blind corners can be a time-consuming duty."

With Roy Gates, chairman of the club's civic improvement committee, McDonald met with Police Chief James C. Kelly and mapped out a program for a concentrated drive to eliminate blind corners - - - or mark them where the hazardous obstruction either can't be removed or will require extra time in being moved.

On July 17, Gates appointed 11 inspection teams of four men each, to conduct a survey of the city's corners.

The city was divided into 11 sections. Each team took one section, marked off the blind corners on special diagram sheets provided by the police department, and turned in their reports to Kelly last Wednesday.

DOUBLE CHECKING

Monroe police now are double checking on each corner designated as "blind".

Where obstructions are on city land, the sanitation department will be alerted to cut down the view-blocker.

If the obstruction is on private property, both police and the Lions' club members will contact the property owner, to discuss ways and means of moving the bush, sign, or whatever is causing the "blind corner".

"Blind Corner" signs, provided free by the Lions, and installed by police, will go up under the stop sign at each blind corner intersection where the obstruction is not removed.

Monroe may be launching a new idea here.

Kelly points out, "As far as I know, Monroe is the first city to use "blind corner" warning signs.

He estimates that the city has 100 to 150 blind corners on stop streets.

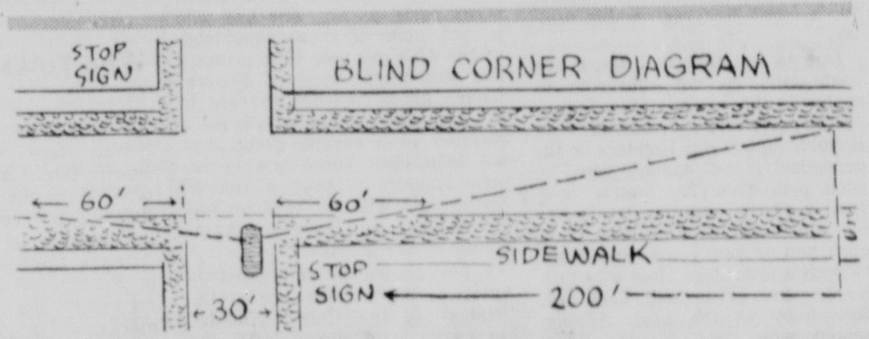
DANGER

But a blind corner can be a danger to the driver on a through street too — because a motorist whose view is blocked may pull out into the right-of-way, causing an accident.

Youngsters also are in danger at blind corners. Hidden by an obstruction, they may dash out just as the vehicle pulls out from a blind-corner intersection . . . and be badly injured.

Maj. Jack Davis, traffic director for Monroe police, says the Lions' project is a good idea. "If we can get it rolling, we can get the corners cleared out and prevent some serious accidents."



"It won't take long if the people cooperate with us."

What about the land owner who thought he was planting an expensive shrub on his land . . . and finds out that it's rooted on the neutral ground dedicated to the street right-of-way?

"We will give him time to transplant it," says Davis.

For those residents who fail to realize the need for cooperation, the city has legal authority to clear out such hazards.

The neutral ground has to be clear of high shrubbery, etc., for 60 feet, so that the motorist is able to see 200 feet down the road.

Monroe planning director George Parsons also points out that "the zoning ordinance requires that 30 feet back from each corner be kept free and clear of any obstruction."

SPECIAL SIGNS

Those who don't cooperate will find "blind corner" signs on the stop signs next to their property.

Mayor W. L. Howard asks that the public "cooperate fully with the Lions Club and the police department in eliminating some of these hazards."

Portable signs — the kind used at service stations. Employees go too far, put the signs, such as "mechanic on duty," out next to the street. "These signs cause us the most trouble," says Davis.

"Another was a cyclone fence," said Gates. "The owners had allowed vines to grow on it."

Mimosa trees — extra long limbs have a tendency to drop down into the street. Also weeping willows. Short, bushy pines.

Weeds, vines and flowers on front yard fences. Morning glory vines on utility poles.

NOT AS MANY

"In the newer areas, you won't find as many obstructions as in the older parts of Monroe," Gates commented.

"We know that blind corners do cause some serious accidents," says Davis. "Sometimes, you have to get out into the intersection to see if any traffic is coming. Drivers in small, compact cars have more trouble seeing out, and can be "blinded" easier.

" A driver will look as far as he is able to see. If he is inexperienced, he is more likely to take a chance at a blind corner."

After the major campaign is over, then what?

"The Lions will keep copies of the reports they made on "blind corners," says McDonald. "We will follow up, from time to time, and check to make sure that the obstruction does not occur again."

Rome Presents An Unusual Study In Contrasts

Civilization piled upon dead civilization has raised the level of modern Rome, a city reborn many times from her own ashes. Rome is something different to almost everyone, reports a foreign correspondent, who explains his impressions of the 'eternal city.'

By BENNETT BOLTON

Yet when the sun sets she becomes an old woman hunched in damp shadows, the black Castelli Mountains pulled about her shoulders like a shawl.

Her name is Rome, the Eternal City, a creature constantly born and re-born from her own ashes like the Phoenix, midwife of civilizations, prize of many armies.

Rome is also a hive of bureaucrats and rubber-stamp clerks, and is a somewhat tarnished antique.

DIFFERENT VIEWS

She is something different to almost everyone. To me, her greatest effect is to give a sense of humility in the face of her timelessness.

I walk away from busy pizzas, down narrow cobblestoned streets where the day's wash flaps from windowsills, and realize that the dust under my feet is the dust of a hundred generations.

Standing in the broken ruins of a forum, I begin to count decades by the inch-because civilization piled upon dead civilization has raised the level of modern Rome 20 feet above my head.

This magnificent city provides completely new delights every day.

I have climbed the rim of the Janiculum just before sunrise to where my apartment hangs on a hillside. Birds, drowned out by noonday's maddening traffic roar, trill and chirp in the unaccustomed silence.

Rome below is asleep under a misty blanket. The city's crumbling walls, brown by day, are a ghostly gray. They encircle roughly two million inhabitants-the same number that dwelled within the walls 20 centuries ago.

GARDENED TERRACE

I have sat in the gardened terrace of a roadside cafe high in the Alban Hills, Rome shimmering distantly on the other side of Lake Albano. Just above the blinding western horizon there suddenly appeared a tiny freighter-and I realized that the dazzling band of light on the horizon was the Tyrrhenian Sea, 20 miles away.

Nothing can match Rome for her contrasts. Moments after leaving the Via Veneto, epitome of European urbanity with its night clubs and luxury hotels, I drive past a section of hollowed rock with rusted bars that once caged eagles, the symbols of imperial Rome's glory.

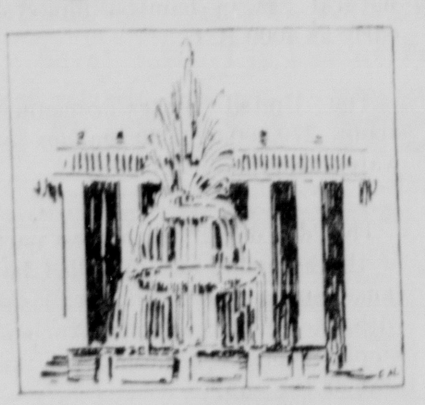
I can buy the Western world's choicest goods at the highest prices in the most glamorous shops. Or I can stroll the Tiber's bank through the bustling Flea Market, where "caveat emptor" let the buyer beware of rules, and strike a bargain in stolen altar candlesticks - if so inclined - or "guaranteed" shirts that shrink three sizes when washed.

I can wait in a crowd at a church door to see an elaborate Christmas crib with moving figures - after paying almost the price of a movie ticket. Yet I can stand most any Sunday at noon within the sweep of Bernini's colonnades at St. Peter's Square and see the Pope at his window-gratis.

Here enraptured tourists throw coins into Trevi Fountain with the wish of returning someday to Rome—and the sons of the poor dart into the waters at night, if policemen aren't looking, to scoop up the coins.

OLD AND NEW

Here the twany Tiber, that clay-clogged river where Cassius once saved Caesar, surges against the pilings of a 25-year-old bridge and the weakened structure must be closed. But modern traffic still honks across the next bridge upstream, a slender span whose stones were mortised into place 2,250 years ago.



Rome has a thousand little surprises at every turn. I have learned to look down, and not miss the armies of stray cats that prowl the sunken ruins and sun themselves on the weatherbeached fragments. I have learned to look up, discovering for instance in a little sidestreet concert hall a simple marble plaque that says Mascagni's immortal "Cavalleria Rusticana" was first performed there in 1890.

The shabbier a building, the more beautifully carved is its wooden door, the more carefully polished is its brass doorknob-and no two doorknobs ever seem to be alike. The more bleak the palazzo the more opulent its inside treasures are likely to be.

Perhaps the greatest contrast of all is in the Roman himself. He can be impatient, self - important at times, a bit restless-and he is a thorough individualist in his daily routines.

TRAFFIC STRUGGLE

In his frenetic little car he spurts and leaps in the noonday traffic like a salmon fighting its way upstream. The traffic cop is a magician whose flying hands somehow maintain order. But even so the Roman driver is likely to use two hours of his three- hour "siesta" battling his way twice across the city.

As the world's most audacious line-crasher, the Roman also will rush past a dozen others waiting at a post office window. The clerk suddenly announces that his window must close and this same Roman pleads with passion, pausing occasionally to play to the crowd with an appeal: "E logico? E giusto?-Is that logical? Is that fair?"

BLIND CORNER

Target: BLIND CORNERS

By MARY ANNE CORPIN
Staff Writer

"BLIND CORNER".

Ever pull up to a corner, look both ways to see if any other traffic is coming - - and get a king - sized view of a big bush.

Blind corners also are caused by trees, especially mimosa, weeping willow or small pines, tall weeds, vine-grown fences and utility poles, signs (movable and permanent) and buildings.

Besides keeping down the crime rate, Monroe police also are supposed to make sure that foliage, signs, etc., don't obscure the driver's vision.

TIME CONSUMING

"In a city of this size," says lawyer Jesse D. McDonald, "policing of blind corners can be a time-consuming duty."

With Roy Gates, chairman of the club's civic improvement committee, McDonald met with Police Chief James C. Kelly and mapped out a program for a concentrated drive to eliminate blind corners - - - or mark them where the hazardous obstruction either can't be removed or will require extra time in being moved.

On July 17, Gates appointed 11 inspection teams of four men each, to conduct a survey of the city's corners.

The city was divided into 11 sections. Each team took one section, marked off the blind corners on special diagram sheets provided by the police department, and turned in their reports to Kelly last Wednesday.

DOUBLE CHECKING

Monroe police now are double checking on each corner designated as "blind".

Where obstructions are on city land, the sanitation department will be alerted to cut down the view-blocker.

If the obstruction is on private property, both police and the Lions' club members will contact the property owner, to discuss ways and means of moving the bush, sign, or whatever is causing the "blind corner".

"Blind Corner" signs, provided free by the Lions, and installed by police, will go up under the stop sign at each blind corner intersection where the obstruction is not removed.

Monroe may be launching a new idea here.

Kelly points out, "As far as I know, Monroe is the first city to use "blind corner" warning signs.

He estimates that the city has 100 to 150 blind corners on stop streets.

DANGER

But a blind corner can be a danger to the driver on a through street too — because a motorist whose view is blocked may pull out into the right-of-way, causing an accident.

Youngsters also are in danger at blind corners. Hidden by an obstruction, they may dash out just as the vehicle pulls out from a blind-corner intersection . . . and be badly injured.

Maj. Jack Davis, traffic director for Monroe police, says the Lions' project is a good idea. "If we can get it rolling, we can get Monroe may be launching a new idea in a drive to get rid of blind corners that create traffic hazards, or mark them with special signs. Officials estimate there are between 100 and 150 such corners on stop streets. Here is a report on what is being done about them.

"It won't take long if the people cooperate with us."

What about the land owner who thought he was planting an expensive shrub on his land . . . and finds out that it's rooted on the neutral ground dedicated to the street right-of-way?

"We will give him time to transplant it," says Davis.

For those residents who fail to realize the need for cooperation, the city has legal authority to clear out such hazards.

The neutral ground has to be clear of high shrubbery, etc., for 60 feet, so that the motorist is able to see 200 feet down the road.

Monroe planning director George Patsons also points out that "the zoning ordinance requires that 30 feet back from each corner be kept free and clear of any obstruction."

SPECIAL SIGNS

Those who don't cooperate will find "blind corner" signs on the stop signs next to their property.

Mayor W. L. Howard asks that the public "cooperate fully with the Lions Club and the police department in eliminating some of these hazards."

Portable signs — the kind used at service stations. Employees go too far, put the signs, such as "mechanic on duty," out next to the street. "These signs cause us the most trouble," says Davis.

"Another was a cyclone fence," said Gates. "The owners had allowed vines to grow on it."

Mimosa trees — extra long limbs have a tendency to drop down into the street. Also weeping willows. Short, bushy pines.

Weeds, vines and flowers on front yard fences. Morning glory vines on utility poles.

NOT AS MANY

"In the newer areas, you won't find as many obstructions as in the older parts of Monroe," Gates commented.

"We know that blind corners do cause some serious accidents," says Davis. "Sometimes, you have to get out into the intersection to see if any traffic is coming. Drivers in small, compact cars have more trouble seeing out, and can be "blinded" easier.

"A driver will look as far as he is able to see. If he is inexperienced, he is more likely to take a chance at a blind corner."

After the major campaign is over, then what?

"The Lions will keep copies of the reports they made on "blind corners," says McDonald. "We will follow up, from time to time, and check to make sure that the obstruction does not occur again."

Rome Presents An Unusual Study In Contrasts

Civilization piled upon dead civilization has raised the level of modern Rome, a city reborn many times from her own ashes. Rome is something different to almost everyone, reports a foreign correspondent, who explains his impressions of the 'eternal city.'

By BENNETT BOLTON

Yet when the sun sets she becomes an old woman hunched in damp shadows, the black Castelli Mountains pulled about her shoulders like a shawl.

Her name is Rome, the Eternal City, a creature constantly born and re-born from her own ashes like the Phoenix, midwife of civilizations, prize of many armies.

Rome is also a hive of bureaucrats and rubber-stamp clerks, and is a somewhat tarnished antique.

DIFFERENT VIEWS

She is something different to almost everyone. To me, her greatest effect is to give a sense of humility in the face of her timelessness.

I walk away from busy pizzas, down narrow cobblestoned streets where the day's wash flaps from windowsills, and realize that the dust under my feet is the dust of a hundred generations.

Standing in the broken ruins of a forum, I begin to count decades by the inch-because civilization piled upon dead civilization has raised the level of modern Rome 20 feet above my head.

This magnificent city provides completely new delights every day.

I have climbed the rim of the Janiculum just before sunrise to where my apartment hangs on a hillside. Birds, drowned out by noonday's maddening traffic roar, trill and chirp in the unaccustomed silence.

Rome below is asleep under a misty blanket. The city's crumbling walls, brown by day, are a ghostly gray. They encircle roughly two million inhabitants-the same number that dwelled within the walls 20 centuries ago.

GARDENED TERRACE

I have sat in the gardened terrace of a roadside cafe high in the Alban Hills, Rome shimmering distantly on the other side of Lake Albano. Just above the blinding western horizon there suddenly appeared a tiny freighter-and I realized that the dazzling band of light on the horizon was the Tyrrhenian Sea, 20 miles away.

Nothing can match Rome for her contrasts. Moments after leaving the Via Veneto, epitome of European urbanity with its night clubs and luxury hotels, I drive past a section of hollowed rock with rusted bars that once caged eagles, the symbols of imperial Rome's glory.

I can buy the Western world's choicest goods at the highest prices in the most glamorous shops. Or I can stroll the Tiber's bank through the bustling Flea Market, where "caveat emptor" let the buyer beware of rules, and strike a bargain in stolen altar candlesticks - if so inclined - or "guaranteed" shirts that shrink three sizes when washed.

Republican Opposition

Enthusiastic supporters of the big increase in Republican activity in the south sometimes object when a newsman writes that a candidate in the Democratic party "has no opposition."

In some parts of the south Republican efforts at primary time are such a new part of politics and have attracted so much interest among newcomers to the party that there is some misunderstanding.

In the primary elections, there is no opposition between Republican and Democratic candidates. This opposition will come in the general elections in November.

In the Democratic primary election only another Democrat seeking the same nomination interests a candidate for Democratic party support, in theory. In actual practice, however, there is considerable interest in how many persons who have long supported the Democratic candidates will give up a vote on who is nominated for senator by the Democrats in order to take part in choosing the Republican nominee. Perhaps in Louisiana there will not be many changeovers for the primary but there is increasing interest in voting for the Republican candidates in the general elections.

One thing that tends to retard the development of strong Republican organizations in the southern states is the opposition within the party itself. This is a struggle for long - time Republicans whose members are few and the numerous persons who voted for former President Eisenhower or have decided that the place for a conservative to make his weight felt in national affairs is in the Republican party, or have come to the conclusion that the south has shortchanged itself in Washington by refusing the two-party methods adopted in other regions.

The old-line Republicans are really being short-sighted in their opposition to newcomers in the party. If a strong Republican party could be developed in the south it is certain that most of the old-time Republican leaders would be able to accomplish more and to wield more influence than they have in the past. It should be clear to these old-timers, as well as to everyone else, that no party can grow without newcomers and that no small party which refuses to grow can ever amount to much of anything.

Southern newspapers for many years have called attention to one-party handicaps. This has carried considerable weight in the campaign to build up the party but undoubtedly greater success would have been attained if it had not been for the opposition of the old-timers. It is time for them to welcome the newcomers and to work with them.

The candidacies of Republicans in the south are now at least giving the voters a one-two look. Registered Democrats who vote for Democratic candidates in the primaries or Republicans who vote for their own party members in the primaries are not bound by law in most states to vote for their party nominee. The general election is a new deal and everyone can vote for the candidate he believes, at that time, to be the best man for the office.

Elderly Often Prosperous

Aged and disabled residents of Louisiana may be more fortunate than the people of some other states in being guaranteed that they will receive adequate medical care and the necessities of life but a news service points out that aged people generally are far better off than political sychophants seem to think.

Many believe, for instance, that most elderly people lack any economic protection if illness strikes. The truth is that 53 per cent of all persons over 65 years of age have health insurance of some kind, that this group is buying insurance faster than any other group and by 1965 more than 75 per cent of the aged who want coverage will have it.

Many also believe that most elderly people are sorely lacking in financial resources. The truth is that the economic status of those past 65 is, in many respects, better than that of any other age group. For example, compared with any other age group, more of the elderly own their homes free of mortgage, have lower tax liabilities, higher liquid assets and fewer family responsibilities.

This is not an argument against providing for those who need it. The Kerr-Mills law is designed to do that, under a sound federal - state cooperative system.

It is an argument against providing aid in shotgun fashion to all the people in one age category whether they need it or not and whether or not they want to pay for it in higher taxes. This is precisely what the social security approach would do - - at a potentially astronomical cost - - and we are fortunate that congress saw fit to defeat the administration's medicare bill.

Killing Two Birds

Two of the biggest problems with which the world as a whole is confronted are an exploding population and alcoholism. Now Dr. Carl Heller, endocrinologist at the Pacific Northwest Foundation, has developed a compound which might be a partial answer to both. It limits masculine productivity and acts as an alcohol deterrent similar to antabuse.

Dr. Heller says the drug could be an immediate answer for nations with a desperate need to control their populations and which don't consume alcohol.

India and China particularly have often been cited as nations with populations so great that the task of feeding them is almost impossible. Dr. Heller says the Indian government is interested in settling up a pilot study.

It was pointed out that the compound has the same dangerous reaction to alcohol that is found in antabuse. Those taking it would have to refrain from alcoholic drinks.

Currently there are three pronounced views on the question of limiting population. One is that eventually the world will reach a stage of "standing room only" unless the population is limited. A second is that space exploration may provide plenty of additional inhabitable planets. A third is that necessity is the mother of invention and that people will develop mentally enough to meet whatever problems confront them, regardless of population growth.

The United States consumes about 270,000,000,000 gallons of water every day.

The "dog days," the hottest part of the summer, are so called because Sirius, the Dog Star, rises with the sun at that time.. Ancient peoples thought it intensified the heat of the sun.

The population of the United States is growing at a decreasing rate. The population increase during 1956 was 3,058,000 but only 2,978,000 in 1961.

Polar bears have a special eyelid that protects them from the glare of the sun on Arctic ice.

The word "hurricane," or "huracan," means "big wind" in the language of the Carib Indians of the West Indies.

Selling Down River

Monroe, La.

To the Editor:

I recently wrote Senator Russell Long on a matter regarding primaries and this article in Wednesday's News-Star revives the matter.

Due to the fact that there are some who do not subscribe to many of the ideas of the Democratic party and are registered as Republicans, States Righters or Independents, we cannot vote in such primaries. No matter how good a citizen one may try to be, he can only be a citizen once each two or four years, according to such a procedure. Just why this is the case is a thing long lost and dusty in the past. Among people who care to use their heads once in a while, such a system should be cast aside and let the people, as a community, not any political party, make their choice in a general primary. This is the only fair way to elect one who is really the "people's choice"

I have received letters and stickers from Russell Long, cards from both the candidates for judge as well as being acquainted with a few of the others running for office. I cannot vote for any of them, just because I am not a registered Democrat.

I have just as good reasons for not being a member of the Democrat party as any one has who is, yet some of these candidates might wish my vote in a primary and just might need it. Federal judges allow Negroes to vote in this primary, yet one who is not a member of a certain group cannot help elect some one of his acquaintances to even a run-off. However, I will not give up any of my ideals or ideas, in order to belong to any group.

I am somewhat interested in America, not as just one of the "states" of the United Nations, but as the land of my birth, the once great home of patriots, which, by the acts of a so-called state department, is about to be sold down the river to communism. In case any doubts arise, I have here before me, received yesterday from United States Government Printing Office, a booklet, "Freedom From WAR", "The United States Program for General and Complete Disarmament in a Peaceful World." Remember those last four words — "In a peaceful world." That from the State Department, when we have been at war for years. The issue is there, and it is all worked out — by our state department!!!!

Who Talks Too Much?

Alexandria, La.

To the Editor:

Who says women talk too much? Rep. Catherine St. George of N. Y. on the floor of the House July 13, proved that women can say quite a lot in a few words. At page 12573 of the Congressional Record for that day there is recorded her significant remarks:

"Mrs. St. George: 'Mr. Speaker, in case some of us do not know exactly what we did yesterday, I was delighted to see the whole matter made very clear this morning in the Washington Post by a screaming headline on the front page which said: "President Voted Power to Aid Reds."

" 'Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.' "

In passing, we'd like to say it's time that most of our representatives in Washington yield back the balance of their time and let some real patriots have a chance up there if we're to survive.

Says Editorial Best Yet

West Monroe, La.

To the Editor:

Your editorial in Monday's Morning World entitled COURT DESERVES REBUKE is the best yet. Certainly, we need more patriots who will defend our basic freedoms, which used to be interpreted in our history books as, "Freedom to worship God according to the dictates of our own conscience."

We also have enjoyed Senator Goldwater's column, which has consistently upheld America's heritage of faith in God.

'Clowns' Active

He is mustering all the military and diplomatic help that Katanga officials can find to oppose new efforts by Acting UN Secretary-General U Thant to bring his secession from the Congo to an end.

Already, Tshombe has opened secret negotiations with Portugal's President Salazar for a mutual assistance pact that would forge a military and diplomatic link between Katanga and Angola, Portugal's strife - ridden African colony.

According to a U.S. Intelligence report on these talks, Tshombe is offering hard - pressed Portugal a large amount of emergency financial aid and trade in exchange for military arms.

Also, Tshombe is proposing that they join in using their influence in Europe to oppose any new move in the United Nations this fall to impose economic sanctions against either Katanga or Portugal.

To finance this diplomatic offensive, Tshombe has promised to spend "millions of dollars" on a worldwide public relations campaign to convince UN members that the world body should change its policies toward Katanga and Angola.

Specifically, Tshombe wants the UN Security Council to stop pressuring him to join the central Congolese government under the terms of Premier Cyrille Adoula.

Instead, he hopes his campaign will convince a majority of UN members that his government should be allowed to work out a political settlement with Adoula based on Katanga's retaining considerable autonomy in a new Congo federation.

The U.S. Intelligence estimate indicates that President Salazar is planning to accept Tshombe's proposal. It points out that diplomatic and military advisers of both Presidents are now discussing the details of how to organize the aid exchange.

READY TO ROAR — U.S. diplomatic officials, while opposed to Katanga's secessionist policies, are convinced that Tshombe isn't bluffing about fighting, and that he has plenty of money to carry out his intriguing international maneuvers.

At present his "secessionist" government receives $56 million a year in taxes from the mining operations of Union Miniere du Haut-Katanga, which has vast holdings in Katanga and controls the Congo's prime resources — copper, zinc, and cobalt.

Tshombe is indicating that he is ready to spend it all to block new UN intervention. Through the huge mining company's financial backers in Europe, Tshombe is exerting influence on the Congo policy of Belgium, France and Great Britain.

State Department officials are crediting Britain's sudden change of policy last week to this European financial influence. The Earl of Home, Britain's Foreign Secretary, told Secretary of State Rusk that Britain would not participate in economic sanctions against Katanga, as sought by the U.S. This proposal was drafted by U.S. Ambassador Edmund Gullion, the State Department's chief policy-maker on Congo affairs.

In light of the British policy switch and the other developments Secretary Rusk is now reviewing U.S. Congo policy. He has summoned Ambassador Gullion from Leopoldville for emergency consultations.

STRAWS IN THE WIND—Meanwhile, Tshombe has notified Michel Struelens, his unofficial consular in the U.S., that he is ready to pump another $100,000 into his Katanga Information Service to get across "Katanga's story" in the U.S.

Tshombe's message followed a report from Struelens that he was convinced that the UN's financial difficulties barred new military action by its international forces in the Congo. The Katanga "lobbyist" reported there was even hope that the State Department would begin easing its policy toward Tshombe.

Struelens' optimisn isn't shared by key members of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee who are in daily contact with the highest State Department officials on the worsening Congo situation.

They report that these officials have been working closely with the Committee's staff to make Struelens' U.S. activities for Tshombe a major target in next month's public hearings on the opeations of foreign agents in the U.S.

THE ALMANAC

By United Press International

Today is Sunday, July 29, the 210th day of 1962 with 155 to follow.

The moon is approaching its new phase.

The morning stars are Mars, Jupiter and Saturn.

The evening stars are Venus and Saturn.

On this day in history:

In 1914, a successful telephone conversation between New York City and San Francisco heralded the construction of the first transcontinental telephone line in the United States.

In 1945, the Communist party in the United States ousted Earl Browder as its chief and named William Z. Foster as his successor.

In 1960, Vice President Richard M. Nixon delivered his acceptance speech to the Republican national convention in Chicago for the GOP Presidential nomination.

A thought for the day: Samuel Johnson, the English writer, said: "I look upon every day to be lost in which I do not make a new acquaintance."

Kennedy's Wrath

Advisers Debating Whether He Should Make South Speeches

Now the President's political advisors, a rather baffled group at the moment are debating whether his proposed stumping tour to rally the voters behind him and his program, shall include one or more swings into the South.

That question will be answered in the affirmative, most everyone outside the White House believes, if the trip includes the dozen or more speeches now under discussion. In a sense, it would be an invasion of enemy territory; of the 21 Democratic Senators from Southern states, only four backed the President on medicare (including two from Tennessee.)

The other 17, including some of the most powerful members of the Senate, voted against him and for their opposition were heatedly described by the President as "a handful of Democrats."

His advisors are understood to have raised two principal questions: It would be courageous to challenge his foes on their own grounds, but what would be gained by it? Would he be able to rally enough support in the South for his program, including medicare, to reverse the trend against him among Southerners in House as well as Senate?

It is recognized that the President's main objective is to elect a Congress which will support his New Frontier program. He seeks on one hand to increase the present Democratic majorities and on the other to "put the heat on" Democrats seeking reelection, but who have not been among his top supporters on roll calls.

He will also be angling to elect pro-Kennedy Democrats to new House seats in California (8) Arizona, Hawaii, Michigan, Ohio, Maryland (one each) and Florida (4). The one in Texas is conservative and already committed against measures which the Administration advocates.

The President's drive to convert Congress to his way of thinking will not be based on the issue of medicare alone. President Kennedy has learned to his surprise and chagrin that he can depend on few Republicans to vote with him and not enough Democrats to support him on the New Frontier program to which he pledged himself. In addition he has seen the Republican leaders in both houses hold their minority groups firmly in opposition on major roll calls.

A further discouraging factor is the decline in his once overwhelming popularity according to various well regarded public opinion polls.

All this constitutes a challenge to the Kennedy breed. But past experience has indicated that it also calls for caution. Other presidents have gone to the country on the same mission — to swing Congress to their support — and have been rudely rebuffed. Franklin D. Roosevelt, Truman and Eisenhower had that experience. Roosevelt went South in an attempt to defeat Senator Walter F. George of Georgia, whose power is in the Senate was comparable to that of some of the Senators who rebuffed Kennedy on medicare. He found the door shut in his face. That also happened to Roosevelt in the case of Tydings of Maryland, Smith of South Carolina, McCarran of Nevada and others.

In numerous instances, local state leaders would prefer that the President stay out of their dooryard. That is particularly true where they are in disagreement with him on national issues. During campaigns, politics is a local matter, and since the President this year is not a candidate for anything, many important political figures would as soon be left their states off his itineracry.

He would not lack for large audiences, and some of his advisors make a point of this, arguing that the main purpose of a stumping tour is to rebuild the popularity he once enjoyed. To do that they contend, a President has to keep in personal touch with the voters.

In the South, Democrats will be elected without question in all but a very few districts. But the 81 electoral votes he gathered in that area enabled him barely to win in 1960, and their popular votes gave him enough to scrape through by a 119,000 vote plurality over Richard M. Nixon, though he was shy of a majority of all votes cast.

Where he will speak or when has not been suggested thus far, but there is conviction here that President Kennedy cannot ignore the South this year, even though he feels that he has been slapped by its Representatives in Congress. He's looking forward to 1964 and he will need those electoral votes next time, probably just as much as he did last.

How Do You Stand, Sir?

By BARRY GOLDWATER

U. S. Senator From Arizona

Loas is the strategic key to Southeast Asia, and we are handing that key to the Communists without a struggle.

I believe too many of us in America think of Laos only as a faraway place which is strangely indefensible and largely unimportant. Somehow we have been led to feel that if a line is to be drawn, it should not be drawn to include Laos and that its defense would be politically mistaken and tactically impossible.

After reading a complete analysis of the Laos situation prepared by Brig. Gen. Rothwell Brown, I am inclined to question these assumptions.

I believe we have failed to look at Laos in its proper perspective, giving full weight to its geographic location and its relation to the defense of Southeast Asia. I believe we have dealt with Laos as an isolated area somehow divorced from international politics.

Rothwell Brown is not just another retired general. He is a military man of proven capability who knows intimately and accurately conditions as they exist in Laos and Southeast Asia. He was chief of the Programs Evaluation Office of the U. S. Operations Mission in Laos from 1956 to 1959. Shortly before going to Laos, he served in South Viet-Nam as deputy chief of our Military Assistance and Advisory Group.

General Brown also knows what it is to fight in Southeast Asia, having served with the forces under Gen. Joseph Stillwell against Japanese in northern Burma during World War II.

In his analysis, General Brown points out that the French failed in their defense of Indo China, because they tried to defend not the strategic passes into the great Red River Valley, but the difficult lowlands and the delta areas. The failure of this strategy was symbolized at Dien Bien Phu where, as General Brown notes, "the French tried to hold the bottom of the soup bowl and gave up to the enemy the great mountain ring along their defensive position."

We are ready to repeat the tragic errors already written in the French story if we adopt the idea that Southeast Asia can be defended from the lowlands of Thailand.

And there is another parallel with those years of French disaster. What the French had lost through their poor military stategy was ratified politically at Geneva in 1954. The accords reached at that time consigned the strategic mountain barrier to the north of the Red River to the Communists. We can duplicate these mistakes by our encouragement of a coalition with the Communists in Laos.

As General Brown notes, there is a second mountain barrier to the Red River which runs along the northern boundary of Laos. By our support of the Laos coalition, we have devised the political means for losing this second natural barrier against the spread of communism. One day we, who were so critical of the ill-fated French strategy, may find ourselves trying to defend Southeast Asia from the lowlands after having given the enemy the key high ground.

I shall deal further with the Laos coalition as it affects our strategy in Southeast Asia in my next column. But here I should like to underscore the military aspect of the problem we face in Laos by quoting the following passage from General Brown's analysis:

"A glance at any relief map in any good atlas will show clearly that below the mountains of Laos and west of the mountains along the coast of Viet - Nam there lies a great alluvial plain capable of tremendous agricultural development, but certainly lacking in major military defense positions. Therefore, it is quite clear that once the mountain barrier is breached, the problem of defending the heartland of Southeast Asia becomes exceedingly difficult.

"The strategic importance of Laos, therefore, lies not in its industry, which is non - existent, not in its material resources, not in its people, but purely in its geographical location and in the defensive nature of its mountains and its jungles."

How do you stand, sir?

Republican Opposition

Enthusiastic supporters of the big increase in Republican activity in the south sometimes object when a newsman writes that a candidate in the Democratic party "has no opposition."

In some parts of the south Republican efforts at primary time are such a new part of politics and have attracted so much interest among newcomers to the party that there is some misunderstanding.

In the primary elections, there is no opposition between Republican and Democratic candidates. This opposition will come in the general elections in November.

In the Democratic primary election only another Democrat seeking the same nomination interests a candidate for Democratic party support, in theory. In actual practice, however, there is considerable interest in how many persons who have long supported the Democratic candidates will give up a vote on who is nominated for senator by the Democrats in order to take part in choosing the Republican nominee. Perhaps in Louisiana there will not be many changeovers for the primary but there is increasing interest in voting for the Republican candidates in the general elections.

One thing that tends to retard the development of strong Republican organizations in the southern states is the opposition within the party itself. This is a struggle for long - time Republicans whose members are few and the numerous persons who voted for former President Eisenhower or have decided that the place for a conservative to make his weight felt in national affairs is in the Republican party, or have come to the conclusion that the south has shortchanged itself in Washington by refusing the two-party methods adopted in other regions.

The old-line Republicans are really being short-sighted in their opposition to newcomers in the party. If a strong Republican party could be developed in the south it is certain that most of the old-time Republican leaders would be able to accomplish more and to wield more influence than they have in the past. It should be clear to these old-timers, as well as to everyone else, that no party can grow without newcomers and that no small party which refuses to grow can ever amount to much of anything.

Southern newspapers for many years have called attention to one-party handicaps. This has carried considerable weight in the campaign to build up the party but undoubtedly greater success would have been attained if it had not been for the opposition of the old-timers. It is time for them to welcome the newcomers and to work with them.

The candidacies of Republicans in the south are now at least giving the voters a one-two look. Registered Democrats who vote for Democratic candidates in the primaries or Republicans who vote for their own party members in the primaries are not bound by law in most states to vote for their party nominee. The general election is a new deal and everyone can vote for the candidate he believes, at that time, to be the best man for the office.

Elderly Often Prosperous

Aged and disabled residents of Louisiana may be more fortunate than the people of some other states in being guaranteed that they will receive adequate medical care and the necessities of life but a news service points out that aged people generally are far better off than political sychophants seem to think.

Many believe, for instance, that most elderly people lack any economic protection if illness strikes. The truth is that 53 per cent of all persons over 65 years of age have health insurance of some kind, that this group is buying insurance faster than any other group and by 1965 more than 75 per cent of the aged who want coverage will have it.

Many also believe that most elderly people are sorely lacking in financial resources. The truth is that the economic status of those past 65 is, in many respects, better than that of any other age group. For example, compared with any other age group, more of the elderly own their homes free of mortgage, have lower tax liabilities, higher liquid assets and fewer family responsibilities.

This is not an argument against providing for those who need it. The Kerr-Mills law is designed to do that, under a sound federal - state cooperative system.

It is an argument against providing aid in shotgun fashion to all the people in one age category whether they need it or not and whether or not they want to pay for it in higher taxes. This is precisely what the social security approach would do - - at a potentially astronomical cost - - and we are fortunate that congress saw fit to defeat the administration's medicare bill.

Killing Two Birds

Two of the biggest problems with which the world as a whole is confronted are an exploding population and alcoholism. Now Dr. Carl Heller, endocrinologist at the Pacific Northwest Foundation, has developed a compound which might be a partial answer to both. It limits masculine productivity and acts as an alcohol deterrent similar to antabuse.

Dr. Heller says the drug could be an immediate answer for nations with a desperate need to control their populations and which don't consume alcohol.

India and China particularly have often been cited as nations with populations so great that the task of feeding them is almost impossible. Dr. Heller says the Indian government is interested in setting up a pilot study.

It was pointed out that the compound has the same dangerous reaction to alcohol that is found in antabuse. Those taking it would have to refrain from alcoholic drinks.

Currently there are three pronounced views on the question of limiting population. One is that eventually the world will reach a stage of "standing room only" unless the population is limited. A second is that space exploration may provide plenty of additional inhabitable planets. A third is that necessity is the mother of invention and that people will develop mentally enough to meet whatever problems confront them, regardless of population growth.

The United States consumes about 270,000,000,000 gallons of water every day.

The "dog days," the hottest part of the summer, are so called because Sirius, the Dog Star, rises with the sun at that time.. Ancient peoples thought it intensified the heat of the sun.

The population of the United States is growing at a decreasing rate. The population increase during 1956 was 3,058,000 but only 2,978,000 in 1961.

Polar bears have a special eyelid that protects them from the glare of the sun on Arctic ice.

Selling Down River

Monroe, La

To the Editor

I recently wrote Senator Russell Long on a matter regarding primaries and this article in Wednesday's News-Star revives the matter

Due to the fact that there are some who do not subscribe to many of the ideas of the Democratic party and are registered as Republicans, States Righters or Independents, we cannot vote in such primaries. No matter how good a citizen one may try to be, he can only be a citizen once each two or four years, according to such a procedure. Just why this is the case is a thing long lost and dusty in the past. Among people who care to use their heads once in a while, such a system should be cast aside and let the people, as a community, no' any political party, make their choice in a general primary. This is the only fair way to elect one who is really the "people's choice"

I have received letters and stickers from Russell Long, cards from both the candidates for judge as well as being acquainted with a few of the others running for office. I cannot vote for any of them, just because I am not a registered Democrat

I have just as good reasons for not being a member of the Democrat party as any one has who is, yet some of these candidates might wish my vote in a primary and just might need it. Federal judges allow Negroes to vote in this primary, yet one who is not a member of a certain group cannot help elect some one of his acquaintances to even a run-off. However, I will not give up any of my ideals or ideas, in order to belong to any group

I am somewhat interested in America, not as just one of the "states" of the United Nations, but as the land of my birth, the once great home of patriots, which, by the acts of a so-called state department, is about to be sold down the river to communism. In case any doubts arise, I have here before me, received yesterday from United States Government Printing Office, a booklet, "Freedom From WAR", "The United States Program for General and Complete Disarmament in a Peaceful World" Remember those last four words. In a peaceful world. That from the State Department, when we have been at war for years. The issue is there, and it is all worked out — by our state department!!!!

To the Editor

Who says women talk too much? Rep Catherine St George of N Y on the floor of the House July 13, proved that women can say quite a lot in a few words. At page 12573 of the Congressional Record for that day there is recorded her significant remarks

"Mrs St George Mr Speaker, in case some of us do not know exactly what we did yesterday, I was delighted to see the whole matter made very clear this morning in the Washington Post by a screaming headline on the front page which said "President Voted Power to Aid Reds

"Mr Speaker I yield back the balance of my time"

In passing, we'd like to say it's time that most of our representatives in Washington yield back the balance of their time and let some real patriots have a chance up there if we're to survive

'Clowns' Active

He is mustering all the military and diplomatic help that Katanga officials can find to oppose new efforts by Acting UN Secretary-General U Thant to bring his secession from the Congo to an end

Already, Tshombe has opened secret negotiations with Portugal's President Salazar for a mutual assistance pact that would forge a military and diplomatic link between Katanga and Angola, Portugal's strife - ridden African colony

According to a U S Intelligence report on these talks, Tshombe is offering hard - pressed Portugal a large amount of emergency financial aid and trade in exchange for military arms

Also, Tshombe is proposing that they join in using their influence in Europe to oppose any new move in the United Nations this fall to impose economic sanctions against either Katanga or Portugal.

To finance this diplomatic offensive, Tshombe has promised to spend "millions of dollars" on a worldwide public relations campaign to convince UN members that the world body should change its policies toward Katanga and Angola

Specifically, Tshombe wants the UN Security Council to stop pressuring him to join the central Congolese government under the terms of Premier Cyrille Adoula

Instead, he hopes his campaign will convince a majority of UN members that his government should be allowed to work out a political settlement with Adoula based on Katanga's retaining considerable autonomy in a new Congo federation

The U.S. Intelligence estimate indicates that President Salazar is planning to accept Tshombe's proposal. It points out that diplomatic and military advisers of both Presidents are now discussing the details of how to organize the aid exchange.

READY TO ROAR — U.S. diplomatic officials, while opposed to Katanga's secessionist policies, are convinced that Tshombe isn't bluffing about fighting, and that he has plenty of money to carry out his intriguing international maneuvers.

At present his "secessionist" government receives $56 million a year in taxes from the mining operations of Union Miniere du Haut-Katanga, which has vast holdings in Katanga and controls the Congo's prime resources copper, zinc, and cobalt

Tshombe is indicating that he is ready to spend it all to block new UN intervention. Through the huge mining company's financial backers in Europe, Tshombe is exerting influence on the Congo policy of Belgium, France and Great Britain

State Department officials are crediting Britain's sudden change of policy last week to this European financial influence. The Earl of Home, Britain's Foreign Secretary, told Secretary of State Rusk that Britain would not participate in economic sanctions against Katanga, as sought by the U S. This proposal was drafted by U S Ambassador Edmund Gullion, the State Department's chief policy-maker on Congo affairs

In light of the British policy switch and the other developments Secretary Rusk is now reviewing U S Congo policy. He has summoned Ambassador Gullion from Leopoldville for emergency consultations

STRAWS IN THE WIND—Meanwhile, Tshombe has notified Michel Struelens, his unofficial consular in the U S., that he is ready to pump another $100,000 into his Katanga Information Service to get across "Katanga's story" in the U S.

Tshombe's message followed a report from Struelens that he was convinced that the UN's financial difficulties barred new military action by its international forces in the Congo. The Katanga "lobbyist" reported there was even hope that the State Department would begin easing its policy toward Tshombe.

Struelens' optimisn isn't shared by key members of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee who are in daily contact with the highest State Department officials on the worsening Congo situation.

They report that these officials have been working closely with the Committee's staff to make Struelens' U.S. activities for Tshombe a major target in next month's public hearings on the operations of foreign agents in the U.S.

Kennedy's Wrath

Advisers Debating Whether He Should Make South Speeches

Now the President's political advisors, a rather baffled group at the moment are debating whether his proposed stumping tour to rally the voters behind him and his program, shall include one or more swings into the South.

That question will be answered in the affirmative, most everyone outside the White House believes, if the trip includes the dozen or more speeches now under discussion. In a sense, it would be an invasion of enemy territory; of the 21 Democratic Senators from Southern states, only four backed the President on medicare (including two from Tennessee)

The other 17, including some of the most powerful members of the Senate, voted against him and for their opposition were heatedly described by the President as "a handful of Democrats"

His advisors are understood to have raised two principal questions. It would be courageous to challenge his foes on their own grounds, but what would be gained by it? Would he be able to rally enough support in the South for his program, including medicare, to reverse the trend against him among Southerners in House as well as Senate?

It is recognized that the President's main objective is to elect a Congress which will support his New Frontier program. He seeks on one hand to increase the present Democratic majorities and on the other to "put the heat on" Democrats seeking reelection, but who have not been among his top supporters on roll calls

He will also be angling to elect pro-Kennedy Democrats to new House seats in California (8) Arizona, Hawaii, Michigan, Ohio, Maryland (one each) and Florida (4). The one in Texas is conservative and already committed against measures which the Administration advocates

The President's drive to convert Congress to his way of thinking will not be based on the issue of medicare alone. President Kennedy has learned to his surprise and chagrin that he can depend on few Republicans to vote with him and not enough Democrats to support him on the New Frontier program to which he pledged himself. In addition he has seen the Republican leaders in both houses hold their minority groups firmly in opposition on major roll calls

A further discouraging factor is the decline in his once overwhelming popularity according to various well regarded public opinion polls.

All this constitutes a challenge to the Kennedy breed. But past experience has indicated that it also calls for caution. Other presidents have gone to the country on the same mission — to swing Congress to their support — and have been rudely rebuffed. Franklin D. Roosevelt, Truman and Eisenhower had that experience. Roosevelt went South in an attempt to defeat Senator Walter F George of Georgia, whose power is in the Senate was comparable to that of some of the Senators who rebuffed Kennedy on medicare. He found the door shut in his face. That also happened to Roosevelt in the case of Tydings of Maryland, Smith of South Carolina, McCarran of Nevada and others.

In numerous instances, local state leaders would prefer that the President stay out of their dooryard. That is particularly true where they are in disagreement with him on national issues. During campaigns, politics is a local matter, and since the President this year is not a candidate for anything, many important political figures would as soon be left their states off his itineracry

He would not lack for large audiences, and some of his advisors make a point of this, arguing that the main purpose of a stumping tour is to rebuild the popularity he once enjoyed. To do that they contend, a President has to keep in personal touch with the voters

In the South Democrats will be elected without question in all but a very few districts. But the 81 electoral votes he gathered in that area enabled him barely to win in 1960, and their popular votes gave him enough to scrape through by a 119,000 vote plurality over Richard M Nixon, though he was shy of a majority of all votes cast

Where he will speak or when has not been suggested thus far, but there is conviction here that President Kennedy cannot ignore the South this year, even though he feels that he has been slapped by its Representatives in Congress. He's looking forward to 1964 and he will need those electoral votes next time, probably just as much as he did last

By BARRY GOLDWATER

U. S. Senator From Arizona

Laos is the strategic key to Southeast Asia and we are handing that key to the Communists without a struggle

I believe too many of us in America think of Laos only as a faraway place which is strangely indefensible and largely unimportant. Somehow we have been led to feel that if a line is to be drawn, it should not be drawn to include Laos and that its defense would be politically mistaken and tactically impossible

After reading a complete analysis of the Laos situation prepared by Brig Gen Rothwell Brown, I am inclined to question these assumptions

I believe we have failed to look at Laos in its proper perspective, giving full weight to its geographic location and its relation to the defense of Southeast Asia. I believe we have dealt with Laos as an isolated area somehow divorced from international politics

Rothwell Brown is not just another retired general. He is a military man of proven capability who knows intimately and accurately conditions as they exist in Laos and Southeast Asia. He was chief of the Programs Evaluation Office of the U S Operations Mission in Laos from 1956 to 1959. Shortly before going to Laos, he served in South Viet Nam as deputy chief of our Military Assistance and Advisory Group

General Brown also knows what it is to fight in Southeast Asia, having served with the forces under Gen. Joseph Stillwell against Japanese in northern Burma during World War II

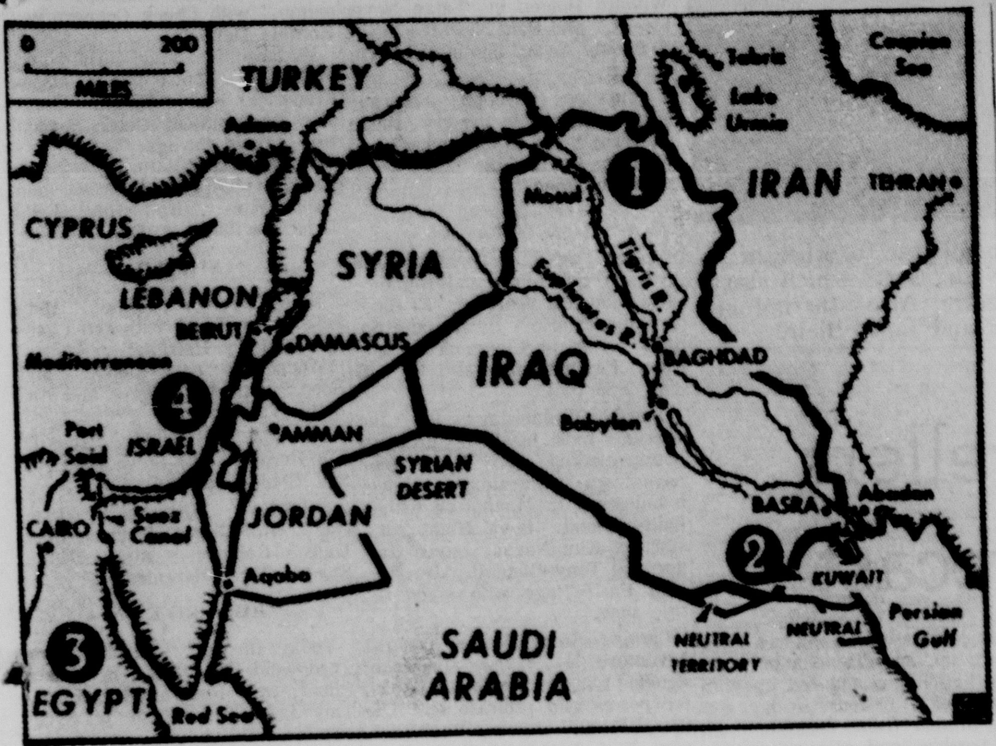
World Spotlight; A Look Behind the Headlines



MAP SHOWS the pieces in the juggling act being carried on by Iraq's strongman Abdel Karim Kassem as he tries to defy political gravity to keep control of the Arabic nation. The pieces, among other difficulties are: the rebellious Kurds who control much of the northern countryside (1); the oil rich sheikdom of Kuwait (2) which Kasser claims for Iraq; Egypt (3) and its President Nasser and the Arab League, and Israel (4). (AP Wirephoto Map)

IN TROUBLED IRAQ

Kassem's Days Could Be Numbered By Rebellion

BAGHDAD, Iraq. (AP) — In sweltering Iraq, diplomats mop their brows and wonder how long strongman Abdel Karim Kassem can defy political gravity and maintain control of this historic land that sweeps up from the Persian Gulf.

With guns or words, Kassem is fighting a Kurdish revolt, imperialism, the Arab League, the Western-owned Iraq Petroleum Co., Kuwait, Egypt's President Nasser and Israel.

Four years ago Kassem overthrew King Feisal and turned street mobs loose to dismember Premier Nuri Es Said. Now his uneven smile gleams from portraits everywhere. A visitor counted 18 in Kassem's own reception room.

He drives through the streets in a bullet-proof sand-yellow Cadillac. Increasingly he depends on police state measures at home and Moscow abroad. He caters to his army with housing schemes and Russian weapons.

He has tried to woo the peasants with land reform—but the scheme is only beginning to feebly right itself after two years. Actual farm income has dropped and Iraq buys wheat abroad.

NO TRAVEL

It is accepted in Baghdad—despite Kassem's frequent contrary claims—that rebelling Kurds control much of the countryside in the north. No travel permits are issued for that area.

His claims against Kuwait in the south have alienated other Arab states and caused him to ask the recall of U.S. Ambassador John Jernegan after Washington recognized Kuwait's independence. Similar moves threaten to worsen Iraq's world standing. Kassem shows no sign of caring.

He points to a glass case holding the uniform he was wearing when he survived an assassin in 1959.

"You see," he explains. "I was spared by Allah to complete my task."

Despite the efforts of a minister of guidance and a controlled press, the citizens show a notable lack of enthusiasm for Kassem. He is apparently aware that the seven million people are not wholly on his side. When he staged a massive parade on the fourth anniversary of his revolution, a mile-square section was tightly cordoned to insure his safety.

Kassem governs largely through four trusted army cronies—the heads of military intelligence, military police, internal security and the army itself. He largely avoids his civilian ministers, but work is going ahead on a magnificent new Parliament building (started by the old regime). He has promised elections for 1963.

Although the police state regime makes the population restive, economic problems are likely to prove more troublesome in the long run. In concentrating on survival, Kassem has allowed the economy to stagnate, despite a massive income from oil.

Inflation is creeping in and the cost of living is going up.

The Soviet bloc has given him about $230 million in credits for his 5-year industrial plan, ending in 1966. It includes factories that will help the economy marginally while committing Kassem to Moscow for spare parts, technicians and further financing.

He must also pay back to Moscow some $400 million in military credits — for which he has received a vast stock of tanks, trucks and artillery plus a jet air force that lacks the MIG21 that Nasser has.

Kassem leans heavily on $250 million he receives annually in oil revenues. This sum also must serve his domestic economy and help pay the $100-million defense budget at home.

Priest Leads Fight Against Brazil Reds

RECIFE, Brazil (AP) — The Roman Catholic priest who originated the slogan, "The family that prays together stays together" is bringing a crusade to Brazil's Communist-ridden poverty-stricken Northeast area.

The Rev. Patrick Peyton's "Family Prayer Crusade" will start Aug. 15 amid a heated parliamentary election campaign. Communists in the area are seeking to pick up parliamentary strength by basing their campaigns on the misery among the Northeast area's 22 million people.

"We are finding there are four classes of people in the Brazilian Northeast—rich, middle, poor and miserable," said a crusade advance man, the Rev. Joseph Quinn. "The majority of the people belong to the last."

Father Quinn said the Northeast appears the most difficult situation the priests will have encountered in their tour of 44 countries.

The aim of the crusade is to encourage better family life through daily family prayer sessions. Father Quinn said 82 Brazilian young men have been recruited to travel in pairs throughout the area.

THOMPSON TO COME HOME

Envoy Spent Five Years On Mission To Moscow

MOSCOW (AP) — Llewelyn E. Thompson is going home after a 5-year mission as U.S. ambassador to Moscow—the longest any top American diplomat has spent in the job since U.S.-Soviet relations started 29 years ago.

It also seems to have been the most successful, at least as far as personal relations with the Kremlin go.

"What a fine man!"

He absolved Thompson of any blame for Soviet-American crises like the U2 incident. At a reception, Khrushchev was overheard telling Thompson:

"I know you had nothing to do with it."

Thompson and his striking, husky-voiced wife Jane, were aces also with three other important groups—the diplomatic corps, the embassy staff and the press.

"You Americans have been very lucky," says a Western diplomat who has been here for years.

"You had George Kennan, then Chip (Charles E.) Bohlen and then Tommy. It's impossible to say which was the most brilliant."

INSPIRED

All three of them inspired the embassy staff to such a level that a former British ambassador, Sir William Hayter, wrote that the American mission was the best-informed in town.

Counting dependents and clerical staff, there are about 250 persons at the U.S. Embassy in Moscow. Most of them live in a compound on Tchaikovsky Boulevard.

With Russian suspicions of all American diplomats and a completely unrealistic exchange rate, their social life is pretty much restricted to entertaining each other and fellow diplomats.

They buy virtually all their food and other requirements at the embassy commissary. They have an embassy doctor, an American priest, garage, other service facilities and an American school.

The State Department would like to change all this but has not figured out how.

Thompson is going home in rather a pensive mood, but Mrs. Thompson is delighted.

"There are plenty of ambassadors, but he is the only husband I've got," she said recently. She wants her husband in some less trying job.

WANTED QUIET

But President Kennedy did not want him to leave until things were relatively quiet, especially about Berlin, for fear some allies might interpret the shift as a change in the U.S. position.

Like other top ambassadors here, Thompson reportedly anticipates a relatively quiet period in West-Soviet relations until after Khrushchev has had his August vacation and the Soviet Union has run off its new series of nuclear tests.

Then, general speculation in the diplomatic corps goes, there may be another crisis over Berlin about Oct. 1.

Thompson and the other ambassadors are concerned that Khrushchev may not take seriously enough the United States' expressed determination to remain in Berlin. Miscalculation on this could touch off a serious threat to peace, they feel.

As to Soviet developments in general, Thompson is guardedly optimistic.

Private conversations give the impression he feels that Russia has passed the point of no return as far as mass terror is concerned, and will inevitably have to devote more and more of its resources to increasing living standards. He is understood to feel that today's young people have lost the revolutionary fervor of their forebears and will be looking more and more to their own and their country's advantage.

An example was Khrushchev's putting the stamp of his approval on jazz by attending the Benny Goodman concert: It just didn't seem worthwhile to make the enormous effort it would take to wipe out youngsters' enthusiasm for this kind of music.

Thompson began his work here in the aftermath of Suez and the Hungarian revolution.

Gradually, the situation improved until Thompson arranged for Khrushchev to tour America—a trip he still thinks was very worthwhile.

Then came the U2 incident, the explosion of the Paris summit meeting and a series of Berlin crises.

Thompson's success, his colleagues believe, lay in the fact that he managed to keep the channels of communication open.

There was never a time during this period that the United States and the Soviet Union couldn't talk—even though they violently disagreed.

After a 3-week holiday in the ambassador's native Colorado, the family will settle in a house Thompson bought in Washington.

"It's the first house we've ever owned," he observed. "And I don't know where I got the nerve to buy it without Jane ever having seen it."

Inspection Team In Odd Assignment

NEW YORK (UPI)—Marion and Alden Stevens make their living looking under beds, testing drains and keeping ears cocked for sounds filtering through the walls of motels, hotels and inns.

They also inspect kitchens, search for empty beer cans in dresser and desk drawers—and run hands across the tops of door frames to see if the management's dusted lately.

They do even more seemingly strange things in the interest of getting the low-down on places you and other tourists might hang your hats some weary vacation night.

To help them inspect the places aiming for your patronage nationwide, the husband-wife team enlists other inspectors.

"But we don't send them out for a night's work without first training them," Alden Stevens said in an interview.

"You can see," Marion Stevens climbed, "it takes practice to be able to tell if a place is to have three stars or two or just one—or maybe none."

"A place with good air-conditioning, unplugged drains and sound-proof rooms might seem on the surface to rate two stars," she said. "But if the mattress is awful, we can't give it even one star."

MONEYMANSHIP

A few days ago I had the pleasure of hearing an official of a large U.S. corporation make an interesting and humorous talk to a civic club on the subject, "Moneymanship", which he defined as "the ability to lose money profitably without stealing it."

I'm sure I couldn't improve on that title "Moneymanship" and would not attempt to, but I want to discuss today "the ability to ACCUMULATE money profitably without stealing it."

Frequently, when I am talking with a prospective purchaser about life insurance as a means of saving money over a long period of time, I am confronted with the objection, "I can earn more interest on my money elsewhere."

The conversation that follows usually goes about like this:

"That's probably true, Mr. X, but let me ask you a question. Do you have all the money that you ever started out to save during your life?"

He usually chuckles and replies, "Of course not, who has?"

"Very few people. Now let me ask you another question. Have you ever cashed in a life insurance policy?"

"No, I never have."

"Then you do have all the money that you ever started to save THROUGH LIFE INSURANCE, is that correct?"

"Well, yes, I never thought about it that way, but I suppose I do."

"Then how can you object to the interest we're going to pay you when you don't even have the PRINCIPAL that you started out to save using other savings plans? We may not pay you as much interest, but at least you will be sure of having the principal you planned to save. Which would you rather be sure of?"

And by the way . . . which would YOU rather be sure of, Mr. Reader?

Mao Tze-Tung Seems To Be In Trouble

Great Leap Forward Plays Out

EDITOR'S NOTE — Few nations have stubbed their toes as disastrously as Mao's Red China in its "great leap forward. Yet despite afflictions of nature and the ruthless bungling of its cheerless government, Red China did not die. In fact it may be taking hesitant forward steps again. An expert on China tells why.

TOKYO (AP) — Mao Tze-tung, who has a poet's love of imagery, coined the phrase "a great leap forward" to describe Red China's 1958 surge toward the front ranks of industralization.

Today "the great leap forward" slogan has been quietly replaced by one of desperation. It is "Rescue food from the mouth of the dragon," the rallying cry of the Chinese peasant as he tries to wrest a good harvest from the reluctant land.

The malaise was reflected by Red troop movements in late June to coastal Fukien Province, facing the Nationalist-held off-shore islands of Quemoy and Matsu.

The movements, estimated at some 80,000 men, followed new predictions from Formosa of a Nationalist invasion of the mainland.

But Chiang Kai-shek's government has often made these declarations. Peiping, which dismissed them as propaganda in the past, now is jittery, a fact which indicates possible low morale, uncertainty and fear in a once-confident Red leadership.

Chairman of the Chinese Communist party Mao, now 68, dreamed four years ago of pushing his backward country from feudalism into the 20th century almost overnight.

He moved 500 million peasants out of agricultural cooperatives and put them in 26,000 farm communes, one of the greatest mass movements in human history.

Throughout his life of struggle, Mao had displayed a peculiar characteristic: infinite patience. He believed the Communist drop of water would in time wear away the stony fabric of Chinese society, transforming it to the image he cherished.

Not once, but many times, he had said to this writer that communism would be a slow, patient process for China, one in which controlled capitalism and agricultural cooperatives would exist for a long time.

Following this policy, the progress of the first eight years of communism had been steady and impressive. The countryside had yielded record crops, industry was beginning to emerge, the 48-hour week had been introduced for the laborer and the standard of existence had inched upward.

Suddenly, with bewildering speed, he tore up the blueprint gambled away all these gains on a single throw of the dice.

From the outset, his new plan ran into opposition—intellecutals, students, even members of the armed forces. One of them was his old crony, Marshal Peng Teh-Huai, later cashiered as defense minister and purged for his opposition.

Soviet Premier Khrushchev was appaled by Mao's commune plan. Khrushchev saw it as a latter-day viersion of the Soviet Union's own new economic plan KNEP of the '20s which resulted in the death of millions of land-owning kulaks, and made scars in Soviet agriculture that continue to plague the Soviet Union today. The quarrel has, over the years, deepened and festered.

Mao wanted results and he got them—or so it seemed. The farmers were set to work tilling their fields by day and working home-made iron blast furnaces by floodlight at night.

The official figures published for 1958 boasted of 375 millions tons of steel produced, 375 million tons of grain harvested.

The truth was bitterly different.

Harried cadres, anxious to prove the greatness of the plan, had exaggerated to falsified facts. Weary peasants, disillusioned by the loss of their lands, refused to work, abandoned their livestock. The pace had been killing, leaving worker and peasant exhausted and dispirited.

To cap it all, nature had struck with terrible destruction, flooding the lands, parching them with drought, denuding them with insect plagues.

Mao had no alternative but to admit that the 1958 figures were catastrophically wrong: only eight million tons of steel, only 250 million tons of grain.

To arrest the downhill plunge, Mao now ordered millions of city dwellers out of the factories and onto the farms, leaving the new industrial complexes silent, uninhabited shells—gaping monuments to a master plan that failed.

The struggle to recover from the shocks of 1958, 1959 and 1960 has proceeded in grim silence. No figures have been released to the Chinese or to the world.

But one thing is certain. Starvation, the bony enemy that communism had boasted of defeating, returned to plague the land.

The sinking spiral has been arrested, starvation apparently receded. But hunger, hard times and unemployment remain. The Communist leadership now admits that the healing process will be long and arduous.

New light has been thrown on actual conditions then and today, by Toshio Takano, a 44-year-old Japanese military policeman turned automobile mechanic. Returning to Japan in June with his Chinese wife and six children after 25 years on the mainland, he said in an interview whole villages died of starvation during the "great leap forward."

Though he was unable to confirm the figures, he said his Chinese associates spoke of "hundreds of thousands" of persons dying of hunger throughout the country.

A slender man who smiles through missing front teeth and complains of a liver ailment—one of the products of malnutrition—he recalled that up to 1957 "we could buy rice and clothing freely. Life was quite comfortable." His salary of 95 yuan—$39.50—a month was adequate for his then-small family.

As the great leap developed, Takano and the 400 mechanics and 600 truck drivers in his state-run plant at Chan Chiu in Honan Province, found themselves working 16 hours every day.

Rationing cut down the supply of food.

In 1958, communes were introduced in the cities. But in 1960 Takano was offered the chance to leave them. He and 70 per cent of the city's Chinese did, he said.

"We were unable to get our full rations," he said. "The cooks stole it."

Though Honan is a rice-producing area, he said he saw no rice for three years.

His family's food ration when he left was 18 kilograms of grain a month, including millet, sweet potatoes and 10 per cent wheat, an average of 2.2 kilograms—about 5 lbs.—per person. The World Health Organization reported in May that an average family in Asia eats 6.8 kilograms of rice per person per month.

His family was shoeless; the ration was 10 pairs for every 300 persons. To keep alive, he sold articles of clothing and other personal possessions.

But not everything in Mao's China is black. Public hygiene, he said, is better than under the nationalists. So are transportation, hospitalization—which is free—education and rents. He paid two yuan—less than a dollar—for two rooms and a kitchen without running water.

Public morality has improved, also, and there is less police brutality, less quarreling and almost no official corruption, Takano said.

The Chinese are aware, too, of the dispute with Khrushchev. His son's high school teacher told a student meeting that Khrushchev had become a revisionist, abandoning the Marxist road.

The non-Communist Chinese are dissatisfied with Communist rule.

But Takano said "the people are tightly controlled by the army and the police."

"Government officials, who, like the police and soldiers, get extra food rations, are satisfied. There is absolutely no possibility of a successful revolt against the government."

That they are not perhaps is due to the very controls which prevent the people from rising up and overthrowing the Communist regimes.

Mao created the controls during his exile days in Yenan. He called his system "democratic centralism," one which calls for strong individual leadership, absolute obedience and the exercise of supreme power by the ruling Central Committee.

Rank-and-file members of the 17 million-member Communist party can criticize superiors, arraign bureaucrats and have considerable autonomy in dealing with local problems.

The system has allowed Mao to mobilize huge masses of people for whatever project he envisions, whether it is "the great leap forward" and the communes, a vast anti-American hate campaign, or nationwide purges of "rightists."

Mao's system, made more flexible because of straitened circumstances, is at work today. He is applying it to heal the wounds created by the impetuous "great leap."

And though his popularity, Takano reports, is low among ordinary Chinese embittered by the distress of the past four years, he still is worshipped by the party faithful.

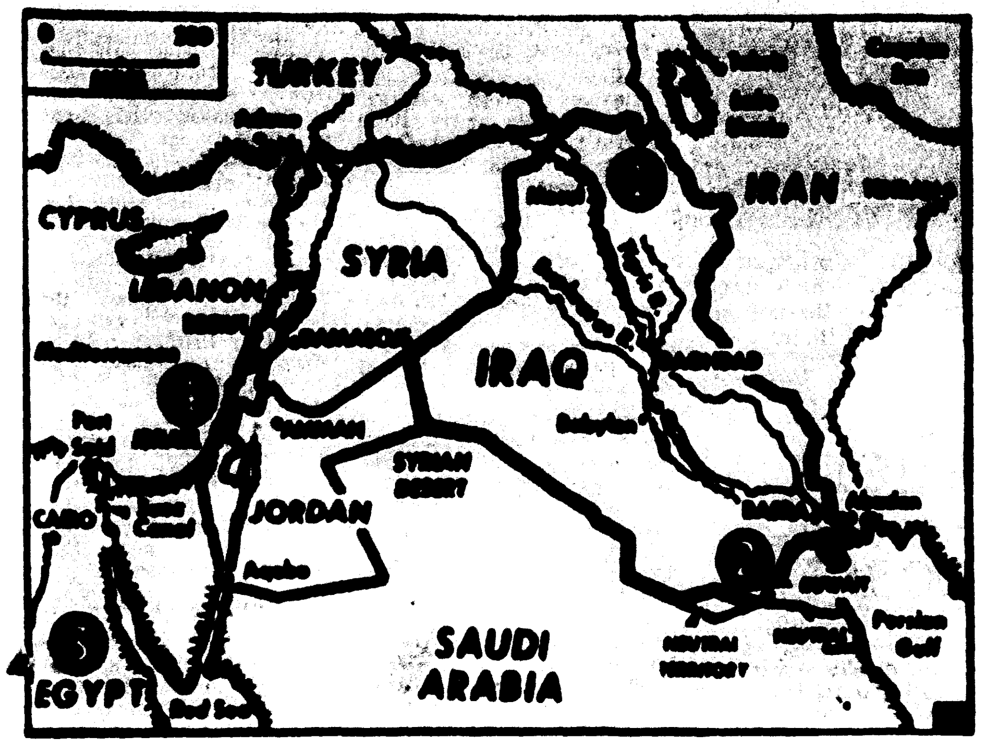
World Spotlight: A Look Behind the Headlines



MAP SHOWS the pieces in the juggling act being carried on by Iraq's strongman Abdel Karim Kassem as he tries to defy political gravity to keep control of the Arabic nation. The pieces, among other difficulties are: the rebellious Kurds who control much of the northern countryside (1); the oil rich sheikdom of Kuwait (2) which Kasser claims for Iraq; Egypt (3) and its President Nasser and the Arab League, and Israel (4). (AP Wirephoto Map)

IN TROUBLED IRAQ

Kassem's Days Could Be Numbered By Rebellion

BAGHDAD, Iraq (AP) — In sweltering Iraq, diplomats mop their brows and wonder how long strongman Abdel Karim Kassem can defy political gravity and maintain control of this historic land that sweeps up from the Persian Gulf.

With guns or words, Kassem is fighting a Kurdish revolt, imperialism, the Arab League, the western-owned Iraq Petroleum Co., Kuwait, Egypt's President Nasser and Israel.

Four years ago Kassem overthrew King Feisal and turned street mobs loose to dismember Premier Nuri Es Said. Now his uneven smile gleams from portraits everywhere. A visitor counted 18 in Kassem's own reception room.

He drives through the streets in a bullet-proof sand-yellow Cadillac. Increasingly he depends on police state measures at home and Moscow abroad. He caters to his army with housing schemes and Russian weapons.

He has tried to woo the peasants with land reform—but the scheme is only beginning to feebly right itself after two years. Actual farm income has dropped and Iraq buys wheat abroad.

NO TRAVEL

It is accepted in Baghdad—despite Kassem's frequent contrary claims—that rebelling Kurds control much of the countryside in the north. No travel permits are issued for that area.

His claims against Kuwait in the south have alienated other Arab states and caused him to ask the recall of U.S. Ambassador John Jernegan after Washington recognized Kuwait's independence. Similar moves threaten to worsen Iraq's world standing. Kassem shows no sign of caring.

He points to a glass case holding the uniform he was wearing when he survived an assassin in 1959.

"You see," he explains, "I was spared by Allah to complete my task."

Despite the efforts of a minister of guidance and a controlled press, the citizens show a notable lack of enthusiasm for Kassem. He is apparently aware that the seven million people are not wholly on his side. When he staged a massive parade on the fourth anniversary of his revolution, a mile-square section was tightly cordoned to insure his safety.

Kassem governs largely through four trusted army cronies—the heads of military intelligence, military police, internal security and the army itself. He largely avoids his civilian ministers, but work is going ahead on a magnificent new Parliament building (started by the old regime). He has promised elections for 1963.

Although the police state regime makes the population restive, economic problems are likely to prove more troublesome in the long run. In concentrating on survival, Kassem has allowed the economy to stagnate, despite a massive income from oil.

Inflation is creeping in and the cost of living is going up.

The Soviet bloc has given him about $230 million in credits for his 5-year industrial plan, ending in 1966. It includes factories that will help the economy marginally while committing Kassem to Moscow for spare parts, technicians and further financing.

He must also pay back to Moscow some $400 million in military credits — for which he has received a vast stock of tanks, trucks and artillery plus a jet air force that lacks the MIG21 that Nasser has.

Kassem leans heavily on $250 million he receives annually in oil revenues. This sum also must serve his domestic economy and help pay the $100-million defense budget at home.

Priest Leads Fight Against Brazil Reds

RECIFE, Brazil (AP) — The Roman Catholic priest who originated the slogan, "The family that prays together stays together" is bringing a crusade to Brazil's Communist-ridden poverty-stricken Northeast area.

The Rev. Patrick Peyton's "Family Prayer Crusade" will start Aug. 15 amid a heated parliamentary election campaign. Communists in the area are seeking to pick up parliamentary strength by basing their campaigns on the misery among the Northeast area's 22 million people.

"We are finding there are four classes of people in the Brazilian Northeast—rich, middle, poor and miserable," said a crusade advance man, the Rev. Joseph Quinn. "The majority of the people belong to the last."

Father Quinn said the Northeast appears the most difficult situation the priests will have encountered in their tour of 44 countries.

The aim of the crusade is to encourage better family life through daily family prayer sessions. Father Quinn said 82 Brazilian young men have been recruited to travel in pairs throughout the area.

THOMPSON TO COME HOME

Envoy Spent Five Years On Mission To Moscow

MOSCOW (AP) — Llewelyn E. Thompson is going home after a 5-year mission as U.S. ambassador to Moscow—the longest any top American diplomat has spent in the job since U.S.-Soviet relations started 29 years ago.

It also seems to have been the most successful, at least as far as personal relations with the Kremlin go.

"What a fine man!"

He absolved Thompson of any blame for Soviet-American crises like the U2 incident. At a reception, Khrushchev was overheard telling Thompson:

"I know you had nothing to do with it."

Thompson and his striking, husky-voiced wife Jane were aces also with three other important groups—the diplomatic corps, the embassy staff and the press.

"You Americans have been very lucky," says a Western diplomat who has been here for years.

His family's food ration when he left was 18 kilograms of grain a month, including millet, sweet potatoes and 10 per cent wheat, an average of 2.2 kilograms—about 5 lbs.—per person. The World Health Organization reported in May that an average family in Asia eats 6.8 kilograms of rice per person per month.

His family was shoeless; the ration was 10 pairs for every 300 persons. To keep alive, he sold articles of clothing and other personal possessions.

But not everything in Mao's China is black. Public hygiene, he said, is better than under the nationalists. So are transportation, hospitalization—which is free—education and rents. He paid two yuan—less than a dollar—for two rooms and a kitchen without running water.

Public morality has improved also, and there is less police brutality, less quarreling and almost no official corruption, Takano said.

The Chinese are aware, too, of the dispute with Khrushchev. His son's high school teacher told a student meeting that Khrushchev had become a revisionist, abandoning the Marxist road.

The non-Communist Chinese are dissatisfied with Communist rule.

But Takano said "the people are tightly controlled by the army and the police."

"Government officials, who, like the police and soldiers, get extra food rations, are satisfied. There is absolutely no possibility of a successful revolt against the government."

That they are not perhaps is due to the very controls which prevent the people from rising up and overthrowing the Communist regimes.

Mao created the controls during his exile days in Yenan. He called his system "democratic centralism," one which calls for strong individual leadership, absolute obedience and the exercise of supreme power by the ruling Central Committee.

Rank-and-file members of the 17 million-member Communist party can criticize superiors, arraign bureaucrats and have considerable autonomy in dealing with local problems.

The system has allowed Mao to mobilize huge masses of people for whatever project he envisions, whether it is "the great leap forward" and the communes, a vast anti-American hate campaign, or nationwide purges of "rightists."

Mao's system, made more flexible because of straitened circumstances, is at work today. He is applying it to heal the wounds created by the impetuous "great leap."

And though his popularity, Takano reports, is low among ordinary Chinese embittered by the distress of the past four years, he still is worshipped by the party faithful.

Many Needs Are Aired In Frigid Cast

By WARD T. SIMS

NOME, Alaska (AP) — Need some seal oil for dunking? How about an oogruk skin for mukluk soles?

You could get both, easily, with a few short lines on a unique radio program, KICY's "Ptarmigan Telegraph."

The program was designed primarily to knit more closely the people of Alaska's barren western and arctic coasts, which KICY claims as its listening area, from Point Hope to Unimak.

For the most part, the messages station manager Lloyd Sundstrom airs on the nightly 15-minute show are between individuals living along the coast or on the isolated islands offshore. Little Diomede, King, St. Lawrence and the Pribilofs.

The messages also include official notes from state or federal agencies to individuals or villages far removed from the meager lines of communication which serve western Alaska.

OOGRUK

To digress for a moment, seal oil is the universal dunk in Eskimoland. An oogruk is a bearded seal and mukluks are the fur and skin shoes of the arctic and sub-arctic. Oogruk skins give mukluks a non-skid sole, even on glare ice.

That seal oil is a necessity for Eskimos living even in a relatively modern city such as Nome is borne out by this recent message on "Ptarmigan Telegraph" from Ben Herman of Nome to Harry Kokrok of Shishmaref: "I received the seal oil today. I send you the money. God bless you all."

Or, this message from James Iyapanna of Nome to John Iyapanna of Little Diomede Island, in the Bering Strait: "Please send me a five-gallon can of dried walrus and seal meat in seal oil. Send it tomorrow. I am O.K. and all my brothers are fine. Dora Iyapanna and Annie A. are fine, too."

QUESTION

Need some mukluks? Apparently John Angusac of King Island did, judging from this message to him from his sister, Annie Pulock of Nome: "Please send me seal skin to make your hunting mukluks and white seal skin. Also an oogruk skin for soles."

Want to make a dog sled? Washington Olanna of Nome did. He messaged Alfred Olanna at Shishmaref: "Would you please send me a piece of rawhide, enough for sled."

Jerry Kaloke of Teller Mission got this message from Sam Ailak of Nome: "We received the flounders today at noon. Enjoyed them very much. Thanks a lot. Something in mail as a gift in return."

From Alfred Adams, Koyuk, to John Foster and Charley Swanson, Haycock: "I will not need the two dogs. You can use them this spring. I will see you later this spring."

REQUEST

From Johnny Kakaruk of Teller Mission to Francis Kakaruk at Mary's Igloo: "Please butcher 10 reindeer to send to Northern Commercial Co. Send hearts, livers and heads. Leave tongues in heads."

Because Nome has one of the few hospitals in this area, many of "Ptarmigan Telegraph's" messages deal with the arrival or departure of patients.

Minnie Katcheak from Nome to Benedict Katcheak at Stebbins: "Baby and I arrived to Nome yesterday afternoon OK. Baby is at hospital. He is getting along fine. I don't know when I am coming home."

Fannie Olanna to Archie Olanna of Teller Mission from Nome: "I'm doing fine, so don't worry about me. Dorothy have her tonsils off today. Please take care the childrens good. May God bless you."

Hair Styles And Economy Are Linked

NEW YORK (UPI) — The state of the economy and the state of a woman's hair have much in common. They go up or down together.

The hair-raising conclusion that business curves and hair styles react similarly comes from researchers at the Helene Curtis Guild of Professional Beauticians, Chicago.

Based on hair style trends for winter — smooth over a network of back-combed, raised fullness — the researchers forecast a stabilized market for 1962-63. The forecast indicates the stock market won't rally to the heights it reached in December, 1961, when coiffures reached a peak of bouffantry. Nor will it plunge to the depths of 1933, when the coifs were painfully close to the head.

The '62-63 market forecast will hold, if the correlations of the past continue, said Arthur Caplin, director of marketing for Helene Curtis.

DESERTED

We pointed out to Caplin that around New York, the style-setting models and a lot of other chic women have deserted the bouffant "do" for hair almost plastered to the head. This would indicate a declining stock market.

Yes, if the flat coiffures caught on nationwide, said Caplin. But indications are they will not.

"We see a strong Spanish influence," said Caplin, "with still plenty of fullness and fluff to the hair."

The researchers' study of curves and curls begins at the turn of the century and shows hair styles through panics, recessions, the great depression, and good times.

Start with the panic of 1907-1908, set off by failure of the Knickerbocker Trust Co. of New York. Hair went to a new low from the plush and piled-high luxuriance of the Gibson Girl look. The 1907-8 style was close to the head, stressing downward curves with a false chignon at the nape of the neck.

Then, with the first World War and the rally in the economy, came a revolution in coiffures — high, decorative, puffy, often many-curled creations loosely patterned after the ceremonial coiffures of Oriental women.

After World War I, business and hair curves remained on the upbeat until 1921 and a sharp decline. Hair began to be worn straight or softly waved, shingled in the back and partly covering the ears.

Two years later, the national income rose to $69.5 billion dollars, after a 1921 low of $51.7 billion, and coiffures become a mop of permanented curls.

Silhouettes were billowy, sometimes tamed with a "head ache band," and the vamp hairdo became the blue chip stock in a girl's beauty portoiio.

FORESHADOWS CHANGES

Minor market fluctuations in 1926 were foreshadowed by a short bob, softened with finger waves. With the stock market crash of 1929, variations of the short, severely natural coif reappeared. As business improved gradually during the 1930's, hair styles made gains toward the longer, softer, more feminine look. But from 1933 to 1936, hair was styled so close to the head the line of the skull was obvious.

KIM NOVAK and Tony Randall star together in M-G-M's new comedy "Boys' Night Out," which starts Wednesday at the Jim Theatre. Also starring are James Garner, Howard Duff and Janet Blair.

IN AMERICA

'Cliff Dwellers' Gain Forecast

NEW YORK (UPI)—A lot more Americans will become cliff dwellers in the next few years, according to a veteran apartment house builder.

Robert Tishman said he expects the biggest growth in apartment house building across the country since the 1920s.

But he said New York City, where Tishman's family-owned company has put up an enormous number of towering apartment houses, mostly in the luxury class, in the past three generations, already has had its post-war boom.

"I believe New York is temporarily over-built, both in co-ops and new rental houses," he said.

Air conditioning and other new trends and a desire to replace old rent-controlled with modern decontrolled buildings, plus a tremendous demand for apartments starting right after the war caused block after block of old brownstone houses in New York to be leveled to make way for towering new apartment developments.

But Tishman said there has been no apartment house boom in the "walk to work" districts in the rest of the country's cities. In many cities where hundreds of apartment houses were put up between 1910 and 1930, hardly any have gone up anywhere near the heart of the city since then.

Garden apartments have been built by the thousands in suburban areas, but the people who live in these are not true cliff dwellers—they can't walk to work or get to work by a five or 10 minute bus ride.

Tishman said many people, particularly small families or older couples whose children have grown up, are disenchanted with suburban living and fed up with sacrificing two hours a day getting to and from work—or with the troubles and costs of driving a car to town and parking it.

"There is land available in or near the heart areas of all our cities for apartment house building," he said. "Some of it can be readily assembled by the builder and new apartment houses put up without any fuss," Tishman said. "We are putting up some that way, and new apartment houses of this type will drain tenants out of 30 or 40-year-old apartment houses and cause the owners of some of those to modernize them or even rebuild."

But most of the land in the "walk to work" districts of our cities is now in slums or rundown industrial property that can't be developed profitably by the apartment builder unless the cities do something first to make the locations attractive, Tishman said.

"That's why the urban rehabilitation programs are so important," he said. "You can't just bulldoze down the old buildings in an undesirable location, put up fine new apartments and expect people to pay the kind of rents required to pay for the new buildings and keep them up.

"The city has to do something first to make the location desirable, by improving the streets, putting in greenery, improving the schools and adding other attractions to make the neighborhoods desirable. Then the apartment builder will be glad to come in and spend his money."

Drama Written Long Ago Is Play Potential

NEW YORK (AP) — A drama written 20 years ago under a pen-name by playwright Clare Boothe Luce is now being eyed as a Broadway prospect.

"Love Is a Verb" was originally tested at the Barter Theater in Abingdon, Va., with authorship ascribed to a Karl Weidenbach. Mrs. Luce subsequently acknowledged it as her work.

Richard Charlton, operator of the Sombrero Playhouse in Phoenix, Ariz., has taken a White Way option on the comedy, which Mrs. Luce has put through four revisions.

Bloomgarden Given Award

NEW YORK (AP) — The Humanitarian Award of Brith Shalom, a national Jewish fraternal society, has been awarded to Kermit Bloomgarden, a leading Broadway producer.

The citation named "The Diary of Anne Frank" and "The Wall" as earning the award for affirming "man's indomitable will to survive tragedy and disaster."

IN MANHATTAN

Heat, Pressure On 'East Side'

NEW YORK (AP)—The Lower East Side is a bony old man, in an undershirt, trying to catch his breath in the [illegible], leaning out a window and [illegible] shivering with cold fear because he sees in the decaying street something of himself, and his end.

He is not afraid of being forsaken, but of being forgotten.

The people from the universities and the government know what ails the old man. They have come with new ointments and elixirs and potions.

One came recently from Washington. Lean, hatless, he prowled the slum streets. Some recognized him, some had to be told: Robert F. Kennedy. Attorney general of the United States. The President's brother.

PURPOSE

Why?

Because of Mobilization for Youth Inc., a private group formed by various Lower East Side welfare groups to combat juvenile delinquency. The ambitious MFY plan has attracted support not only from New York City but the federal government. It is the only such plan in the nation to receive federal funds.

Already, there is controversy. Some of its elements seem offbeat. They are. Among them:

A service corps to pay teen-agers for working to benefit the community while training them for outside jobs.

Why should this slight silver along the East River receive such a full-scale program?

In song and fiction, there is a nostalgia about the Lower East Side. This is the cradle of Al Smith and Al Jolsen and Jimmy Durante and Eddie Cantor and General David Sarnoff and Sir Joseph Epstein — and of Louis (The Butcher) Lepke and Abe (Kid Twist) Reles.

Sleeping Prince Music, Lyrics In The Works

NEW YORK (AP) — The music and lyrics for a new production of "The Sleeping Prince" are on the work schedule of Noel Coward.

Herman Levin, producer of "My Fair Lady," reported that Coward has agreed to get material ready in time for Broadway staging by the spring of 1963. The musical is being based upon a Terence Rattigan play that had a brief run here several seasons ago and was the source of a movie starring Marilyn Monroe and Sir Lawrence Olivier.

But he said New York City, where Tishman's family-owned company has put up an enormous number of towering apartment houses, mostly in the luxury class, in the past three generations, already has had its post-war boom.

"I believe New York is temporarily over-built, both in co-ops and new rental houses," he said.

Air conditioning and other new trends and a desire to replace old rent-controlled with modern decontrolled buildings, plus a tremendous demand for apartments starting right after the war caused block after block of old brownstone houses in New York to be leveled to make way for towering new apartment developments.

But Tishman said there has been no apartment house boom in the "walk to work" districts in the rest of the country's cities. In many cities where hundreds of apartment houses were put up between 1910 and 1930, hardly any have gone up anywhere near the heart of the city since then.

Garden apartments have been built by the thousands in suburban areas, but the people who live in these are not true cliff dwellers—they can't walk to work or get to work by a five or 10 minute bus ride.

Tishman said many people, particularly small families or older couples whose children have grown up, are disenchanted with suburban living and fed up with sacrificing two hours a day getting to and from work—or with the troubles and costs of driving a car to town and parking it.

"There is land available in or near the heart areas of all our cities for apartment house building," he said. "Some of it can be readily assembled by the builder and new apartment houses put up without any fuss," Tishman said. "We are putting up some that way, and new apartment houses of this type will drain tenants out of 30 or 40-year-old apartment houses and cause the owners of some of those to modernize them or even rebuild."

But most of the land in the "walk to work" districts of our cities is now in slums or run-down industrial property that can't be developed profitably by the apartment builder unless the cities do something first to make the locations attractive, Tishman said.

"That's why the urban rehabilitation programs are so important," he said. "You can't just bulldoze down the old buildings in an undesirable location, put up fine new apartments and expect people to pay the kind of rents required to pay for the new buildings and keep them up.

"The city has to do something first to make the location desirable, by improving the streets, putting in greenery, improving the schools and adding other attractions to make the neighborhoods desirable. Then the apartment builder will be glad to come in and spend his money."

Drama Written Long Ago Is Play Potential

NEW YORK (AP) — A drama written 20 years ago under a pen-name by playwright Clare Boothe Luce is now being eyed as a Broadway prospect.

"Love Is a Verb" was originally tested at the Barter Theater in Abingdon, Va., with authorship ascribed to a Karl Weidenbach. Mrs. Luce subsequently acknowledged it as her work.

Richard Charlton, operator of the Sombrero Playhouse in Phoenix, Ariz., has taken a White Way option on the comedy, which Mrs. Luce has put through four revisions.

Bloomgarden Given Award

NEW YORK (AP) — The Humanitarian Award of Brith Shalom, a national Jewish fraternal society, has been awarded to Kermit Bloomgarden, a leading Broadway producer.

The citation named "The Diary of Anne Frank" and "The Wall" as earning the award for affirming "man's indomitable will to survive tragedy and disaster."

Sleeping Prince Music, Lyrics In The Works

NEW YORK (AP) — The music and lyrics for a new production of "The Sleeping Prince" are on the work schedule of Noel Coward.

Herman Levin, producer of "My Fair Lady," reported that Coward has agreed to get material ready in time for Broadway staging by the spring of 1963. The musical is being based upon a Terence Rattigan play that had a brief run here several seasons ago and was the source of a movie starring Marilyn Monroe and Sir Lawrence Olivier.

GUIDE TO GOOD READING

Wide Appeal For New Work Seen

By FRANCES FLANDERS
Ouachita Parish Librarian

"The Sound of Bow Bells" is the title of the new novel of Jerome Weidman, which should have a universal appeal. It has a modern New York setting and is concerned with a man's struggle to find his way back to his youthful standards and loyalties. Mr. Weidman writes well as all who have read his earlier books can attest. This one should be as good.

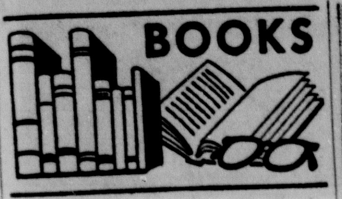
"Travels with Charley" is the latest book from the pen of John Stinbeck. It is different from his other works. First because it is not fiction, but is an account of a trip which he took from one part of this country to another. Charley is his french poodle who accompanied him on the trip in a specially built truck. He went through 40 states and learned much about the changes which have come over this vast country in the last few years. He fell in love with Montana and sensed the state of mind which is Texas. His interpretations are sometimes superficial, but taken all together it is an outstanding piece of writing.

"1975 and the Years Between" is a piece of calculated guesswork based on facts and figures now known by the editors of the Kiplinger letters. This book predicts our physical and material expectations in the next decade. It forecasts patterns of employment, what we will wear and what we will eat. It discusses housing, communication and education. It will appeal to the thoughtful reader and especially to men.

A new handbook for parents is "How to Help Your Child in Grade School Science" written by Frieda Van Atta. It is one which many parents need and copies have been placed in each branch of the library. A new book in the field of astronomy is "A Primer for Star-Gazers" by Henry M. Neely. So many startling developments in the world of space are occurring every day that it behooves the general reader to try to keep abreast of the times. A new title which should be useful in this respect is "Science in Space" by L. V. Berkner. Another in the same category is "Space Research by Rocket and Satellite" by L. F. Boyd.

There are two new books in the field of architecture which should appeal to the architect and to the general reader. They are "Architecture and the Aesthetics of Plenty" by James Marston Fitch and "Scope of Total Architecture" by Walter Gropius. Both are excellent books and do much to make modern architecture intelligible to the layman. If you are one of the people who does not like modern architecture, it would be well to read one of these books. Another lovely book in the field of fine arts is "Sculpture of the century" by Andrew C. Ritchie.

A slight, but delightful little volume is "Sold to the Lady in the Green Hat" the reminiscences of a lady auctioneer, written by Emma Bailey. A fine addition to the travel collection of the library is "South America A to Z written by Robert S. Kane. If you are planning to visit any of the countries, to the south of us, be sure to see this book first. Another addition to the literature of the Civil War is "A Civil War Sampler" edited by Donald Sobol. This is an anthology of writings about the Civil War and should be most useful.



Greatest Fighter Missions, by Edward H. Sims (Harper $4.95): The author, a wartime pilot, described some key 1941-45 missions of the Army Air Force in his 1958 book, "American Aces." Now, in "Greatest Fighter Missions," subtitled in finer type "of the top Navy and Marine Aces of World War II," he pays tribute to the sister services. The Navy's war, of course, was fought mainly in the Pacific. This is the story of the men who fought its fighter phase — first the Marines flying from shore bases on Midway and Guadalcanal, then as the war progressed the carrier pilots who fought on the approaches to Japan. Because of the difficulty of reconstructing fighter missions from secondary sources, Sims has restricted his coverage to the surviving aces. He traveled more than 25,000 miles in his quest for the men and each one's story of the mission he remembers best.

The Love Thieves, by Peter packer (Holt, Rinehart and Winston $4.95): One day in 1931, the body of a beautiful and rather notorious young woman - about - Manhattan called Starr Faithful was found floating in Long Island Sound. It has never been certain whether she jumped, fell or was pushed. The case had aspects of beauty, sex and mystery and it inspired John O'Hara to write "Butterfield 8," which made its heroine somewhat of a symbol of her day. Packer takes a different view of the case in "The Love Thieves," another fictional adaptation of the story. He is concerned not so much with how she died (although, of course, he has a theory about that) as with how — and why — she lived as she did, Packer, who calls his representation of Miss Faithful, Virginia Fuller, uses a libel suit brought by her parents against a New York newspaper as the framework of his story.

Shakespeare & Son, by Edward Fisher (Abelard-Schuman $4): The young Will Shakespeare of this biographical novel is a scatter-brained teen - ager whose actions are like spring weather: unpredictable. Only two things seem clear to his mind during the 15 - to - 18-year-old period covered by the book: he does not want to follow his father's profession of glover and town alderman; he does want to join a company of players. It is hard to see how Fisher's rebel ever acquired enough education to write all those fine plays and poems. Maybe it 2as Sir Francis Bacon, after all.

The Wonderful Clouds, by Francoise Sagan (Dutton $3): Another in the series of short, sharp analyses of love which have made Miss Sagan a novelist of worldwide note. This is the first story in which an American takes the leading part. He is Alan Ash — rich, handsome, mother-ridden and spoiled. Alan is married to Josee, a French girl who loves him devotedly. But Alan, driven by jealousy, accuses her of imagined infidelities so ruthlessly that Josee is impelled to make them come true.

Fighter Pilot, edited by Stanley M. Ulanoff (Doubleday $5.95): Ulanoff has pulled together in this book accounts of what it was like to fight in the air from the dog fights of World War I to the jet duels over Korea. What makes it especially exciting and authentic is that the stories are by the principals themselves — Americans, British, French, German, Japanese, Russians.

TRAVELING AROUND

Caracas Hacienda Among 'Oldest'

CARACAS, Venezuela (UPI) — A house that dates to 1590 nestles as an oasis in the heart of this traffic - jammed, modernizing South American capital.

Believed to be the oldest inhabited place in the Western Hemisphere, the Hacienda, La Vega belongs to the descendnts of the original owner, one of the conquistadores of the Valley of Caracas.

Like New York City, Caracas is constantly tearing down and rebuilding. Sleek, modernistic apartment houses and commercial buildings are replacing much of the old Spanish-style architecture.

The Herrera Uslar family hopes to cling to their hacienda, however, as one of the truly historic places in the new world. It once was situated in the middle of a thousand-acre ranch where horses grazed and carriages were the principal means of travel. Half the acreage has been sold, and a broad avenue passes the hacienda. Nearby are glass and stucco apartment houses.

Dr. Jose Herrera Uslar, a lawyer and former diplomat, owns the hacienda. He moved from it eight years ago to a new Georgian mansion from which he has a view of Caracas, and his brother, Reinaldo, occupies the hacienda now with his family.

The original section of the house was built by Garci Gonzales de Silva at a time when there were only 700 Spaniards in Caracas. It was constructed with walls two feet thick. The living quarters were upstairs, the patio and stables below. Now a Rolls is parked in the stable and the patio is equipped with the latest in charcoal grills.

Gonsales married a member of a Spanish family named Rojas Herrera. One of his descendants lost the house when he went into debt, but in 1890 Dr. Herrera's grandfather bought it back.

By the time the house had returned to Herrera hands, it had been added to and improved considerably. The Count of Tovar a president of Venezuela, made the alterations in 1760. The 80-room arrangement has remained largely as it was except for the addition of spacious, colorfully tiled bathrooms throughout the house and cement floors. Electricity long since has been added.

A high wall surrounds the gardens adjacent to the house. Orchids grow on trees in the garden and other tropical growths abound. The original section of the house is covered with ivy. A Spanish tile roof covers the yellow stucco building and the interior floors are mainly of tile. There are several patios, each with trees and shrubs.

A veranda runs along two sides of the house, with doors from bedrooms opening onto it. The rooms are furnished with priceless antiques, four-poster beds of rare woods, paintings and other objects d'art.

"Like all old houses, this one has a ghost," Herrera said. "He is one of the Tovars who was assassinated. He used to come around when I lived there. I have felt his presence."

The hacienda, with its fortress-like walls, has withstood two great earthquakes. Whether it will withstand the pressure of 20th century growth of Caracas is a matter of concern to the Herreras.

CONCERT

NEW YORK (UPI) — Ernest Ansermet did exceedingly well in recording Cesar Franck's D minor symphony and "The Accursed Huntsman" ("Le Chasseur Maudit") for issue on one record (London-CS6222). They represent extremes in Franck's production and when taken together tell us something of the composer.

Even though it now sounds classical, the D minor represents Franck's high as a musical radical. Its familiar beauties now submerge even the awareness of its departures from the ways of his predecessors. On the other hand, "The Accursed Huntsman" is his low in his contradictory effort to conform to popular musical taste of his time.

It is program music out and out and melodramatically involves the contrast of God and the devil. It is to Ansermet's credit that with his "L'Orchestre de la Suisse Romande" he makes it sound much more than the claptrap it is. He does that by never accepting the composer's implicit challenges to bear down on its "drama."

Rather, he makes the least of the opportunities for an orchestral circus act. He projects the score smoothly and coolly. Franck was a score-maker of genius and this treatment allows it to show through.

Franck also is a part of a recorded program of the masterful Italian organist, Fernando Gemani. The Franck piece is "Piece Heroique." The other composers represented are Liszt ("Prelude and Fugue on the Name of BACH,") Max Reger and Charles-Marie Widor. Germani used an organ heretofore unknown to American record listeners. It is in the old abbey at Selby, Eng., and tonally magnificent it is. (Angel—35687).

Perhaps the most interesting item in Andres Segovia's newest recorded program is his arrangement for guitar of the "Old Castle" segment of Moussogsky's "Pictures at an Exhibition" which, you'll remember, were composed for piano. Segovia makes the guitar add to this one "picture" by enhancing its quality of pleasant dreaming. The other pieces on the record are drawn from his familiar repertoire (Decca—710046).

POPULAR

NEW YORK (UPI) — The latest move forward in the never-ending quest for perfect sound may be heard on "If The Big Bands Were Here Today . . ." (Cameo SC 4005).

Bernie Lowe's Orchestra pays tribute to the great baton wavers of the past by playing in the style of Benny Goodman, Glenn Miller, Artie Shaw, Bob Crosby and the Bob Cats and Harry James.

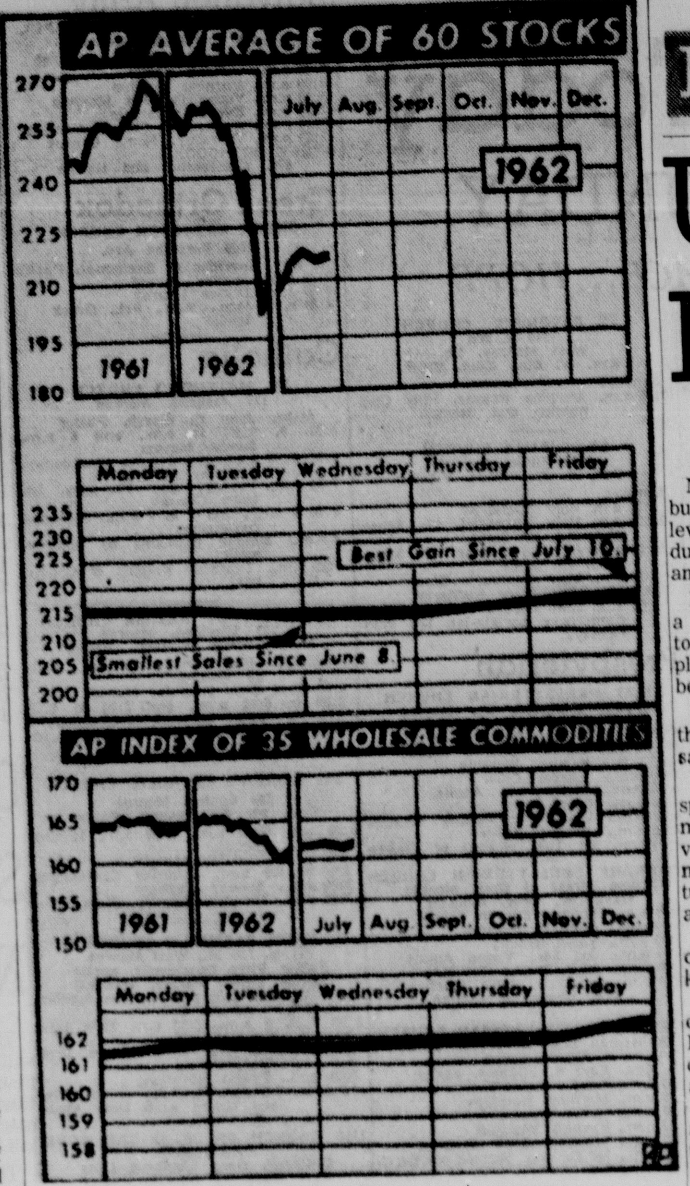
Ordinarily Lowe's performance alone would be noteworthy but Cameo has enhanced this music by recording it on 35 millimeter magnetic film and using more tracks — four — then ever employed in this technique.

The result is more than pleasing. The monophonic version is rich and the stereo record is even more rewarding. The four-channel system is a poven success.

"12 Great Hits" by the Thurl Ravenscroft Singers (Dot DLP-3430) is a warm reprise of a dozen evergreens, among them "If I Didn't Care," "Together" and "My Happiness."

The singers are as good as any in the business. The only disappointing factor is Ravenscroft's reluctance to show off his wonderful voice. It is heard only briefly on "If I Didn't Care."

Selected Singles — The Martini" and "The Notorious Landlady" by Fred Astaire (Choreo C-104), "Funny Way of Laughing' " by Burl Ives (Decca 31371), "Give Me a Song" by Lester Lanin (Epic 5-9514), "The Big Ship Sails on the Alley-Alley-O" by the Corona Kid, "Hot Pepper" by Floyd Cramer (RCA Victor 47-8051), "The Scotch" by The Olympics (Arvee A-5056).



THE ASSOCIATED PRESS average of 60 stocks advanced during the past week to 216.8 from 215.4 a week ago. The commodity index rose to 162.3 from 161.5 in the preceding period. Industrials and Livestocks were the largest gainers. (AP Wirephoto Chart)

FIRST SIX MONTHS

1962 Demand Up For Oil Products

By MAX B. SKELTON

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — Demand for petroleum products in 1962 has been a bit stronger than anticipated.

Demand the first six months of the year is being estimated at 4 per cent above the same 1961 period.

Continuation of the trend would be significant in that it would give the industry its largest increase since 1955. Total demand in 1961 was only one per cent above 1960.

Mid-year financial reports by major companies are not in agreement on whether the first half increase will continue throughout the year.

Standard Oil Co. of California believes it will. Continental Oil Co. is among those believing a downward trend is ahead.

"We expect gains to date will be sufficiently well maintained to result in an increase of about 4 per cent in demand for the year as a whole," said R. G. Follis, Standard of California board chairman.

Continental, whose president is L. F. McCollum, board chairman of the American Petroleum Institute, said current forecasts indicate products demand the remainder of the year will be about 3 per cent above the same 1961 period.

Continental's mid-year report said optimism resulting from greater demand led to excessive levels of refinery operations.

"The seasonal decrease in demand between the first and second quarters was 15 per cent, yet refinery runs declined less than 2 per cent," the financial report said. "As a result, products inventories did not follow the usual seasonal pattern."

Continental stockholders were told industry profit margins in the last half of 1962 might well exceed those of a year ago if refinery runs are cut back sufficiently to permit taking demand increases from currently available inventories.

"However, even if refinery runs are cutailed and demand is supplied fom inventories, local competitive conditions, which have led to widespread retail gasoline price disturbances, may be expected to continue," the report said.

Continental reported a 5 per cent increase in net income the first half of the year but said its earnings were affected adversely by lower products prices.

The Socony Mobil Oil Co. said weak wholesale gasoline prices continued to affect domestic earnings adversely although the company's worldwide operations the first six months included increases in crude production, refinery runs, and poducts sales.

Gulf Oil Corp. reported record volumes in all its worldwide operations but said continued depressed prices throughout the world led to an 11 per cent decline in net earnings the first half. Gulf's worldwide crude production averaged 1,701,423 barrels daily, a 10 per cent gain. Domestic production averaged 361,624 barrels per day, compared to 350,800 the first half of 1961.

Texaco Inc. reported first half earnings at an all-time high and said new record levels were set for crude production, refinery runs, and products sales.

Sidney Chaplin In Shift From Rags To Riches

Chaplin appeared last season as a happy ne'er - do - well in "Subways Are for Sleeping." Upcoming now is a straight play, "In the Counting House," in which he portrays a business executive.

U.S. Dollar Given Reassuring Word

By JACK LEFLER
AP Business News Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—The rumor-buffeted U.S. dollar got a top-level reassuring pat on the back during the week that was heard and seen around the world.

President Kennedy, speaking in a news conference televised live to Europe via Telstar satellite, pledged that the dollar will not be devaluated.

"Those who speculate against the dollar are going to lose," he said.

The reaction was quick. The speculators who had bet on rumors that the dollar would be devaluated rushed to sell their gold-mining shares. Prices of shares tumbled on New York, London and Johannesburg exchanges.

There was a general strengthening of the dollar against major European currencies in foreign exchange markets here and abroad.

The dollar was in the news on another front. Americans learned that in June it wouldn't go as far in covering the cost of living as it did in May.

Mainly because of higher food prices, the Labor Department's consumers price index advanced one-tenth of one per cent to a record 105.3 per cent of the 1957-59 base period.

The index has increased eight-tenths of one per cent this year, rising to new records in four of the six months.

The possibility of an income tax cut remained up in the air with Kennedy saying he wanted to see the July economic statistics before making a decision on whether to request Congress to approve a quick reduction to bolster business.

The House Ways and Means Committee began closed-door hearings on the status of the economy and the tax question was expected to be a major subject.

The stock market, moving within a moderate trading range, was considered by some brokers to be marking time pending a decision on the tax matter.

A development regarded as indicating rising confidence in the market was the excellent reception given a 1,589,680-share secondary offering of General Motors Corp. common stock at $49.62 a share.

The F. W. Dodge Corp., a statistical organization, reported the pace of neew construction in the first five months of this year was "nothing short of phenomenal" although "the economy has shown less verve than expected."

Total awards through May amounted to a record $17.2 billion, a gain of 17 per cent from last year.

Another economic indicator—new orders for metal-cutting type machine tools—wasn't favorable. The total for June was $49.35 million compared with $51.65 million in May and $52 million in June 1961.

The Chase Manhattan Bank of New York, the nation's second largest, reported that business indicators appear to be acting "very much as they usually do six months or so in advance of a business downturn."

It added, "The question is being raised as to whether the economy may not be nearing the end of the period of expansion which has now run for 17 months."

In the railroad industry, operating unions sued to prevent the carriers from changing work rules Aug. 16 and threatened to strike unless the plans are called off. The railroads had announced their intention to enforce economy changes in operating practices recommended by a presidential commission.

Generally good six-month corporate earnings reports brightened the business picture. This was particularly true in the booming automobile industry, where General Motors, Ford, Chrysler and American Motors announced substantial profit increases over a year earlier.

Automobile production slipped during the week to an estimated 137,000 passenger cars from 148,475 the previous week as Chrysler and American Motors completed 1962 model year production. New car sales in the middle 10 days of July totaled 175,149, down from 177,368 a year ago. It was the first decline this year.

Steel output increased during the week but steel companies didn't expect any major gain to develop before next month. The total of 1,398,000 tons was two per cent above the previous week.

Briefly around the business scene: The trading stamp industry sold about $750 million worth of stamps to 250,000 retailers in 1961 . . Congress has been asked to approve conversion of a small aircraft carrier into a cruising showcase of American products.

Angola Warden Silent On Rumor Of Resignation

BATON ROUGE (AP) —Warden Victor Walker of the state penitentiary at Angola declined comment Friday on reports he might resign should a $750,000 budget slash at the prison stand.

The Angola prison has an inmate population of 3,649, and the legislature chopped its budget to $2,522,000 — lowest in 10 years.

More may be laid off later, bringing greater emphasis on convict guards.

E. R. Anderson, state director of institutions, said Walker had never discussed with him the possibility of leaving his Angola post.

"Naturally," Anderson said, "the budget cut is a serious problem for him. But he assured me he would try to work it out and get the situation on an even keel."

Gov. Jimmie H. Davis, in his news conference Thursday said he felt the Board of Liquidation of State Debt would be sympathetic and reasonable about Angolas' money problems.

During the day, Chairman Chester Greene of the State Board of Institutions was a visitor at the State Capitol.

The Angola budget will be reviewed by the governor's new legislative budget committee, when it convenes early in August to go over all state agency budgets.

GUIDE TO GOOD READING

Wide Appeal For New Work Seen

By FRANCES FLANDERS
Ouachita Parish Librarian

"The Sound of Bow Bells" is the title of the new novel of Jerome Weidman, which should have a universal appeal. It has a modern New York setting and is concerned with a man's struggle to find his way back to his youthful standards and loyalties. Mr. Weidman writes well as all who have read his earlier books can attest. This one should be as good.

"Travels with Charley" is the latest book from the pen of John Stinbeck. It is different from his other works. First because it is not fiction, but is an account of a trip which he took from one part of this country to another. Charley is his french poodle who accompanied him on the trip in a specially built truck. He went through 40 states and learned much about the changes which have come over this vast country in the last few years. He fell in love with Montana and sensed the state of mind which is Texas. His interpretations are sometimes superficial, but taken all together it is an outstanding piece of writing.

"1975 and the Years Between" is a piece of calculated guesswork based on facts and figures now known by the editors of the Kiplinger letters. This book predicts our physical and material expectations in the next decade. It forecasts patterns of employment, what we will wear and what we will eat. It discusses housing, communication and education. It will appeal to the thoughtful reader and especially to men.

A new handbook for parents is "How to Help Your Child in Grade School Science" written by Frieda Van Atta. It is one which many parents need and copies have been placed in each branch of the library. A new book in the field of astronomy is "A Primer for Star-Gazers" by Henry M. Neely. So many startling developments in the world of space are occurring every day that it behooves the general reader to try to keep abreast of the times. A new title which should be useful in this respect is "Science in Space" by L. V. Berkner. Another in the same category is "Space Research by Rocket and Satellite" by L. F. Boyd.

There are two new books in the field of architecture which should appeal to the architect and to the general reader. They are "Architecture and the Aesthetics of Plenty" by James Marston Fitch and "Scope of Total Architecture" by Walter Gropius. Both are excellent books and do much to make modern architecture intelligible to the layman. If you are one of the people who does not like modern architecture, it would be well to read one of these books. Another lovely book in the field of fine arts is "Sculpture of the century" by Andrew C. Ritchie.

A slight, but delightful little volume is "Sold to the Lady in the Green Hat" the reminiscences of a lady auctioneer, written by Emma Bailey. A fine addition to the travel collection of the library is "South America A to Z written by Robert S. Kane. If you are planning to visit any of the countries, to the south of us, be sure to see this book first. Another addition to the literature of the Civil War is "A Civil War Sampler" edited by Donald Sobol. This is an anthology of writings about the Civil War and should be most useful.

TRAVELING AROUND

Caracas Hacienda Among 'Oldest'

CARACAS, Venezuela (UPI) — A house that dates to 1590 nestles as an oasis in the heart of this traffic - jammed, modernizing South American capital.

Believed to be the oldest inhabited place in the Western Hemisphere, the Hacienda, La Vega belongs to the descendnts of the original owner, one of the conquistadores of the Valley of Caracas.

Like New York City, Caracas is constantly tearing down and rebuilding. Sleek, modernistic apartment houses and commercial buildings are replacing much of the old Spanish-style architecture.

The Herrera Uslar family hopes to cling to their hacienda, however, as one of the truly historic places in the new world. It once was situated in the middle of a thousand-acre ranch where horses grazed and carriages were the principal means of travel. Half the acreage has been sold, and a broad avenue passes the hacienda. Nearby are glass and stucco apartment houses.

Dr. Jose Herrera Uslar, a lawyer and former diplomat, owns the hacienda. He moved from it eight years ago to a new Georgian mansion from which he has a view of Caracas, and his brother, Reinaldo, occupies the hacienda now with his family.

The original section of the house was built by Garci Gonzales de Silva at a time when there were only 700 Spaniards in Caracas. It was constructed with walls two feet thick. The living quarters were upstairs, the patio and stables below. Now a Rolls is parked in the stable and the patio is equipped with the latest in charcoal grills.

Gonsales married a member of a Spanish family named Rojas Herrera. One of his descendants lost the house when he went into debt, but in 1890 Dr. Herrera's grandfather bought it back.

By the time the house had returned to Herrera hands, it had been added to and improved considerably. The Count of Tovar a president of Venezuela, made the alterations in 1760. The 80-room arrangement has remained largely as it was except for the addition of spacious, colorfully tiled bathrooms throughout the house and cement floors. Electricity long since has been added.

A high wall surrounds the gardens adjacent to the house. Orchids grow on trees in the garden and other tropical growths abound. The original section of the house is covered with ivy. A Spanish tile roof covers the yellow stucco building and the interior floors are mainly of tile. There are several patios, each with trees and shrubs.

A veranda runs along two sides of the house, with doors from bedrooms opening onto it. The rooms are furnished with priceless antiques, four-poster beds of rare woods, paintings and other objects d'art.

"Like all old houses, this one has a ghost," Herrera said. "He is one of the Tovars who was assassinated. He used to come around when I lived there. I have felt his presence."

The hacienda, with its fortress-like walls, has withstood two great earthquakes. Whether it will withstand the pressure of 20th century growth of Caracas is a matter of concern to the Herreras.

CONCERT

NEW YORK (UPI) — Ernest Ansermet did exceedingly well in recording Cesar Franck's D minor symphony and "The Accursed Huntsman" ("Le Chasseur Maudit") for issue on one record (London-CS6222). They represent extremes in Franck's production and when taken together tell us something of the composer.

Even though it now sounds classical, the D minor represents Franck's high as a musical radical. Its familiar beauties now submerge even the awareness of its departures from the ways of his predecessors. On the other hand, "The Accursed Huntsman" is his low in his contradictory effort to conform to popular musical taste of his time.

It is program music out and out and melodramatically involves the contrast of God and the devil. It is to Ansermet's credit that with his "L'Orchestre de la Suisse Romande" he makes it sound much more than the claptrap it is. He does that by never accepting the composer's implicit challenges to bear down on its "drama."

Rather, he makes the least of the opportunities for an orchestral circus act. He projects the score smoothly and coolly. Franck was a scoremaker of genius and this treatment allows it to show through.

Franck also is a part of a recorded program of the masterful Italian organist, Fernando Gemani. The Franck piece is "Piece Heroique." The other composers represented are Liszt ("Prelude and Fugue on the Name of BACH,") Max Reger and Charles-Marie Widor. Germani used an organ heretofore unknown to American record listeners. It is in the old abbey at Selby, Eng., and tonally magnificent it is. (Angel—35687).

Perhaps the most interesting item in Andres Segovia's newest recorded program is his arrangement for guitar of the "Old Castle" segment of Moussogsky's "Pictures at an Exhibition" which, you'll remember, were composed for piano. Segovia makes the guitar add to this one "picture" by enhancing its quality of pleasant dreaming. The other pieces on the record are drawn from his familiar repertoire (Decca—710046).

POPULAR

NEW YORK (UPI) — The latest move forward in the never-ending quest for perfect sound may be heard on "If The Big Bands Were Here Today . . ." (Cameo SC 4005).

Bernie Lowe's Orchestra pays tribute to the great baton wavers of the past by playing in the style of Benny Goodman, Glenn Miller, Artie Shaw, Bob Crosby and the Bob Cats and Harry James.

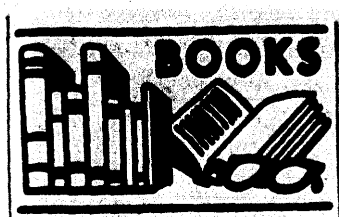
Ordinarily Lowe's performance alone would be noteworthy but Cameo has enhanced this music by recording it on 35 millimeter magnetic film and using more tracks — four — then ever employed in this technique.

The result is more than pleasing. The monophonic version is rich and the stereo record is even more rewarding. The four-channel system is a poven success.

"12 Great Hits" by the Thurl Ravenscroft Singers (Dot DLP-3430) is a warm reprise of a dozen evergreens, among them "If I Didn't Care," "Together" and "My Happiness."

The singers are as good as any in the business. The only disappointing factor is Ravenscroft's reluctance to show off his wonderful voice. It is heard only briefly on "If I Didn't Care."

Selected Singles — The Martini" and "The Notorious Landlady" by Fred Astaire (Choreo C-104), "Funny Way of Laughing' " by Burl Ives (Decca 31371), "Give Me a Song" by Lester Lanin (Epic 5-9514), "The Big Ship Sails on the Alley-Alley-O" by the Corona Kid, "Hot Pepper" by Floyd Cramer (RCA Victor 47-8051), "The Scotch" by The Olympics (Arvee A-5056).



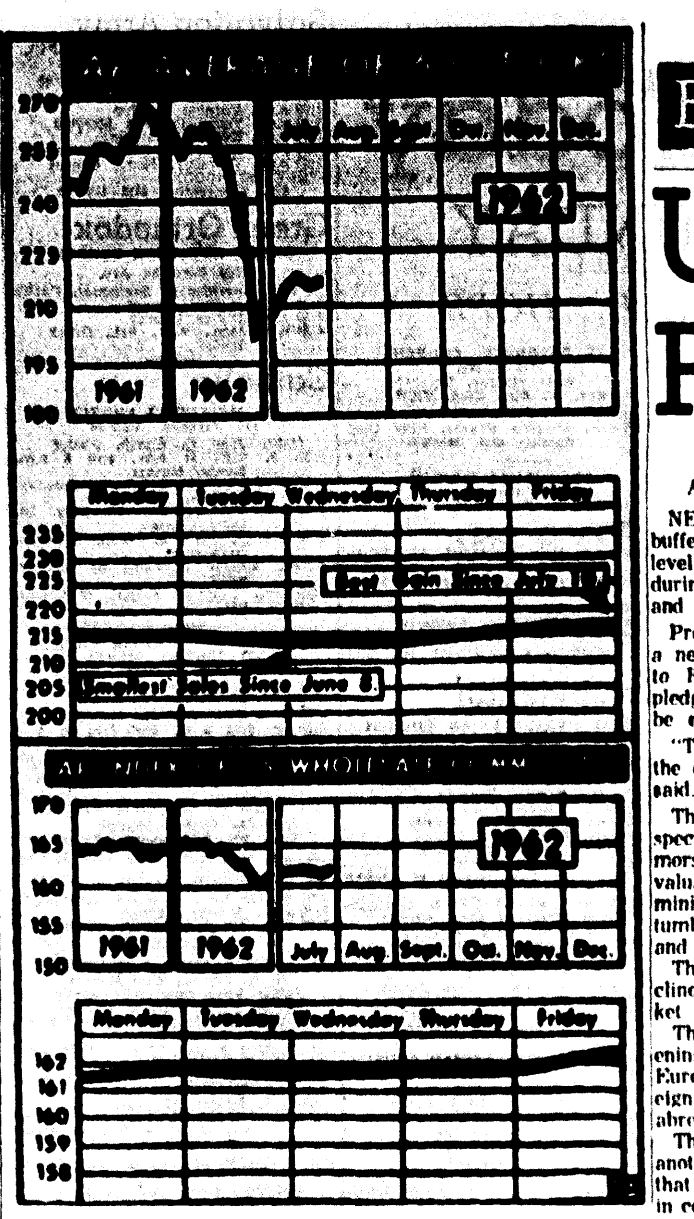
Greatest Fighter Missions, by Edward H. Sims (Harper $4.95): The author, a wartime pilot, described some key 1941-45 missions of the Army Air Force in his 1958 book, "American Aces." Now, in "Greatest Fighter Missions," subtitled in finer type "of the top Navy and Marine Aces of World War II," he pays tribute to the sister services. The Navy's war, of course, was fought mainly in the Pacific. This is the story of the men who fought its fighter phase — first the Marines flying from shore bases on Midway and Guadalcanal, then as the war progressed the carrier pilots who fought on the approaches to Japan. Because of the difficulty of reconstructing fighter missions from secondary sources, Sims has restricted his coverage to the surviving aces. He traveled more than 25,000 miles in his quest for the men and each one's story of the mission he remembers best.

The Love Thieves, by Peter packer (Holt, Rinehart and Winston $4.95): One day in 1931, the body of a beautiful and rather notorious young woman - about - Manhattan called Starr Faithful was found floating in Long Island Sound. It has never been certain whether she jumped, fell or was pushed. The case had aspects of beauty, sex and mystery and it inspired John O'Hara to write "Butterfield 8," which made its heroine somewhat of a symbol of her day. Packer takes a different view of the case in "The Love Thieves," another fictional adaptation of the story. He is concerned not so much with how she died (although, of course, he has a theory about that) as with how — and why — she lived as she did. Packer, who calls his representation of Miss Faithful, Virginia Fuller, uses a libel suit brought by her parents against a New York newspaper as the framework of his story.

Shakespeare & Son, by Edward Fisher (Abelard-Schuman $4): The young Will Shakespeare of this biographical novel is a scatter-brained teen - ager whose actions are like spring weather: unpredictable. Only two things seem clear to his mind during the 15 - to - 18-year-old period covered by the book: he does not want to follow his father's profession of glover and town alderman; he does want to join a company of players. It is hard to see how Fisher's rebel ever acquired enough education to write all those fine plays and poems. Maybe it 2as Sir Francis Bacon, after all.

The Wonderful Clouds, by Francoise Sagan (Dutton $3). Another in the series of short, sharp analyses of love which have made Miss Sagan a novelist of worldwide note. This is the first story in which an American takes the leading part. He is Alan Ash — rich, handsome, mother-ridden and spoiled. Alan is married to Josee, a French girl who loves him devotedly. But Alan, driven by jealousy, accuses her of imagined infidelities so ruthlessly that Josee is impelled to make them come true.

Fighter Pilot, edited by Stanley M. Ulanoff (Doubleday $5.95). Ulanoff has pulled together in this book accounts of what it was like to fight in the air from the dog fights of World War I to the jet duels over Korea. What makes it especially exciting and authentic is that the stories are by the principals themselves — Americans, British, French, German, Japanese, Russians.



THE ASSOCIATED PRESS average of 60 stocks advanced during the past week to 216.8 from 215.4 a week ago. The commodity index rose to 162.3 from 161.5 in the preceding period. Industrials and Livestocks were the largest gainers. (AP Wirephoto Chart)

FIRST SIX MONTHS

1962 Demand Up For Oil Products

By MAX B. SKELTON

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — Demand for petroleum products in 1962 has been a bit stronger than anticipated.

Demand the first six months of the year is being estimated at 4 per cent above the same 1961 period.

Continuation of the trend would be significant in that it would give the industry its largest increase since 1955. Total demand in 1961 was only one per cent above 1960.

Mid-year financial reports by major companies are not in agreement on whether the first half increase will continue throughout the year.

Standard Oil Co. of California believes it will. Continental Oil Co. is among those believing a downward trend is ahead.

"We expect gains to date will be sufficiently well maintained to result in an increase of about 4 per cent in demand for the year as a whole," said R. G. Follis, Standard of California board chairman.

Continental, whose president is L. F. McCollum, board chairman of the American Petroleum Institute, said current forecasts indicate products demand the remainder of the year will be about 3 per cent above the same 1961 period.

Continental's mid-year report said optimism resulting from greater demand led to excessive levels of refinery operations.

"The seasonal decrease in demand between the first and second quarters was 15 per cent, yet refinery runs declined less than 2 per cent," the financial report said. "As a result, products inventories did not follow the usual seasonal pattern."

Continental stockholders were told industry profit margins in the last half of 1962 might well exceed those of a year ago if refinery runs are cut back sufficiently to permit taking demand increases from currently available inventories.

"However, even if refinery runs are cutailed and demand is supplied fom inventories, local competitive conditions, which have led to widespread retail gasoline price disturbances, may be expected to continue," the report said.

Continental reported a 5 per cent increase in net income the first half of the year but said its earnings were affected adversely by lower products prices.

The Socony Mobil Oil Co. said weak wholesale gasoline prices continued to affect domestic earnings adversely although the company's worldwide operations the first six months included increases in crude production, refinery runs, and poducts sales.

Gulf Oil Corp. reported record volumes in all its worldwide operations but said continued depressed prices throughout the world led to an 11 per cent decline in net earnings the first half. Gulf's worldwide crude production averaged 1,701,423 barrels daily, a 10 per cent gain. Domestic production averaged 361,624 barrels per day, compared to 350,800 the first half of 1961.

Texaco Inc. reported first half earnings at an all-time high and said new record levels were set for crude production, refinery runs, and products sales.

Sidney Chaplin In Shift From Rags To Riches

Chaplin appeared last season as a happy ne'er - do - well in "Subways Are for Sleeping." Upcoming now is a straight play, "In the Counting House," in which he portrays a business executive.

U.S. Dollar Given Reassuring Word

By JACK LEFLER
AP Business News Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—The rumor-buffeted U.S. dollar got a top-level reassuring pat on the back during the week that was heard and seen around the world.

President Kennedy, speaking in a news conference televised live to Europe via Telstar satellite, pledged that the dollar will not be devaluated.

"Those who speculate against the dollar are going to lose," he said.

The reaction was quick. The speculators who had bet on rumors that the dollar would be devaluated rushed to sell their gold-mining shares. Prices of shares tumbled on New York, London and Johannesburg exchanges.

There was a general strengthening of the dollar against major European currencies in foreign exchange markets here and abroad.

The dollar was in the news on another front. Americans learned that in June it wouldn't go as far in covering the cost of living as it did in May.

Mainly because of higher food prices, the Labor Department's consumers price index advanced one tenth of one per cent to a record 105.3 per cent of the 1957-59 base period.

The index has increased eight-tenths of one per cent this year, rising to new records in four of the six months.

The possibility of an income tax cut remained up in the air with Kennedy saying he wanted to see the July economic statistics before making a decision on whether to request Congress to approve a quick reduction to bolster business.

The House Ways and Means Committee began closed-door hearings on the status of the economy and the tax question was expected to be a major subject.

The stock market, moving with in a moderate trading range, was considered by some brokers to be marking time pending a decision on the tax matter.

A development regarded as indicating rising confidence in the market was the excellent reception given a 1,589,600 share secondary offering of General Motors Corp. common stock at $49.62 a share.

The F. W. Dodge Corp., a statistical organization, reported the pace of neew construction in the first five months of this year was "nothing short of phenomenal" although "the economy has shown less verve than expected."

Total awards through May amounted to a record $17.2 billion, a gain of 17 per cent from last year.

Another economic indicator—new orders for metal-cutting type machine tools—wasn't favorable. The total for June was $49.35 million compared with $51.65 million in May and $52 million in June 1961.

The Chase Manhattan Bank of New York, the nation's second largest, reported that business indicators appear to be acting "very much as they usually do six months or so in advance of a business downturn."

It added, "The question is being raised as to whether the economy may not be nearing the end of the period of expansion which has now run for 17 months."

In the railroad industry, operating unions sued to prevent the carriers from changing work rules Aug. 16 and threatened to strike unless the plans are called off. The railroads had announced their intention to enforce economy changes in operating practices recommended by a presidential commission.

Generally good six-month corporate earnings reports brightened the business picture. This was particularly true in the booming automobile industry, where General Motors, Ford, Chrysler and American Motors announced substantial profit increases over a year earlier.

Automobile production slipped during the week to an estimated 137,000 passenger cars from 148,475 the previous week as Chrysler and American Motors completed 1962 model year production. New car sales in the middle 10 days of July totaled 175,149, down from 177,368 a year ago. It was the first decline this year.

Steel output increased during the week but steel companies didn't expect any major gain to develop before next month. The total of 1,398,000 tons was two per cent above the previous week.

Briefly around the business scene: The trading stamp industry sold about $750 million worth of stamps to 250,000 retailers in 1961 . . . Congress has been asked to approve conversion of a small aircraft carrier into a cruising showcase of American products.

Angola Warden Silent On Rumor Of Resignation

BATON ROUGE (AP) —Warden Victor Walker of the state penitentiary at Angola declined comment Friday on reports he might resign should a $750,000 budget slash at the prison stand.

The Angola prison has an inmate population of 3,649, and the legislature chopped its budget to $2,522,000 — lowest in 10 years.

More may be laid off later, bringing greater emphasis on convict guards.

E. R. Anderson, state director of institutions, said Walker had never discussed with him the possibility of leaving his Angola post.

"Naturally," Anderson said, "the budget cut is a serious problem for him. But he assured me he would try to work it out and get the situation on an even keel."

Gov. Jimmie H. Davis, in his news conference Thursday said he felt the Board of Liquidation of State Debt would be sympathetic and reasonable about Angolas' money problems.

During the day, Chairman Chester Greene of the State Board of Institutions was a visitor at the State Capitol.

The Angola budget will be reviewed by the governor's new legislative budget committee, when it convenes early in August to go over all state agency budgets.

Church Sets Services At New Location

The Liberty Baptist Church will hold services today in its new permanent location at 401 Slack St., West Monroe, it was announced by the Rev. John Dallalio, pastor.

DEDICATION

The permanent quarters, which will be dedicated at 2:30 p.m., formerly housed the Slack Street Church of Christ. The one story frame structures include a sanctuary and an educational building, which provide more space for the Liberty Church.

The Liberty Church was organized about a year and a half ago. It is non - affiliated.

The regular services at the new location will be at 9:45 a.m. for Sunday School and 10:45 a.m. for morning worship.

There will be a dinner on the grounds at noon.

Special speaker at the dedication services will be the Rev. Thurmond Coley, student at Tennessee Temple School, Chattanooga, Tenn.

My Answer

By BILLY GRAHAM

QUESTION: How can the Bible which was written thousands of years ago, have, as you said, the answers for all our problems, when the situation is so different today?

T.E.

ANSWER: The Bible speaks to the problems of the heart and spirit; to the questions having to do with life and death. These have never changed. The man driving an expensive car down a super highway has exactly the same spiritual problems and needs of a man riding a camel across the desert in Abraham's time. The woman working in a modern air-conditioned office today has the same need of a right relationship with Christ which the woman in the heart of Africa has. The Bible speaks to us, telling us of sin in all of its ugly manifestations. It tells us how Christ came to solve the sin problem and it makes the redeeming love of God, as found in His Son, real to us — something which we may have without cost — to be received by an act of faith. As an illustration of how modern the Bible is, take the Book of Proverbs. This was probably written about 300 years ago and yet any young person today will find that it tells of the problems of sex, of honesty, of right and wrong as they are faced right now. In fact, if a young person will read Proverbs daily (31 chapters — one for each day of the month), he will find it the greatest handbook for right living to be had anywhere. The Bible is actually more current than tomorrow morning's newspaper because it is the only book which tells us about the future too.

Churches Join In Monroe Area Tent Meetings

An old fashion tent meeting is in progress on Winnsboro Road just outside of the Monroe city limits under the direction of the Churches of God of the Monroe and Bastrop districts.

The meeting will continue nightly through Friday.

The Rev. C. W. Kendall, pastor of the Bastrop Church is evangelist. The Rev. L. A. Brannen of the Monroe Church and the Rev. W. D. Johnson of the West Monroe Church are in charge of devotionals.

The meeting features singing and prayers for the sick. The Rev. T. L. Lowery, radio evangelist is also on the meeting program.

Youthful Unity

EINDHOVEN, Holland (AP) — A group of Protestant and Roman Catholic youths here have formed an interchurch team to "give visible and lasting form" to friendships started at a recent ecumenical youth conference.

The new group will do social service work and meet to study the movement for Christian unity and to discuss doctrines and practices. Their first project is a joint campaign to sell Bibles.

FROM HUMBLE BEGINNING

Rapid Progress Of Group Cited

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
Associated Press Religion Writer

He was an ordinary farm boy, an agile wrestler, handy with a wood axe. Then one day he reported that he had received a vision from God.

Neighbors laughed at him. A preacher told him "such things are of the devil." He was arrested, shot at, called a troublemaker, an object of contempt.

"Though I was hated and persecuted for saying that I had seen a vision," he wrote, "yet it was true. I knew it. God knew it. I could not deny it."

BEGINNINGS

Such were the humble, ridiculed beginnings, 135 years ago, of a movement that today has become one of the most prosperous, diversified and fast expanding religious forces in the world.

It is the Church of Jesus Christ of the Latter-day Saints (Mormon).

That it should have reached its present stature from its most unpromising origins is a modern paradox.

Starting next Wednesday night, Aug. 1, and for the ensuing three nights, the strange account will be dramatized in mammoth pageantry on a hillside near Palmyra, N.Y.

It will be the 25th anniversary of the performance, probably the largest religious spectacle in the country, and is expected to draw 100,000 spectators from across the country.

SITE

The site is Hill Cumorah, the place where young Joseph Smith avowed he received the revelations that led to the founding of the church.

He was only in his 'teens at the time, with no special training, a hard-working farm youth, making his astonishing, derided claims, but with the stubbornness to stick with them.

Incredibly, out of his determination, developed an institution that today has about two million members, with a recently accelerating growth that has added a half million adherents in the last decade.

NEW BUILDINGS

It is building a skyscraper office building in Manhattan, and has scores of other building projects going around the world—on an annual building budget of about $50 million—with new structures rising at the rate of three a week.

It has more than 11,000 full-time missionaries at work, about 5,000 of them throughout this country, and 6,000 in Europe, Latin America, Asia, Africa and the South Pacific. Expansion in Great Britain has been particularly notable.

It owns a dozen different business enterprises, including 620 farms, 30 canneries, a coal mine, flour and sugar mills, several broadcasting outlets, clothing plants, 125,000 acres of ranch land, insurance companies, a bank, 978 buildings of revenue-producing real estate.

New Briefs In Religion Around Globe

By LOUIS CASSELS
United Press International

When the Vatican Council convenes in Rome on Oct. 11, Americans may watch the historic event on television — thanks to the new Telstar satellite.

Catholic sources report that negotiations are underway in Rome for live television coverage of the opening of the council, which will be the first such worldwide meeting of Catholic bishops in 92 years.

PASTORS NEEDED

The Church of England, faced with a serious clergy shortage, is launching a major drive to recruit more men for the ministry. Local clergymen are being urged to preach sermons on the need, and posters are being sent to boys' schools. There is talk of appointing a full-time "recruiting officer" to stimulate interest in clerical vocations.

The church needs at least 800 new clergymen a year just to fill vacancies resulting from death and retirement. Last year, it ordained only 604 men.

MERGERS

If church mergers are possible on the denominational level, why not on the level of local congregations?

That is the reasoning of Bishop W. Vernon Middleton of the Western Pennsylvania area of the Methodist Church, and Dr. Douglas S. Vance, administrator of the Pennsylvania Synod of the United Presbyterian Church.

They have jointly recommended that small, struggling congregations explore the possibilities of merging across denominational lines to form at least one strong Protestant Church in each community.

TAX RELIEF

A well-known Protestant editor, Dr. Daniel A. Poling of the Christian Herald, has advocated tax relief for Catholic parents and others who pay tuition to educate their children in church-related schools.

In an editorial in the current issue of the Christian Herald, Dr. Poling noted that individuals are allowed to claim income tax deductions for contributions to churches because churches are regarded as civic assets.

To permit tax deductions for tuition payments to church-related schools, he said, would recognize their "civic usefulness" and help to solve the "vexing and even ominous" dispute over direct public subsidies for religious schools.

CHARGES

Sudan, which adjoins Egypt, has been an independent nation since 1956. In its population of 12 million, Moslems outnumber Christians by a ratio of about 20 to 1.

In a statement issued by its executive secretary, Fr. Frederick A. McGuire, the Catholic mission secretariat said the Sudanese government has passed a new law, placing such severe restrictions on the activities of missionaries that it is likely to "cripple Christian mission efforts."

A spokesman for the Sudanese embassy in Washington denied that the new law has "any anti-Christian intent." He said it was drafted to insure "proper cooperation between missionaries and the government."

State Session For Women Is Arranged

Methodist women from churches throughout Louisiana will convene in Shreveport, August 13-17, for their Annual School of Missions and Christian Service. The five-day school will hold classes and clinics at Centenary College from 2 p.m. Monday until 10 a.m. Friday.

It is sponsored by the Louisiana Conference Woman's Society of Christian Service and Wesleyan Service Guild.

Mrs. G. W. Dameron of Pineville is Louusiana Conference president of the Woman's Society, and Miss Arline Tyler of Shreveport heads the Guild. In charge of the school are Mrs M. R. Tatum of Shreveport, dean; Mrs. Wideman Watson of Homer, chairman; Mrs. W. D. Snelling of Shreveport, registrar; and Mrs. J. T. Eubanks of Shreveport, housing.

TOPICS

Study topics and instructors are "The Christian Mission on the Rim of East Asia" will be taught by Miss Alice Alsup of Dallas, former missionary to East Asia, and Mrs. W. B. Landrum of Little Rock, field worker for the Woman's Division of Christian Service. "The Church's Mission and Persons of Special Need," taught by Mrs. G. W. Dameron, Pineville, conference president; and Mrs. Martha Overbey, church and community worker from the Woman's Division in the Alexandria District.

"Prayer," will be the topic of discussion in groups led by Mrs. Guy Hicks of Alexandria, former conference secretary of spiritual life; Miss Mildred Osment of Jonesboro, Ark., North Arkansas conference president; and Miss Ethelene Sampley of Fort Pierce, Fla., director of Christian Education. The course "Today's Children for Tomorrow's World," will have Mrs. C. A. Barr, former South Central Jurisdiction president of the Woman's Society, and Mrs. John L. Howe, Jr., Houma, conference secretary of student work, as its leaders Mrs. W. W. Paxton of Lake Charles, former missionary to Cuba, will lead this year's churchwide study entitled "Methodism's Ministry to the Handicapped." Mrs. Paxton will speak at the Bible Hour each evening on "The Bible and God's Mission."

CLINICS

Departmental clinics for Woman's Society officers will also be held.

A special feature of the school which was started last year is the selection of 24 high school or college age girls (three from each of the eight districts in the state) to attend the school.

The women will be housed in Centenary College dormitories and will be served in the cafeteria.

6-Day Revival Is Scheduled At New Chapel Hill

A revival opening Sunday, August 5 at New Chapel Hill Baptist Church, Arkansas Road, West Monroe, will continue through the following Friday.

Services will be held daily at 10 a.m. and 7:30 p.m., with the Rev. T. R. Coulter, pastor of East View Baptist Church, Laurel, Miss., serving as evangelist, according to the Rev. James A. Smith, pastor.

A. E. Chapman is church music director. A nursery will be open during every service.

Area Church Slates Revival

A revival will be held at Beulah Baptist Church, Route Two, Oak Grove, starting Sunday, August 5, and continuing daily at 9 a.m. and 8 p.m.

The Rev. J. W. Crosby, pastor of Transylvania Baptist Church will be evangelist. The Rev. Pat C. Morris is pastor.

FROM HUMBLE BEGINNING

Rapid Progress Of Group Cited

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
Associated Press Religion Writer

He was an ordinary farm boy, an agile wrestler, handy with a wood axe. Then one day he reported that he had received a vision from God.

Neighbors laughed at him. A preacher told him "such things are of the devil." He was arrested, shot at, called a troublemaker, an object of contempt.

"Though I was hated and persecuted for saying that I had seen a vision," he wrote, "yet it was true. I knew it. God knew it. I could not deny it."

BEGINNINGS

Such were the humble, ridiculed beginnings, 135 years ago, of a movement that today has become one of the most prosperous, diversified and fast expanding religious forces in the world.

It is the Church of Jesus Christ of the Latter-day Saints (Mormon).

That it should have reached its present stature from its most unpromising origins is a modern paradox.

Starting next Wednesday night, Aug. 1, and for the ensuing three nights, the strange account will be dramatized in mammoth pageantry on a hillside near Palmyra, N.Y.

It will be the 25th anniversary of the performance, probably the largest religious spectacle in the country, and is expected to draw 100,000 spectators from across the country.

SITE

The site is Hill Cumorah, the place where young Joseph Smith avowed he received the revelations that led to the founding of the church.

He was only in his 'teens at the time, with no special training, a hard-working farm youth, making his astonishing, derided claims, but with the stubbornness to stick with them.

Incredibly, out of his determination, developed an institution that today has about two million members, with a recently accelerating growth that has added a half million adherents in the last decade.

NEW BUILDINGS

It is building a skyscraper office building in Manhattan, and has scores of other building projects going around the world—on an annual building budget of about $50 million—with new structures rising at the rate of three a week.

It has more than 11,000 full-time missionaries at work, about 5,000 of them throughout this country, and 6,000 in Europe, Latin America, Asia, Africa and the South Pacific. Expansion in Great Britain has been particularly notable.

It owns a dozen different business enterprises, including 620 farms, 30 canneries, a coal mine, flour and sugar mills, several broadcasting outlets, clothing plants, 125,000 acres of ranch land, insurance companies, a bank, 978 buildings of revenue-producing real estate.

REV. W. A. MASSEY, pastor of the First Baptist Church of Urania and a student at New Orleans Baptist Theological Seminary, will be speaker on the closing day of a revival at the First Baptist Church of Calhoun. The revival will open 7:30 p.m. Monday and continue daily through Sunday, August 5.

Church Sets Services At New Location

The Liberty Baptist Church will hold services today in its new permanent location at 401 Slack St., West Monroe, it was announced by the Rev. John Dallalio, pastor.

DEDICATION

The permanent quarters, which will be dedicated at 2:30 p.m., formerly housed the Slack Street Church of Christ. The one story frame structures include a sanctuary and an educational building, which provide more space for the Liberty Church.

The Liberty Church was organized about a year and a half ago. It is non - affiliated.

The regular services at the new location will be at 9:45 a.m. for Sunday School and 10:45 a.m. for morning worship.

There will be a dinner on the grounds at noon.

Special speaker at the dedication services will be the Rev. Thurmond Coley, student at Tennessee Temple School, Chattanooga, Tenn.

My Answer

By BILLY GRAHAM

QUESTION: How can the Bible which was written thousands of years ago, have, as you said, the answers for all our problems, when the situation is so different today?

T.E.

ANSWER: The Bible speaks to the problems of the heart and spirit; to the questions having to do with life and death. These have never changed. The man driving an expensive car down a super highway has exactly the same spiritual problems and needs of a man riding a camel across the desert in Abraham's time. The woman working in a modern air conditioned office today has the same need of a right relationship with Christ which the woman in the heart of Africa has. The Bible speaks to us, telling us of sin in all of its ugly manifestations. It tells us how Christ came to solve the sin problem and it makes the redeeming love of God, as found in His Son, real to us — something which we may have without cost — to be received by an act of faith. As an illustration of how modern the Bible is, take the Book of Proverbs. This was probably written about 300 years ago and yet any young person today will find that it tells of the problems of sex, of honesty, of right and wrong as they are faced right now. In fact, if a young person will read Proverbs daily (31 chapters — one for each day of the month), he will find it the greatest handbook for right living to be had anywhere. The Bible is actually more current than tomorrow morning's newspaper because it is the only book which tells us about the future too.

Churches Join In Monroe Area Tent Meetings

An old fashion tent meeting is in progress on Winnsboro Road just outside of the Monroe city limits under the direction of the Churches of God of the Monroe and Bastrop districts.

The meeting will continue nightly through Friday.

The Rev. C. W. Kendall, pastor of the Bastrop Church is evangelist. The Rev. L. A. Brannen of the Monroe Church and the Rev. W. D. Johnson of the West Monroe Church are in charge of devotionals.

The meeting features singing and prayers for the sick. The Rev. T. L. Lowery, radio evangelist is also on the meeting program.

Youthful Unity

EINDHOVEN, Holland (AP) — A group of Protestant and Roman Catholic youths here have formed an interchurch team to "give visible and lasting form" to friendships started at a recent ecumenical youth conference.

The new group will do social service work and meet to study the movement for Christian unity and to discuss doctrines and practices. Their first project is a joint campaign to sell Bibles.

New Briefs In Religion Around Globe

By LOUIS CASSELS
United Press International

When the Vatican Council convenes in Rome on Oct. 11, Americans may watch the historic event on television — thanks to the new Telstar satellite.

Catholic sources report that negotiations are underway in Rome for live television coverage of the opening of the council, which will be the first such worldwide meeting of Catholic bishops in 92 years.

PASTORS NEEDED

The Church of England, faced with a serious clergy shortage, is launching a major drive to recruit more men for the ministry. Local clergymen are being urged to preach sermons on the need, and posters are being sent to boys' schools. There is talk of appointing a full-time "recruiting officer" to stimulate interest in clerical vocations.

The church needs at least 800 new clergymen a year just to fill vacancies resulting from death and retirement. Last year, it ordained only 604 men.

MERGERS

If church mergers are possible on the denominational level, why not on the level of local congregations?

That is the reasoning of Bishop W. Vernon Middleton of the Western Pennsylvania area of the Methodist Church, and Dr. Douglas S. Vance, administrator of the Pennsylvania Synod of the United Presbyterian Church.

They have jointly recommended that small, struggling congregations explore the possibilities of merging across denominational lines to form at least one strong Protestant Church in each community.

TAX RELIEF

A well-known Protestant editor, Dr. Daniel A. Poling of the Christian Herald, has advocated tax relief for Catholic parents and others who pay tuition to educate their children in church-related schools.

In an editorial in the current issue of the Christian Herald, Dr. Poling noted that individuals are allowed to claim income tax deductions for contributions to churches because churches are regarded as civic assets.

To permit tax deductions for tuition payments to church-related schools, he said, would recognize their "civic usefulness" and help to solve the "vexing and even ominous" dispute over direct public subsidies for religious schools.

CHARGES

Sudan, which adjoins Egypt, has been an independent nation since 1956. In its population of 12 million, Moslems outnumber Christians by a ratio of about 20 to 1.

In a statement issued by its executive secretary, Fr. Frederick A. McGuire, the Catholic mission secretariat said the Sudanese government has passed a new law, placing such severe restrictions on the activities of missionaries that it is likely to "cripple Christian mission efforts."

A spokesman for the Sudanese embassy in Washington denied that the new law has "any anti-Christian intent." He said it was drafted to insure "proper cooperation between missionaries and the government."

State Session For Women Is Arranged

Methodist women from churches throughout Louisiana will convene in Shreveport, August 13-17, for their Annual School of Missions and Christian Service. The five-day school will hold classes and clinics at Centenary College from 2 p.m. Monday until 10 a.m. Friday.

It is sponsored by the Louisiana Conference Woman's Society of Christian Service and Wesleyan Service Guild.

Mrs. G. W. Dameron of Pineville is Louisiana Conference president of the Woman's Society, and Miss Arline Tyler of Shreveport heads the Guild. In charge of the school are Mrs. M. R. Tatum of Shreveport, dean; Mrs. Wideman Watson of Homer, chairman; Mrs. W. D. Snelling of Shreveport, registrar; and Mrs. J. T. Eubanks of Shreveport, housing.

TOPICS

Study topics and instructors are "The Christian Mission on the Rim of East Asia" will be taught by Miss Alice Alsup of Dallas, former missionary to East Asia, and Mrs. W. B. Landrum of Little Rock, field worker for the Woman's Division of Christian Service. "The Church's Mission and Persons of Special Need," taught by Mrs. G. W. Dameron, Pineville, conference president; and Mrs. Martha Overbey, church and community worker from the Woman's Division in the Alexandria District.

"Prayer," will be the topic of discussion in groups led by Mrs. Guy Hicks of Alexandria, former conference secretary of spiritual life. Miss Mildred Osment of Jonesboro, Ark., North Arkansas conference president; and Miss Ethelene Sampley of Fort Pierce, Fla., director of Christian Education. The course "Today's Children for Tomorrow's World," will have Mrs. C. A. Barr, former South Central Jurisdiction president of the Woman's Society, and Mrs. John L. Howe, Jr., Houma, conference secretary of student work, as its leaders. Mrs. W. W. Paxton of Lake Charles, former missionary to Cuba, will lead this year's churchwide study entitled "Methodism's Ministry to the Handicapped." Mrs. Paxton will speak at the Bible Hour each evening on "The Bible and God's Mission."

CLINICS

Departmental clinics for Woman's Society officers will also be held.

A special feature of the school which was started last year is the selection of 24 high school or college age girls (three from each of the eight districts in the state) to attend the school.

The women will be housed in Centenary College dormitories and will be served in the cafeteria.

6-Day Revival Is Scheduled At New Chapel Hill

A revival opening Sunday, August 5 at New Chapel Hill Baptist Church, Arkansas Road, West Monroe, will continue through the following Friday.

Services will be held daily at 10 a.m. and 7:30 p.m., with the Rev. T. R. Coulter, pastor of East View Baptist Church, Laurel, Miss., serving as evangelist, according to the Rev. James A. Smith, pastor.

A. E. Chapman is church music director. A nursery will be open during every service.

Area Church Slates Revival

A revival will be held at Beulah Baptist Church, Route Two, Oak Grove, starting Sunday, August 5, and continuing daily at 9 a.m. and 8 p.m.

The Rev. J. W. Crosby, pastor of Transylvania Baptist Church will be evangelist. The Rev. Pat C. Morris is pastor.

His Fashions Catch Favor By Simplicity

PARIS (AP)—Philippe Venet is a quiet man of fashion who made a lot of noise Saturday simply by doing less of what other designers have been doing more of.

After witnessing a week of exaggerated this or that, buyers and the press at his fashion opening found the simplicity of his collection not only chic but a pleasant relief.

Instead of giant shawl collars, for example, the coats by designer Venet had lapels sometimes less than two inches wide.

Instead of mammoth swirling fur stole the Venet models carried tiny ringed scarfs. Instead of neck pieces that reached to the eyes, the pretty manikins' adam's apples were concealed. In place of having hairy fur blouses, Venet's ladies wore traditional easy fitting silks and wools under their suit jackets.

Over-all his silhouette included a slightly rounded back, wider than usual shoulders, a natural waist, and a slightly longer hemline.

Venet did exaggerate jacket lengths, though, but to a point where they became conservative little coats over slim skirts.

Everything cut from his lacy wools or loose woven tweeds was given a body consciousness of its own without really snuggling up to the model's figure. And many of Venet's tailored costumes featured tucks or soft pleats.

Shoulders of a coat were rolled softly over set-in sleeves. Jacket coat fronts were given a horizontal tuck under the closing button. Dresses were plain and simply beautiful sleeveless with a princess fit. Or they were softly draped crepes with criss-cross sashes and V-necks.

Hoods on handsome rain capes were larger than usual but that was because they were plush with colorful feather lining and were worn over hats at that.

Tilted back on the model's head were fedoras with the brims reversed; fez hats, pill boxes dancing with ostrich feathers; and balls of white mink with black roses embedded in them.

Even for evening wear Venet remained conservative, cutting away just a little of the neck line. And making skirts just a little full, not voluminous. He succumbed to the jewel dress fad but even so he sometimes compromised by sticking the sparkers on a transparent net that fell over the satin fitted costume itself.

Everything at Venet's was in quiet good taste that the audience was noisy with its applause.

CAB Proposes Southern Stay At Vicksburg

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Civil Aeronautics Board examiner Friday recommended that service of Southern Airways to Bogalusa, be discontinued but that service to Vicksburg, Miss., be continued for a further 18-month trial period.

The examiner also recommended that Greenwood, Miss., remain as an intermediate point on Southern's segment-7 route between New Orleans and Memphis, Tenn., and that Oxford, Miss., be retained in the same service segment.

The decision of examiner Henry F. Martin Jr. is subject to appeal and review by the board, but becomes a final decision in 30 days unless objections are raised.

The Southern portion of segment 7 between Jackson and New Orleans was recommended for abandonment. The two points are linked by different flight segments of the airline.

The examiner found that Vicksburg failed to generate the passenger traffic volume technically required, but concluded that a prolonged pilot's strike and unusual personnel problems at the Vicksburg airport were very largely to blame.

Martin held that the city's prospects of industrial growth are good, and that an additional temporary trial period ending Dec. 31, 1963, should be given to afford Vicksburg reasonable opportunities to meet the traffic test.

Polio Reported For Last Week Year's Highest

ATLANTA (UPI)—More cases of polio were reported in the United States this past week than during any other week this year, the U.S. Communicable Disease Center (CDC) said Friday.

CDC said a total of 23 cases of polio, 19 paralytic, were reported for the week ended July 21.

Fifteen of the cases, 11 of them paralytic, were reported from Texas where more than half of the cases have been occurring.

There has been a total of 270 cases of polio, 206 paralytic, reported in the nation for the first 29 weeks of this year. This slightly less than 288 cases reported during the same period last year but barely a third of the 724 cases reported in the same period in 1960.

In 1959, there were 1,733 cases of polio reported through the first 29 weeks more than six times as many as the present number.

APPLIED TO TAX RETURNS

Percentage Depletion Is Familiar Expression

By EDWARD JAMIESON
World Capitol Bureau

WASHINGTON — The term "percentage depletion allowance" has become familiar to millions of Americans during the past several years as its application to the income tax returns of American oil and gas producers has come under a steadily increasing attack in Congress.

It is a safe guess, however, that not more than one in twenty-five of the persons who have heard the oil depletion allowance described as a "tax loophole" and a government "giveaway" know that more than one hundred other minerals produced in this country are eligible for percentage depletion allowances.

The twenty - seven and one-half percent allowance granted oil and natural gas is the highest rate provided in the federal tax law, but there are thirty - eight other minerals, many of them produced on a large scale, which are given a twenty - three percent allowance.

Among those in this group are such well known minerals as lead, zinc, bauxite, manganese, sulphur, uranium, asbestos, colbalt, mercury, tungsten, tin, mica and nickel.

Actually, the tax credit claimed by domestic oil and gas producers averages only about 22 per cent, computations by the American Petroleum Institute as well as several other oil associations, show. This is due to the provision in the law which grants the 27½ per cent, but at the same time imposes a 50 percent of net income limitation.

There are some fifty minerals which receive a fifteen per cent rate. They include such well known products as copper, gold, iron ore, limestone, silver, potash, gypsum, granite, feldspar, slate, talc, borax and marble.

Another six, including coal and lignite, receive a ten per cent allowance, and eight, including gravel, brick and tile clay, pumice, sand, stone and mollusk shells, get five per cent.

Rarely does a Senator or member of the House of Representatives, attacking the oil and gas allowance, even mention the fact that one hundred other minerals are getting similar allowances.

The oil and gas allowable has been on the statute books since 1926 when the Treasury Department, after ten years of trying to fix actual cost depletion on oil wells in order to arrive at a producer's tax threw up its hands and asked Congress to adopt a specific percentage allowance. Treasury did not recommend the rate at that time, but it was fixed by action of the Congress after considerable study of the risks involved in the exploration for oil. Natural gas was not even considered at that point, for it was still considered a waste product then and did not begin to have a commercial value for nearly another decade.

Defenders of the higher rate granted oil and gas point to two major reasons: (1), the risk involved in drilling an exploratory well and (2), inability to determine the eventual total production of any well once it has been drilled and begins producing.

In the case of virtually all other minerals, exploratory risks are not so great and once a deposit is found, it can be fairly accurately measured so that the actual rate of depletion annually can be determined.

Another vote in the Senate on one of some half dozen amendments seeking to reduce the oil and gas rate which are pending may come this session, though plans of their sponsors are still indefinite due to the uncertainty surrounding Senate action on the so-called over - all tax bill voted earlier this by the House.

But even the leaders in the fight against the present allowance, Democratic Senators Paul Douglas of Illinois and William Proxmire of Wisconsin and Republican Senator John J. Williams of Delaware privately admit they hold little hope for adoption of such legislation this year.

They are paving the way for the all - out drive that it is expected in the next Congress, when even the tax - writing House Ways and Means Committee, which has kept hands off the subject for years, plans to take a look at it.

The Treasury Department, despite a study of the question for the past several years, is not ready to make any specific recommendations now, but plans to submit a report to Congress sometime early next year. What the Treasury will propose is anyone's guess, but it definitely will oppose any move to return to actual cost depletion which proved impossible to administer during the early years of the income tax law.

STOCKS GO UPWARD

Taxes Preoccupy Wall Street Minds

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market returned to the upside last week but on the lightest trading in a year.

Wall Street was preoccupied with whether President Kennedy would recommend an immediate tax cut. Since the President has postponed his decision until time in August when he will have in hand the economic reports for July, the financial community was left in a kind of limbo.

Toward the end of the week, as a result of a published article which stated flatly that the President has decided on a $7 billion reduction of income taxes, sentiment in the Street began to improve. Even though White House sources denied that Kennedy has made up his mind, the general feeling among the brokerage fraternity was that a tax cut is probable.

This was enough to improve buying somewhat but not enough to cause any general enthusiasm among a public which last spring saw the worst stock crash since 1929.

Volume faded to 13,914,661 shares from 15,962,490 in the previous week and was the lowest for any full trading week since the week ended July 22, 1961, when turnover was 13,502,340.

The blue chips represented in the Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, this indicator advanced 7.82 to 585.00.

In the over-all market of 1,442 issues traded, however, gainers outnumber loses.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks last week made a moderate gain of 1.20 at 216.80.

A decline in gold mining shares, which have had quite a speculative rise on hopes of some traders that the dollar would be devalued, was traced to Kennedy's renewed pledge that the United States would devalue the dollar. The President underlined this by stating that those who speculate against the dollar are going to lose.

A further result of the President's remark was a strengthening of the dollar in foreign exchange markets.

A rally by motor stocks in the final two trading days was fueled not only by good earnings reports from Detroit but also by Wall Street investment advisories stressing that 1962 looks like the industry's second best year.

Stocks of savings and loan holding companies rallied on news that the Senate Finance Committee has softened its tax proposals on these thrift institutions.

Trading dropped to its slowest pace of the year in U. S. government bonds. And corporate bond activity on the New York Stock Exchange totaled only $20.43 million.

Testing Dates At Northeast Are Announced

Pre-entrance orientation guidance tests at Northeast Louisiana State College for the fall semester will be given Aug. 4, Sept. 7, and during freshman orientation on Sept. 17, Herman R. Sigler, director of testing and guidance, has announced.

Testing for the Aug. 4 and Sept. 7 dates will commence at 8 a.m. and end at 3:30 p.m. in Gunby Dining Hall. The time of testing on Sept. 17 will be announced in the orientation assembly.

Students taking the tests on the first two dates may see the results prior to registration, and students taking the tests on Sept. 17 will have the reults available for discussion at registration on Sept. 19.

The results of the tests will be used by students and the college staff in counseling and planning students' programs and schedules.

All persons interested in attending Northeast State in the fall semester are urged to take the tests on Aug. 4 or Sept. 7.

WINDS KILL SIX

WARSHAW (UPI) —Storms and high winds in Poland Friday and Saturday killed six persons and injured more than 20.

BEATING CLAIMED

Albany Suffers More Troubles

ALBANY, Ga. (UPI) — Followers of jailed integration leader Martin Luther King Jr. unleashed a new wave of demonstrations here Saturday and one Negro leader turned up at the police station bleeding profusely from the mouth and claiming he had been beaten by the sheriff.

The Negro who claimed he was beaten was attorney C. B. King, no relation to Martin Luther King.

When Police Chief Laurie Pritchett demanded to know what happened to him, the injured Negro first refused to answer and Pritchett called for an ambulance.

As he was being carried away, King told newsmen:

"This is the dignity of law in Dougherty (Albany) County. I have just been beaten by your sheriff, D. C. Campbell."

Newsmen immediately dashed to Campbell's office, across the street from city hall to get the sheriff's explanation.

Campbell said he told King to get out of his office three or four times. "He refused to leave so I put him out. That's all I have to say to you."

Pritchett arrived at the sheriff's office a short time later and spoke briefly with Campbell.

Later he told reporters:

"This is all very regrettable. It is exactly what we have been trying to prevent and will prevent in the city at all costs. I don't know what provoked this incident. Sheriff Campbell is a veteran law officer and a good officer. He has been a dedicated officer for 53 years." Campbell is in his 70's.

Pritchett immediately instructed his officers to clear all loiterers off the streets. "I don't want to see anybody congregating around here," he said.

The new demonstrations started minutes after Dr. W. G. Anderson, an associate of King's, posted $400 so he could appear on a national television show (Meet the Press) to tell the "Albany story" to the world.

Anderson was released at 2:15 p.m. EST and in rapid succession two groups of demonstrators appeared in front of city hall and were promptly arrested by Pritchett and his men.

The first group of nine was taken into custody for picketing with placards that read, "Oh Pritchett, Open Them Cells," and "Legal to Picet in Albany? Police Say No."

The second group of 28 was arrested after staging a 30-minute kneel-in on the city hall steps. Six were carried into jail on stretchers when the refused to walk.

Pritchett warned the group before finally ordering the arrests.

"All right now, folks," he said. "I don't want to have to put you in jail. Get up and go about your business."

One woman in the original group of 29 rose and stepped back after Pritchett spoke. The others allowed themselves to be arrested. The second group included 21 juveniles.

Pritchett stood over demonstrators while they prayed. Once or twice he leaned over and tapped one of the ministers on the shoulder and tried quietly to interrupt but when the preacher did not respond the chief stood by and waited patiently for him to finish.

APPLIED TO TAX RETURNS

Percentage Depletion Is Familiar Expression

By EDWARD JAMIESON
World Capitol Bureau

WASHINGTON — The term "percentage depletion allowance" has become familiar to millions of Americans during the past several years as its application to the income tax returns of American oil and gas producers has come under a steadily increasing attack in Congress.

It is a safe guess, however, that not more than one in twenty-five of the persons who have heard the oil depletion allowance described as a "tax loophole" and a government "giveaway" know that more than one hundred other minerals produced in this country are eligible for percentage depletion allowances.

The twenty - seven and one-half percent allowance granted oil and natural gas is the highest rate provided in the federal tax law, but there are thirty - eight other minerals, many of them produced on a large scale, which are given a twenty - three percent allowance.

Among those in this group are such well known minerals as lead, zinc, bauxite, manganese, sulphur, uranium, asbestos, colbalt, mercury, tungsten, tin, mica and nickel.

Actually, the tax credit claimed by domestic oil and gas producers averages only about 22 per cent, computations by the American Petroleum Institute as well as several other oil associations, show. This is due to the provision in the law which grants the 27½ per cent, but at the same time imposes a 50 percent of net income limitation.

There are some fifty minerals which receive a fifteen per cent rate. They include such well known products as copper, gold, iron ore, limestone, silver, potash, gypsum, granite, feldspar, slate, talc, borax and marble.

Another six, including coal and lignite, receive a ten per cent allowance, and eight, including gravel, brick and tile clay, pumice, sand, stone and mollusk shells, get five per cent.

Rarely does a Senator or member of the House of Representatives, attacking the oil and gas allowance, even mention the fact that one hundred other minerals are getting similar allowances.

The oil and gas allowable has been on the statute books since 1926 when the Treasury Department, after ten years of trying to fix actual cost depletion on oil wells in order to arrive at a producer's tax threw up its hands and asked Congress to adopt a specific percentage allowance. Treasury did not recommend the rate at that time, but it was fixed by action of the Congress after considerable study of the risks involved in the exploration for oil. Natural gas was not even considered at that point, for it was still considered a waste product then and did not begin to have a commercial value for nearly another decade.

Defenders of the higher rate granted oil and gas point to two major reasons: (1), the risk involved in drilling an exploratory well and (2), inability to determine the eventual total production of any well once it has been drilled and begins producing.

In the case of virtually all other minerals, exploratory risks are not so great and once a deposit is found, it can be fairly accurately measured so that the actual rate of depletion annually can be determined.

Another vote in the Senate on one of some half dozen amendments seeking to reduce the oil and gas rate which are pending may come this session, though plans of their sponsors are still indefinite due to the uncertainty surrounding Senate action on the so-called over - all tax bill voted earlier this by the House.

But even the leaders in the fight against the present allowance, Democratic Senators Paul Douglas of Illinois and William Proxmire of Wisconsin and Republican Senator John J. Williams of Delaware privately admit they hold little hope for adoption of such legislation this year.

They are paving the way for the all - out drive that it is expected in the next Congress, when even the tax - writing House Ways and Means Committee, which has kept hands off the subject for years, plans to take a look at it.

The Treasury Department, despite a study of the question for the past several years, is not ready to make any specific recommendations now, but plans to submit a report to Congress sometime early next year. What the Treasury will propose is anyone's guess, but it definitely will oppose any move to return to actual cost depletion which proved impossible to administer during the early years of the income tax law.

STOCKS GO UPWARD

Taxes Preoccupy Wall Street Minds

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market returned to the upside last week but on the lightest trading in a year.

Wall Street was preoccupied with whether President Kennedy would recommend an immediate tax cut. Since the President has postponed his decision until time in August when he will have in hand the economic reports for July, the financial community was left in a kind of limbo.

Toward the end of the week, as a result of a published article which stated flatly that the President has decided on a $7 billion reduction of income taxes, sentiment in the Street began to improve. Even though White House sources denied that Kennedy has made up his mind, the general feeling among the brokerage fraternity was that a tax cut is probable.

This was enough to improve buying somewhat but not enough to cause any general enthusiasm among a public which last spring saw the worst stock crash since 1929.

Volume faded to 13,914,661 shares from 15,962,490 in the previous week and was the lowest for any full trading week since the week ended July 22, 1961, when turnover was 13,502,340.

Blanchard's Homer Beats ChiSox; Dean Hurt In Old Timers Contest

Yanks Rally In 7th Inning For 4-3 Win

NEW YORK (AP) — Johnny Blanchard's three-run pinch homer and Mickey Mantle's 21st home run, both in the seventh inning, helped the New York Yankees celebrate Old Timers' day Saturday with a 4-3 victory over Chicago.

The Yanks' American League lead was stretched to five full games as Los Angeles lost to Detroit.

The largest Yankee Stadium crowd of the season, 52,038, thrilled to the antics of the 1937 National and American League All-Stars in the 25th anniversary 2-2 game preceding the regularly scheduled contest. Joe Dimaggio hit a two-run homer for the Americans and Dizzy Dean, hurt in 1937, was injured again when he suffered a sprained ankle.

Chicago hopped on Whitey Ford for three runs in the fifth inning and held a 3-0 lead going to the last of the seventh with Ed Fisher allowing only two hits.

North, South Capture Dixie Host Openers

The North League and South League All - Stars won decisive first - round victories Saturday night in West Monroe's Dixie Host Tournament playoffs, Northside trouncing the East, 18-0, and the South defeating the West stars, 12-2.

Two second - round matches will be played Monday evening and single contests are slated for Tuesday, Wednesday and possibly Thursday.

Steve Clark pitched a no-hitter for the Northside in the opening game that was called after three innings because of rain. Gary Rankin and catcher Mike Oglesbee paced the winners with two hits in three at-bats, Weldon Idom and Johnny Carter were the losing battery.

The South's Mike Johnston spun a neat three - hitter in the nightcap which went the regulation six innings. Catcher Richard Martin blasted two home runs and a single in four trips to the plate and Steve Rhodes also had three singles in four tries.

Bill Foster was the West All-Star's top hitter with a double and single in four official trips to the plate. Bill Bryant started for the losers with Jerry Dowdy relieving in the third and Marty Tidwell in the fifth. Foster handled all the catching duties.

Mahaffey Hurls Brilliant Game, Phils Beat Bucs

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Art Mahaffey of the Phillies pitched a perfect game for five innings and a no-hitter for 6 1-3 innings against Pittsburgh Saturday night but had to settle for a 4-hitter as the Phils beat the Bucs 9-2.

Sifford, Kroll Far In Front Of Canadian Open Entires

MONTREAL (AP)—Charlie Sifford, the halfway leader, and veteran Ted Kroll shot far out in front of the field in the $30,000 Canadian Golf Open Saturday with 54-hole totals of 208. They were four strokes in front of third place Bobby Brue of Milwaukee.

Sifford, 39-year-old cigar-smoking Los Angeles pro who was five times U. S. Negro champion, shot a steady 70 over the par 72 Laval-Sur-Le-Lac course, to go with earlier rounds of 71 and 67. Kroll, who started the third round a stroke back of Sifford, had 69, after a sizzling 33 on the front nine. Brue posted a 69 for a 212 total.

Jack Nicklaus, U. S. Open champion, snapped back to life with a 4-under-par 68 to move into contention with a 213 total. Sharing that spot were George Knudson, the first round leader who shot 73 Saturday, and Al Geiberger of Carlton Oaks, Calif., who had 68.

Sifford, who was the first round leader with a 63 in the Canadian Open in 1955 but faded to 19th, had his first bogey of the tournament on the eighth hole. But he almost had one at the third when his 3-foot putt for a par hung on the lip for what seemed like a minute before it fell in.

TAPE MEASURE SHOT

Cash Blast Sparks Tigers Past Angels

DETROIT (AP)—Norm Cash, hitting only .237 in defense of his batting crown, strengthened his bid for the home run title with another tape measure shot Saturday as the Detroit Tigers trounced Los Angeles 6-1.

The three - run blast, Cash's 29th, landed atop the right field roof at the 370-foot mark in right center.

Cash, whose 1961 average of .361 was the highest in the major leagues, leads the American League home run race by two over the Angels' slumping Leon Wagner.

Broadcaster Trips During 2-2 Standoff

NEW YORK (AP) — Dizzy Dean, whose pitching career was shortened by an injury suffered in the 1937 All-Star game, was hurt again Saturday when he suffered a sprained ankle in a re-enactment of the game on its 25th anniversary.

Dean, former St. Louis Cardinal pitcher and Hall of Famer who is now a television broadcaster, fell over first base when he covered the bag after Charlie Gehringer, former Detroit second baseman, grounded to Johnny Mize, leading off in the American first inning.

In 1937 it was a line drive off the bat of Earl Averill of Cleveland that felled Dean. When he tried to pitch in regular turn, favoring the injured toe, he hurt his arm. Averill, incidentally, was the next hitter after Gehringer in Saturday's lineup.

The game wound up in a 2-2 tie, called after two innings as the feature of the New York Yankees' 16th annual Old Timers' day.

A crowd of about 6,000 cheered the former greats. The big moment was an inside - the - park home run by Joe Dimaggio, the favorite Yankee, after Averill singled. Jo-Jo Moore, former New York Giant, retreated and fell as Dimaggio's liner went over the center fielder's head. The ball rolled all the way to the 461-foot mark on the bleacher wall. Van Mungo, ex-Brooklyn Dodger, was on the mound.

After his tour of the bases Dimaggio battled to get his breath and then said, "Whew, I quit. This is the second time I've retired from baseball."

AUGUST 20-25

Little Boys Series Pairings Released

Pairings for the seventh annual Little Boys Baseball Dixie World Series, scheduled August 20-25 in West Monroe, have been announced by Marvin L. Smith, Louisiana's Little Boys president and head of the host West Monroe leagues.

The Louisiana champion, to be decided in the forthcoming Ferriday tournament, will open the tournament against the Mississippi champion at 1 p.m. August 20 in the North Seventh street park of West Monroe's Little Boys.

The West Monroe entry, not contending in the state tournament but getting an automatic place in the big show as host, will appear first in the double elimination meet against the champions of Tennessee in a night game August 20.

Other contenders will be the champions of South Carolina, Alabama, Florida, and a Virginia-Georgia entry that will represent both states after their bi-state tournament.

The West Monroe contenders are being determined in the Dixie Host Tournament currently in progress in West Monroe where all-star teams of the East, West, North, and South leagues are in double elimination play to determine the official host contender.

Fourteen and possibly 15 games will be played in the Dixie World Series with four games on opening day, August 20, four games August 21, three games August 22, two games August 23, a single game August 24, and a possible single August 25.

The first round pairings are:

Louisiana vs. Mississippi, 1 p.m.; South Carolina vs. Virginia-Georgia, 3 p.m.; Alabama vs. Florida, 6 p.m.; Tennessee vs. West Monroe, 8 p.m.

"This schedule will be followed on dates and time specified," Smith said. "Postponed games that might be necessitated will be rescheduled in the order of postponement by the commissioner (Danny Jones of South Charleston, S.C.). The home team in all instances will be determined by the flip of a coin."

Howard Bats In Four Runs For Winners

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Frank Howard continued his phenomenal show of power Saturday night by driving in four runs with a homer and two singles as the league-leading Los Angeles Dodgers defeated San Francisco 8-6 before 54,532.

The victory put the Dodgers three full games ahead of the second-place Giants, who have lost eight in a row in Los Angeles. This is the Dodgers' biggest National League lead since 1955.

In his last 36 games, Howard has hit 14 homers and driven in 47 runs. During the same stretch he also has hit 14 doubles and a triple and raised his batting average from .256 to over .300.

Howard broke a 4-4 tie in the fifth inning with his 19th homer. Ron Fairly was aboard with a single. Tommy Davis had hit his 16th in the same inning and increased his league-leading RBI total to 105.

Bob Bolin, the second of five San Francisco pitchers, served the home run pitches to Davis and Howard in the four-run Dodger fifth and suffered his first loss in seven decisions.

Ed Roebuck, the unbeaten Dodger reliever, was knocked out in the ninth after working four innings but got his seventh victory. Roebuck gave up a run in the eighth on Tom Haller's 10th homer.

With two out in the San Francisco ninth, Harvey Kuenn walked, Orlando Cepeda singled and Felipe Alou scored Kuenn with a double. With the tying runs on second and third, Ron Perranoski came on in relief and got pinch hitter Bob Nieman to end the game by grounding out.

There were 28 hits in the game, 16 by the Dodgers.

4-Ball Event Set Aug. 11-12 At Highland

Highland Park Country Club's sixth annual Four - Ball Golf Tournament, one of the largest in north Louisiana, will be held August 11-12 over the West Monroe course.

Qualifying for the 54-hole tournament will be held Aug. 4-10. An entry fee of $15 will be charged for the tourney, which will be limited to 96 players.

Prizes worth $180 will be awarded in each flight and a special medalist prize will also be given.

A pro - am tourney will kick off the tournament on Aug. 10. The pro - am and Four - Ball are expected to draw some of the top pros and amateurs in Louisiana, Arkansas and Mississippi.

Sammy Love and Irving King, both now pros, are the defending champions of the Four - Ball meet.

Other outstanding golfers expected to contend for championship berths are state senior champion Ken Holt of West Monroe, Cotton States champion Jack Rivers of Monroe, state amateur king Bert Burdick of Baton Rouge, Bill Jones, former Cotton States titlist, Alvin Singley of Greensboro Ala., Chuck Lewis of Little Rock and Mac McCurry and John Bell, both ex - El Dorado Country Club champs.

Yanks Rally In 7th Inning For 4-3 Win

NEW YORK (AP) — Johnny Blanchard's three-run pinch homer and Mickey Mantle's 21st home run, both in the seventh inning, helped the New York Yankees celebrate Old Timers' day Saturday with a 4-3 victory over Chicago.

The Yanks' American League lead was stretched to five full games as Los Angeles lost to Detroit.

The largest Yankee Stadium crowd of the season, 52,038, thrilled to the antics of the 1937 National and American League All-Stars in the 25th anniversary 2-2 game preceding the regularly scheduled contest. Joe Dimaggio hit a two-run homer for the Americans and Dizzy Dean, hurt in 1937, was injured again when he suffered a sprained ankle.

Chicago hopped on Whitey Ford for three runs in the fifth inning and held a 3-0 lead going to the last of the seventh with Ed Fisher allowing only two hits

North, South Capture Dixie Host Openers

The North League and South League All-Stars won decisive first-round victories Saturday night in West Monroe's Dixie Host Tournament playoffs, Northside trouncing the East, 18-0, and the South defeating the West stars, 12-2.

Two second-round matches will be played Monday evening and single contests are slated for Tuesday, Wednesday and possibly Thursday.

Steve Clark pitched a no-hitter for the Northside in the opening game that was called after three innings because of rain. Gary Rankin and catcher Mike Oglesbee paced the winners with two hits in three at-bats, Weldon Idom and Johnny Carter were the losing battery.

The South's Mike Johnston spun a neat three-hitter in the nightcap which went the regulation six innings. Catcher Richard Martin blasted two home runs and a single in four trips to the plate and Steve Rhodes also had three singles in four tries.

Bill Foster was the West All-Star's top hitter with a double and single in four official trips to the plate. Bill Bryant started for the losers with Jerry Dowdy relieving in the third and Marty Tidwell in the fifth. Foster handled all the catching duties.

Mahaffey Hurls Brilliant Game, Phils Beat Bucs

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Art Mahaffey of the Phillies pitched a perfect game for five innings and a no-hitter for 6 1-3 innings against Pittsburgh Saturday night but had to settle for a 4-hitter as the Phils beat the Bucs 9-2.

Sifford, Kroll Far In Front Of Canadian Open Entires

MONTREAL (AP)—Charlie Sifford, the halfway leader, and veteran Ted Kroll shot far out in front of the field in the $30,000 Canadian Golf Open Saturday with 54-hole totals of 208. They were four strokes in front of third place Bobby Brue of Milwaukee.

Sifford, 39-year-old cigar-smoking Los Angeles pro who was five times U S. Negro champion, shot a steady 70 over the par 72 Laval-Sur-Le-Lac course, to go with earlier rounds of 71 and 67. Kroll, who started the third round a stroke back of Sifford, had 69, after a sizzling 33 on the front nine. Brue posted a 69 for a 212 total.

Jack Nicklaus, U S Open champion, snapped back to life with a 4-under-par 68 to move into contention with a 213 total. Sharing that spot were George Knudson, the first round leader who shot 73 Saturday, and Al Geiberger of Carlton Oaks, Calif., who had 68

Sifford, who was the first round leader with a 63 in the Canadian Open in 1955 but faded to 19th, had his first bogey of the tournament on the eighth hole. But he almost had one at the third when his 3-foot putt for a par hung on the lip for what seemed like a minute before it fell in

TAPE MEASURE SHOT

Cash Blast Sparks Tigers Past Angels

DETROIT (AP)—Norm Cash, hitting only .237 in defense of his batting crown, strengthened his bid for the home run title with another tape measure shot Saturday as the Detroit Tigers trounced Los Angeles 6-1.

The three-run blast, Cash's 29th, landed atop the right field roof at the 370-foot mark in right center

Cash, whose 1961 average of .361 was the highest in the major leagues, leads the American League home run race by two over the Angels' slumping Leon Wagner

Broadcaster Trips During 2-2 Standoff

NEW YORK (AP) — Dizzy Dean, whose pitching career was shortened by an injury suffered in the 1937 All-Star game, was hurt again Saturday when he suffered a sprained ankle in a re-enactment of the game on its 25th anniversary.

Dean, former St. Louis Cardinal pitcher and Hall of Famer who is now a television broadcaster, fell over first base when he covered the bag after Charlie Gehringer, former Detroit second baseman, grounded to Johnny Mize, leading off in the American first inning.

In 1937 it was a line drive off the bat of Earl Averill of Cleveland that felled Dean. When he tried to pitch in regular turn, favoring the injured toe, he hurt his arm. Averill, incidentally, was the next hitter after Gehringer in Saturday's lineup

The game wound up in a 2-2 tie, called after two innings as the feature of the New York Yankees' 16th annual Old Timers' day.

A crowd of about 6,000 cheered the former greats. The big moment was an inside-the-park home run by Joe Dimaggio, the favorite Yankee, after Averill singled. Jo-Jo Moore, former New York Giant, retreated and fell as Dimaggio's liner went over the center fielder's head. The ball rolled all the way to the 461-foot mark on the bleacher wall. Van Mungo, ex-Brooklyn Dodger, was on the mound.

After his tour of the bases Dimaggio battled to get his breath and then said, "Whew, I quit. This is the second time I've retired from baseball."

AUGUST 20-25

Little Boys Series Pairings Released

Pairings for the seventh annual Little Boys Baseball Dixie World Series, scheduled August 20-25 in West Monroe, have been announced by Marvin L. Smith, Louisiana's Little Boys president and head of the host West Monroe leagues.

The Louisiana champion, to be decided in the forthcoming Ferriday tournament, will open the tournament against the Mississippi champion at 1 p.m. August 20 in the North Seventh street park of West Monroe's Little Boys.

The West Monroe entry, not contending in the state tournament but getting an automatic place in the big show as host, will appear first in the double elimination meet against the champions of Tennessee in a night game August 20.

Other contenders will be the champions of South Carolina, Alabama, Florida, and a Virginia-Georgia entry that will represent both states after their bi-state tournament.

The West Monroe contenders are being determined in the Dixie Host Tournament currently in progress in West Monroe where all-star teams of the East, West, North, and South leagues are in double elimination play to determine the official host contender.

Fourteen and possibly 15 games will be played in the Dixie World Series with four games on opening day, August 20, four games August 21, three games August 22, two games August 23, a single game August 24, and a possible single August 25.

The first round pairings are:

Louisiana vs. Mississippi, 1 p.m.; South Carolina vs. Virginia-Georgia, 3 p.m.; Alabama vs. Florida, 6 p.m.; Tennessee vs. West Monroe, 8 p.m.

"This schedule will be followed on dates and time specified," Smith said. "Postponed games that might be necessitated will be rescheduled in the order of postponement by the commissioner (Danny Jones of South Charleston, S.C.). The home team in all instances will be determined by the flip of a coin."

Howard Bats In Four Runs For Winners

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Frank Howard continued his phenomenal show of power Saturday night by driving in four runs with a homer and two singles as the league-leading Los Angeles Dodgers defeated San Francisco 8-6 before 54,532.

The victory put the Dodgers three full games ahead of the second-place Giants, who have lost eight in a row in Los Angeles. This is the Dodgers' biggest National League lead since 1955.

In his last 38 games, Howard has hit 14 homers and driven in 47 runs. During the same stretch he also has hit 14 doubles and a triple and raised his batting average from .256 to over .300.

Howard broke a 4-4 tie in the fifth inning with his 19th homer. Ron Fairly was aboard with a single. Tommy Davis had hit his 18th in the same inning and increased his league-leading RBI total to 105.

Bob Bolin, the second of five San Francisco pitchers, served the home run pitches to Davis and Howard in the four-run Dodger fifth and suffered his first loss in seven decisions.

Ed Roebuck, the unbeaten Dodger reliever, was knocked out in the ninth after working four innings but got his seventh victory. Roebuck gave up a run in the eighth on Tom Haller's 10th homer.

With two out in the San Francisco ninth, Harvey Kuenn walked, Orlando Cepeda singled and Felipe Alou scored Kuenn with a double. With the tying runs on second and third, Ron Perranoski came on in relief and got pinch hitter Bob Nieman to end the game by grounding out.

There were 28 hits in the game, 16 by the Dodgers.

4-Ball Event Set Aug. 11-12 At Highland

Highland Park Country Club's sixth annual Four-Ball Golf Tournament, one of the largest in north Louisiana, will be held August 11-12 over the West Monroe course.

Qualifying for the 54-hole tournament will be held Aug. 4-10. An entry fee of $15 will be charged for the tourney, which will be limited to 96 players.

Prizes worth $180 will be awarded in each flight and a special medalist prize will also be given.

A pro-am tourney will kick off the tournament on Aug. 10. The pro-am and Four-Ball are expected to draw some of the top pros and amateurs in Louisiana, Arkansas and Mississippi.

Sammy Love and Irving King, both now pros, are the defending champions of the Four-Ball meet.

Other outstanding golfers expected to contend for championship berths are state senior champion Ken Holt of West Monroe, Cotton States champion Jack Rivers of Monroe, state amateur king Bert Burdick of Baton Rouge, Bill Jones, former Cotton States titlist, Alvin Singley of Greensboro, Ala., Chuck Lewis of Little Rock and Mac McCurry and John Bell, both ex-El Dorado Country Club champs.

GEORGE D. WIDENER'S "Seven Thirty" (2), ridden by Larry Adams, nosed out Cicada (3) to take the honors in the world's richest race for fillies and mares, the $141,875 Deleware Handicap in Staton, Del., Saturday. The winner returned $21, $12 and $5.20. (AP Wirephoto)

Seven Thirty Wins Handicap

STANTON, Del. (AP)—George D. Widener's Seven Thirty overhauled Meadow Stable's Cicada a couple of strides before the finish Saturday and won the Delaware Handicap, the world's richest race for fillies and mares, by a head at Delaware Park. Bramalea was third.

Larry Adams rode the winner, a dark bay 4-year-old daughter of Mr. Music-Time to Dine by Jamestown, who made off with $97,375 from the gross purse of $141,875.

The 1¼ mile event was a thriller for a crowd of 20,459, which turned out on the closing afternoon of Delaware's 54-day meeting under sunny skies.

All of the leading contenders for the 3-year-old filly title, as well as the older gallopers of the distaff side, were in the big handicap.

But the favored entry of Primonetta and Bramalea, from the Darby Dan Farm of John W. Galbreath, couldn't quite pull it off. The pair started at 3-2 odds.

Bramalea, a 3-year-old, got third money, seven big lengths behind the fighting leaders. The 4-year-old Primonetta, star of the stable and a 4-year-old who had won all three of her 1962 starts, was fourth, 1¼ lengths behind her stablemate after carving out the early pace in a bitter duel with Cicada.

Seven Thirty, who packed 120 pounds, returned $21, $12 and $5.20. Cicada, another 3-year-old and second choice at 7-2, returned $6.40 and $3.20, while Bramalea was $2.40 to show.

Cicada, with 114 pounds, was ridden by Willie Shoemaker. Bramalea, with 115, had Bobby Ussery up.

The time was 2:02 3-5 on a fast track, just a fifth of a second slower than this rich handicap's record.

Dixie League

Ryan Chevrolet and Ouachita Bank divided a Southside Dixie League doubleheader last night, Ryan taking the first game, 6-5, and Ouachita the second, 12-7.

Youngblood and Benton won over Howell and Corbin in the first game with Howell and Corbin besting LaDart and Floyd in the second. Corbin, Parker and Kitchens got 2-3 each for Ouachita in the second game and LaDart hit 3-4 for Ryan.

Central Bank defeated Southern Equipment, 13-9 in a playoff for first place in Monroe's Northside Dixie League.

Senior Circuit Stars Out To Even Series

7TH RECORD THIS SEASON

Stan The Man Nears Extra Base Hit Mark

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Stan Musial has set six National League or major league records this season and is closing in on a seventh mark with each extra base hit.

The 41-year-old St. Louis Cardinal outfielder could set still another National League mark if he wins his eighth batting championship. He and Honus Wagner each have won seven. In games through Friday night Musial led the league in hitting with a .350 average.

Earlier in the year Musial broke Ty Cobb's major league record for total bases, 5,863. Musial had 5,919 through Friday.

National League records to fall before Stan The Man in 1962 have been most games, 2,785 by Wagner; most at bats, 10,427 by Wagner; most runs, 1,859 by Ott; most hits, 3,430, by Wagner.

After Friday's games Musial had played in 2,848 games, been at bat 10,459 times, scored 1,897 runs and collected 3,491 hits.

The one record still within shooting distance this season is Babe Ruth's total of 1,356 extra base hits. Musial is only 18 short with 1,338.

Musial may never reach Cobb's major league mark of 3,033 games although he now expects to play at least one more year. He also will fall short of Cobb's major league records of 11,429 at bats, 2,244 runs and 4,191 hits. Musial also is 53 short of Ott's National League home run mark of 511. Ruth's major league record of 2,209 runs batted in also appears beyond reach.

In addition to the records set this year, Musial already had the most doubles, most total bases and most extra base hits in league history.

He will play in his 23rd All-Star game Monday, another record. His All-Star totals of six homers, 20 hits, 40 total bases and 60 at bats also are records.

West Is Favored In All-Star Game

BATON ROUGE, La. (Special)—The discerning eyes of the Louisiana High School Coaches Association's basketball clinic lecturers, Forest Anderson of Michigan State, Luke Marler of Southeastern, Lenny Fant of Northeast State and Jay McCreary of LSU haven't picked favorite as to which team might win Tuesday night's All - Star game in the Istrouma High gym. That's known as discretion.

By the time the fans have settled in their seats for the 8 p.m. tipoff Tuesday, the West All-Stars will be firmly established favorites to beat the East.

East Coach Reed Perriloux of Colfax was one of the first to point the finger of favoratism toward his opponents — a needless gesture since everyone who has witnessed the two teams work out has conceded the West is stronger in all departments.

Referring to his All - Star rivals, Perilloux said, "this may be one of the stronest teams ever to play in an All - Star game. They have great potential."

His statement may have held true had not West All - Stars Charles Shuffield of Ruston and Ken Arthur of Natchitoches declined invitations of the 1962 classic.

With those two stars missing the East's task of keeping pace with the West Tuesday night is somewhat smaller, but it still may be out of reach.

The East cannot match the West for individual stars. They have no Barry Haynie, the 6-5 great for Ringgold, or Don Henry, the superb shooter from Athens.

The West's list of big men — Haynie, Ken Lyons (6-5) of Sulphur, Dwight Carpenter (6-5) of Athens and Eugene Harper (6-5) of Eros gives them more size than the East. The edge in the backcourt also goes to the West because of players like Henry, Calvin Fluitt of Gueydan, Joe Moore of Fair Park, Charles Mims of LaGrange, Dennis Alexander of Bossier, Leon Barmore of Ruston, Frank Brown of Oakdale, and Deane McKinley of Byrd.

Picking a starting five from that roster is tough for West Coach Jimmy Bates of Athens. "Our most important workouts are today's and Sunday, and I should know more then. Haynie, Henry and Moore have been the most impressive during our workouts, but the other positions are still wide open.

"Henry has a sprained ankle, but he has been able to work. If he doesn't hurt it again between now and the game he'll be alright."

Coach Bates has worked Haynie at forward and center, and Moore at forward. Only 6-1, the Fair Park graduate is aggressive and a good jumper and done well in the early workouts at forward.

The problem, peculiar to All-Star games, of developing a team in a few days from relative strangers has been handled well by both All-Star coaches, who have been holding workouts since Thursday.

"All of these boys have fine ability," said Bates, "it's just a matter of getting them working together. They seem to be working as a unit a little better each day."

After Saturday's early workout Perilloux seemed to be wearing the role of the underdog well, and was pleased with his team's progress. "I'm well satisfied with them," he said. "They are in good physical shape. They are faster than I thought they would be, and that pleases me a lot.

"We'll definitely have to stop Haynie and Henry. They will give us our biggest worries, but the West team also has some other fine players."

But it is sure to include 6-6 Harry Heroman and 6-5 Ronnie Register, the East's top big men.

"I don't now the East squad real well," says Bates, "but I do know they have two fine players in Heroman and Register."

East Coach Perilloux replaced Charles Brandt of Nicholls, who declined his invitation to play in the game, Saturday with 6-3 Brent Rhodes of Port Allen.

2nd All-Star Game Slated For Monday

CHICAGO (AP) —The National League, beaten only once in the last seven summer meetings, will be out to even the over-all series with American League in the season's second major league All-Star game at Wrigley Field Monday.

A 3-1 winner in the first game, at Washington earlier this month, the National League squad rules a 6 to 5 favorite to sweep this year's two-game set, extend its winning streak to five and square the over-all series at 16 victories apiece.

The National League has trailed the AL ever since the opening game loss, at Chicago's Comiskey Park in 1933, and at one time was behind 12 games to four.

A crowd of between 35,000 and 40,000 is expected for what may be the last of the two-game All-Star program, begun in 1959. The players favor its continuance, but the American League went on record last year as favoring a return to a single annual event. An official decision is not expected to be made here since no league meetings have been scheduled.

The game, starting at 1 p.m., EST, will be telecast and broadcast nationally by NBC.

UNCERTAINTY

Because of the uncertainty of availability due to the heavy week-end schedule, the managers —Ralph Houk of the American and Fred Hutchinson of the National — have decided to hold up the nomination of the opening pitchers until Sunday night when they will also announce the batting orders.

It could well be a renewal of the opening game duel between right-handers Don Drysdale of Los Angeles and Jim Bunning of Detroit. Each hurled three scoreless innings in that first game. Bunning allowed only one hit to extend his scoreless All-Star string to eight innings. Drysdale, the majors' biggest regular season winner, also allowed but one hit in his three-inning stint.

In compliance with the rules, each manager added enough players to increase his squad to 28 players, three more than in the first game. Houk added two batters—Yogi Berra of New York and Pete Runnels of Boston; and two pitchers—Ken McBride of Los Angeles and southpaw Jim Kaat of Minnesota.

At the same time, he dropped right-hander Bill Monbouquette of Boston and retained Milt Pappas, who had replaced Hoyt Wilhelm when his Baltimore teammate sustained a minor injury.

ONE SOUTHPAW

A hand injury to Los Angeles' Sandy Koufax, a member of the first game squad, leaves the National with only one southpaw, the veteran Warren Spahn. Spahn himself was an 11th hour first game replacement for Milwaukee outfielder Henry Aaron, injured on the eve of the first game. Aaron is back on the team for the second game and Spahn remains.

Hall pitched a one-hitter for High 12 and he and Balsamo beat Dillingham and Rainer. Whatley hit 2-2 for the winners. Nush also pitched a one-hitter for Paragon with Giddins getting 2-3 for the winners. Yerger got the lone Fog Service safety. Nush and Massey won over Breard, Gill and Wyatt.

Ruston Swamps Homer, 12 To 0

RUSTON, La. (Special)—Charlie Fuller and Lane Martin combined on a two - hitter and Ruston batters banged out 12 hits in a 12-0 rout of the Homer Oilers last night in a North Louisiana Amateur League game.

Frank Betts got 3-3 and drove in three runs to pace the Ramblers while Kelton Bacon went 3-4.

Ruston is no 10-4 in league play.

7TH RECORD THIS SEASON

Stan The Man Nears Extra Base Hit Mark

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Stan Musial has set six National League or major league records this season and is closing in on a seventh mark with each extra base hit.

The 41-year-old St. Louis Cardinal outfielder could set still another National League mark if he wins his eighth batting championship. He and Honus Wagner each have won seven. In games through Friday night Musial led the league in hitting with a .350 average.

Earlier in the year Musial broke Ty Cobb's major league record for total bases, 5,863. Musial had 5,919 through Friday.

National League records to fall before Stan The Man in 1962 have been most games, 2,785 by Wagner; most at bats, 10,427 by Wagner; most runs, 1,859 by Ott; most hits, 3,430, by Wagner.

Ruth's major league record of 2,209 runs batted in also appears beyond reach.

In addition to the records set this year, Musial already had the most doubles, most total bases and most extra base hits in league history.

He will play in his 23rd All-Star game Monday, another record. His All-Star totals of six homers, 20 hits, 40 total bases and 60 at bats also are records.

Coach Bates has worked Hayne at forward and center, and Moore at forward. Only 6-3, the Fair Park graduate is aggressive and a good jumper and done well in the early workouts at forward.

The problem peculiar to All-Star games of developing a team in a few days from relative strangers has been handled well by both All-Star coaches, who have been holding workouts since Thursday.

"All of these boys have fine ability," said Bates. "It's just a matter of getting them working together. They seem to be working as a unit a little better each day."

After Saturday's early workout Perilloux seemed to be wearing the role of the underdog well, and was pleased with his team's progress. "I'm well satisfied with them," he said. "They are in good physical shape. They are faster than I thought they would be and that pleases me a lot.

"We'll definitely have to stop Hayne and Henry. They will give us our biggest worries, but the West team also has some other fine players."

Perilloux hasn't picked a lineup yet. "Four more workouts should determine our starting lineup."

But it is sure to include 6-6 Harry Heroman and 6-5 Ronnie Register, the East's top big men.

"I don't now the East squad real well," says Bates, "but I do know they have two fine players in Heroman and Register."

East Coach Perilloux replaced Charles Brandt of Nicholls, who declined his invitation to play in the game Saturday, with 6-3 Brent Rhodes of Port Allen.

2nd All-Star Game Slated For Monday

CHICAGO (AP) — The National League, beaten only once in the last seven summer meetings, will be out to even the over-all series with American League in the season's second major league All-Star game at Wrigley Field Monday.

A 3-1 winner in the first game, at Washington earlier this month, the National League squad rules a 6 to 5 favorite to sweep this year's two-game set, extend its winning streak to five and square the over-all series at 16 victories apiece.

The National League has trailed the AL ever since the opening game loss, at Chicago's Comiskey Park in 1933, and at one time was behind 12 games to four.

A crowd of between 35,000 and 40,000 is expected for what may be the last of the two-game All-Star program, begun in 1959. The players favor its continuance, but the American League went on record last year as favoring a return to a single annual event. An official decision is not expected to be made here since no league meetings have been scheduled.

The game, starting at 1 p.m., EST, will be telecast and broadcast nationally by NBC.

UNCERTAINTY

Because of the uncertainty of availability due to the heavy week-end schedule, the managers — Ralph Houk of the American and Fred Hutchinson of the National — have decided to hold up the nomination of the opening pitchers until Sunday night when they will also announce the batting orders.

It could well be a renewal of the opening game duel between right-handers Don Drysdale of Los Angeles and Jim Bunning of Detroit. Each hurled three scoreless innings in that first game. Bunning allowed only one hit to extend his scoreless All-Star string to eight innings. Drysdale, the majors' biggest regular season winner, also allowed but one hit in his three-inning stint.

In compliance with the rules, each manager added enough players to increase his squad to 28 players, three more than in the first game. Houk added two batters — Yogi Berra of New York and Pete Runnels of Boston; and two pitchers — Ken McBride of Los Angeles and southpaw Jim Kaat of Minnesota.

At the same time, he dropped right-hander Bill Monbouquette of Boston and retained Milt Pappas, who had replaced Hoyt Wilhelm when his Baltimore teammate sustained a minor injury.

ONE SOUTHPAW

A hand injury to Los Angeles' Sandy Koufax, a member of the first game squad, leaves the National with only one southpaw, the veteran Warren Spahn. Spahn himself was an 11th hour first game replacement for Milwaukee outfielder Henry Aaron, injured on the eve of the first game. Aaron is back on the team for the second game and Spahn remains.

With Sam Hanna

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Vacationing Sam Hanna turns his column over today to guest writer Joe L. Herring, educational biologist with the Louisiana Wild Life and Fisheries Commission. Mr. Herring's story deals with wildlife agents, law enforcement and game area management.)

By JOE L. HERRING
Educational Biologist

Wildlife Law Enforcement

Good morning, may I see your fishing license?

Hello, how is fishing and may I check your catch?

These are only a few of the greetings that you may receive when approached in the field or on the water by a Wildlife Agent of the Louisiana Wild Life and Fisheries Commission.

Wildlife Agents are a friend to the sportsman and are always ready to be of assistance to him.

Sportsmen may receive information on where the fish are biting, good hunting areas, or where he may go boating, from a Wildlife Agent. The Agents are always willing to be of assistance.

Wildlife is the property of the state and for this reason seasons and bag limits are set to restrict the taking of certain species of wildlife. It is the Agents job to protect this wildlife and see that those who have broken the laws pay the penalty. Seasons are set so that the sportsman will get the maximum benefit from our wildlife resources without endangering the species.

This is one reason for various game seasons to open and close at different times. Through research it has been found to harvest the game as close behind the peak of production as possible. This means that certain species may be harvested earlier than others. With staggered seasons, hunters are receiving maximum benefits of the years's production and not crowding each other in the woods while in pursuit of their favorite species.

Wildlife enforcement as a management tool has quite a history. Early nomadic family groups lived from the uncultivated lands. Their interests were in hunting, fishing and grazing with no interest in land itself. Soon agriculture settlements encroached on the wilderness but cultivated areas were left for those wishing to support himself in them. At this time of our civilization there was probably a feeling that those who plowed the land (farmers) were encroaching upon the established state of nature.

As time progressed land became a source of wealth. The control of land was about the only way that a man could acquire more wealth than could be carried in his leather pouch, maybe pockets. With this wealth it later became necessary to establish or acquire titles for the land so that upon the owner's death it could be transferred to the descendants.

History then tells us as human populations increased and those of fish and game decreased, the states developed systems of laws and organizations to handle game law enforcement.

Gabrielson, in his book "Wildlife Management" states that the first game laws in America were probably the hunting privileges granted in 1629 by the West Indies Company to persons planning colonies in New Netherlands, the provisions regarding the right of hunting in the Massachusets Bay Colonial Ordinance of 1647, and the New Jersey Concessions of Agreement of 1678. Wildlife enforcement was one of the first tools of good management.

As wildlife populations began to dwindle, it became apparent that law enforcement alone was not the entire answer to wildlife preservation. Even severe restrictions or closed seasons were not bringing back harvestable numbers.

Then came the idea of predator control. This phase started more for big game such as deer rather than for the smaller species. As time progressed the predator control concept of management caught on but was actually never clearly defined. Bounties were put on wolves, cougar, fox and other so called predator animals but was never proven effective, alone.

In 1894, the first wildlife sanctuary was established and named Yellowstone National Park. The idea was for game to become abundant on these sanctuary or refuge areas and overflow to the surrounding countryside. For most species of game this was found not to to be true. Animals were born and would die on the areas. Eventually populations would build up to such numbers that animals would starve because of lack of food, but would not leave the areas. Only relief from such areas was and still is the harvesting of certain numbers of the animals.

Today, with the exception of waterfowl the refuge idea is a tool of the past. Game Management Areas have proved much better. Here enforcement and management are tools that are working together and the production of wildlife is harvested.

The turn of the century, early 1900's produced another theory of game population buildups for the sportsmen. This idea was the artificial stocking of game birds, more commonly referred to as the release of pen-raised stock. Illinois was probably the first state to venture into this phase in 1905. Other states followed with Louisiana participating in such a program from 1941-47. After many years of research it was found that such a program was not economically feasible. Pen-raised animals were susceptible to diseases, predators, laws of nature and could not make a go in the wild.

Then the fifth tool to produce wildlife was introduced, that of habitat improvement. This phase has become an art and science within itself. Habitat improvement ecompasses those things which a wild animal needs for survival.

By producing cover, game animals in a healthy condition can escape his enemies or predators. With proper food, in quantity and quality, the animal will be in a healthy condition. So with good food, cover and enforcement huntable populations can be expected.

Today's Wildlife Agents are skilled persons. Their knowledge of wildlife is not limited to enforcing the laws but encompasses many other phases of knowledge and ability to conduct their work.

Their duties call for a knowledge of equipment; boats, motors, firearms, electrical devices, nets to name a few. Too they are expected to know the biological background of various species of wildlife and have a talking knowledge of these and the laws when asked to present programs on wildlife enforcement to civic clubs, schools or other groups.

Today Wildlife Agents are well equipped enforcement people. Not only with knowledge but with, two-way radios, autos, boats and when the need arises by air, all to be used in apprehending the wildlife violator.

In this space age, and more leisure time for Mr. Citizen, he is turning to the great out-of-doors to relax and enjoy himself. Whether it is boating on the Louisiana waterways, fishing the bayous and lakes, hunting the fields and forest, trapping the lowland areas your wildlife agent is there to to help you and protect your interest in this great out-door heritage that we have.

Remember one thing, laws are only as strong as the people who wish to back them, so with your help our Agents can assist in assuring you an enjoyable trip afield.

Hunting Seasons

A three period split season for hunting mourning doves in Louisiana was announced today by the Wild Life and Fisheries Commission. The periods, totaling 70 half days of shooting, are (1) Sept. 1 through Sept. 16, (2) Oct. 13 through Oct. 28, and (3) Dec. 7 through Jan. 13. Bag limit is 12 and possession limit 24. Dove hunting will begin at noon and end at sunset.

In announcing the three way split season, L. D. Young, Jr., commission director, stated that without a doubt this is the best season dates we have had on doves in many years. He went on to say that the three period split season should please sportsmen from every section of the state.

"We want to commend the officials of the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service for granting Louisiana such a liberal season on doves. The Wild Life and Fisheries Commission has for several years requested zoning Louisiana for the taking of doves. But the three way split season should afford hunters all over the state an opportunity to hunt this fine game bird in their immediate area," Young said.

In addition to doves, the commission also announced seasons on snipe, rails and gallinules and woodcock. The snipe season, for 30 consecutive full days, is from Dec. 15 through Jan. 13 with a bag limit of eight and eight in possession. Shooting hours on snipe will be from sunrise until sunset.

A 50-day season, from Oct. 6 through Nov. 24, for rails and gallinules was approved for Louisiana. The daily bag and possession limit for sora rails will be 25. For other rails and gallinules will be from sunrise until sunset.

Woodcock hunters in Louisiana were given 40 consecutive full days, beginning Dec. 7 and running through Jan. 13 with a bag limit of four and possession limit of eight. Woodcock shooting hours are from sunrise until sunset.

Cincinnati Blasts Milwaukee For 9 To 3 Triumph

CINCINNATI (AP) — Cincinnati Reds hitters had a fine day Saturday, pouncing on five Milwaukee pitchers for 15 hits and a 9-3 victory over the Braves.

After Eddie Mathews' 21st home run gave Milwaukee a short-lived lead in the first, the Braves were hardly in the game.

AGAINST PACKERS FRIDAY NIGHT

College Grid All-Stars Will Rank Underdogs

CHICAGO (AP) — The College All-Stars, as usual, will be rank underdogs when they face the National Football League champion Green Bay Packers in the 29th game of the series at Soldier Field Friday night.

The midsummer classic is a presentation of the Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc. and has produced more than $2 million for Chicago charities since its inception in 1934.

It will be televised and broadcast nationally (ABC) starting at 8:45, EST.

Head coach Otto Graham and his staff have been working with a group of 49 players at Northwestern University since July 12. They are the most talented players of 1961 and many will begin pro careers with the NFL or American Football League after the All-Star game.

A three-week training period is an extremely short time to weld material into a cohesive force no matter how good it is. Precision team work and a lusty mental approach are prerequisites for meeting the packaged power and savvy of a pro champion.

PROS HOLD EDGE

The collegians will be striving to become the first to defeat the pros since 1958, when the All-Stars, under Graham for the first time, trimmed the Detroit Lions 35-19. The next two years they were mangled by the Baltimore Colts 29-0 and 27-7, and last year they fell before the Philadelphia Eagles 28-14.

The pros have an 18-8 edge in the series with two games being tied.

Green Bay will be making its fourth appearance. The Packers lost 6-0 in 1937 and won 45-28 in 1940 and 19-7 in 1945.

After blanking the New York Giants 37-0 last winter for the NFL title the Packers were hailed as one of the greatest clubs in the league's history.

TALENT - LADEN STARS

To face the likes of such men as Paul Hornung, Fred Thurston, Jim Ringo, Henry Jordan, Bill Forester and Jesse Whittenton—all Associated Press All-NFL selections in 1961—Graham has a talent-laden squad.

The ends include some of the nation's best receivers last year—Greg Mather of Navy (also an outstanding placekicker); Charles Bryant, Ohio State; Gary Collins, Maryland and Bill Miller, Miami, Fla.

There are 18 guards and tackles weighing from 230 to 275 pounds.

Potentially the offensive backfield is one of the finest running groups of any—Bob Ferguson, Ohio State; Ernie Davis, Syracuse; Ronnie Bull, Baylor; Curtis McClinton, Kansas; Lance Alworth, Arkansas, and sprinter Leroy Jackson, Western Illinois.

Passing—which is expected to keynote the All-Stars hopes—will be handled by Roman Gabriel of North Carolina State, John Hadl, Kansas, and Bobby Ply, Baylor.

If all this, and more, can be put together in machine-like units and shot with confidence, the Packers may have their hands full.

Twins Rally Late; Defeat Indians, 5-3

CLEVELAND (AP) —Lenny Green delivered a sacrifice fly in the ninth inning to break a 2-2 tie and the Minnesota Twins went on to beat the Cleveland Indians 5-2 Saturday.

Jim Kaat (10-9) went the distance for the Twins and limited Cleveland to five hits. He showed no effects from an accident in his last outing when he lost three teeth as a grounder hit him in the mouth. He struck out eight.

Minnesota now has won 10 of its last 12 games, while the Indians have dropped 12 of their last 14.

Vic Power drove in Minnesota's first two runs in the fifth inning with a double.

The Indians scored one run in their half of the fifth. Bubba Phillips was hit by a pitch and raced to third on Tito Francona's single. When Green and Bob Allison allowed Jerry Kindall's pop fly to drop between them, Phillips scored.

Wildlife Law Enforcement

Good morning, may I see your fishing license?

Hello, how is fishing and may I check your catch?

These are only a few of the greetings that you may receive when approached in the field or on the water by a Wildlife Agent of the Louisiana Wild Life and Fisheries Commission.

Wildlife Agents are a friend to the sportsman and are always ready to be of assistance to him.

Sportsmen may receive information on where the fish are biting, good hunting areas, or where he may go boating, from a Wildlife Agent. The Agents are always willing to be of assistance.

Wildlife is the property of the state and for this reason seasons and bag limits are set to restrict the taking of certain species of wildlife. It is the Agents job to protect this wildlife and see that those who have broken the laws pay the penalty. Seasons are set so that the sportsman will get the maximum benefit from our wildlife resources without endangering the species.

This is one reason for various game seasons to open and close at different times. Through research it has been found to harvest the game as close behind the peak of production as possible. This means that certain species may be harvested earlier than others. With staggered seasons, hunters are receiving maximum benefits of the years's production and not crowding each other in the woods while in pursuit of their favorite species.

Wildlife enforcement as a management tool has quite a history. Early nomadic family groups lived from the uncultivated lands. Their interests were in hunting, fishing and grazing with no interest in land itself. Soon agriculture settlements encroached on the wilderness but cultivated areas were left for those wishing to support himself in them. At this time of our civilization there was probably a feeling that those who plowed the land (farmers) were encroaching upon the established state of nature.

As time progressed land became a source of wealth. The control of land was about the only way that a man could acquire more wealth than could be carried in his leather pouch, maybe pockets. With this wealth it later became necessary to establish or acquire titles for the land so that upon the owner's death it could be transferred to the descendants.

History then tells us as human populations increased and those of fish and game decreased, the states developed systems of laws and organizations to handle game law enforcement.

Gabrielson, in his book "Wildlife Management" states that the first game laws in America were probably the hunting privileges granted in 1629 by the West Indies Company to persons planning colonies in New Netherlands, the provisions regarding the right of hunting in the Massachusets Bay Colonial Ordinance of 1647, and the New Jersey Concessions of Agreement of 1678. Wildlife enforcement was one of the first tools of good management.

As wildlife populations began to dwindle, it became apparent that law enforcement alone was not the entire answer to wildlife preservation. Even severe restrictions or closed seasons were not bringing back harvestable numbers.

Then came the idea of predator control. This phase started more for big game such as deer rather than for the smaller species. As time progressed the predator control concept of management caught on but was actually never clearly defined. Bounties were put on wolves, cougar, fox and other so called predator animals but was never proven effective alone.

In 1894, the first wildlife sanctuary was established and named Yellowstone National Park. The idea was for game to become abundant on these sanctuary or refuge areas and overflow to the surrounding countryside. For most species of game this was found not to to be true. Animals were born and would die on the areas. Eventually populations would build up to such numbers that animals would starve because of lack of food, but would not leave the areas. Only relief from such areas was and still is the harvesting of certain numbers of the animals.

Today, with the exception of waterfowl the refuge idea is a tool of the past. Game Management Areas have proved much better. Here enforcement and management are tools that are working together and the production of wildlife is harvested.

The turn of the century, early 1900's produced another theory of game population buildups for the sportsmen. This idea was the artificial stocking of game birds, more commonly referred to as the release of pen-raised stock. Illinois was probably the first state to venture into this phase in 1905. Other states followed with Louisiana participating in such a program from 1941-47. After many years of research it was found that such a program was not economically feasible. Pen-raised animals were susceptible to diseases, predators, laws of nature and could not make a go in the wild.

Then the fifth tool to produce wildlife was introduced, that of habitat improvement. This phase has become an art and science within itself. Habitat improvement encompasses those things which a wild animal needs for survival.

By producing cover, game animals in a healthy condition can escape his enemies or predators. With proper food, in quantity and quality, the animal will be in a healthy condition. So with good food, cover and enforcement huntable populations can be expected.

Today's Wildlife Agents are skilled persons. Their knowledge of wildlife is not limited to enforcing the laws but encompasses many other phases of knowledge and ability to conduct their work.

Their duties call for a knowledge of equipment, boats, motors, firearms, electrical devices, nets to name a few. Too they are expected to know the biological background of various species of wildlife and have a talking knowledge of these and the laws when asked to present programs on wildlife enforcement to civic clubs, schools or other groups.

Today Wildlife Agents are well equipped enforcement people. Not only with knowledge but with, two-way radios, autos, boats and when the need arises by air, all to be used in apprehending the wildlife violator.

In this space age, and more leisure time for Mr. Citizen, he is turning to the great out-of-doors to relax and enjoy himself. Whether it is boating on the Louisiana waterways, fishing the bayous and lakes, hunting the fields and forest, trapping the lowland areas your wildlife agent is there to to help you and protect your interest in this great out-door heritage that we have.

Remember one thing, laws are only as strong as the people who wish to back them, so with your help our Agents can assist in assuring you an enjoyable trip afield.

Hunting Seasons

A three period split season for hunting mourning doves in Louisiana was announced today by the Wild Life and Fisheries Commission. The periods, totaling 70 half days of shooting, are (1) Sept 1 through Sept 16, (2) Oct 13 through Oct 28, and (3) Dec 7 through Jan 13. Bag limit is 12 and possession limit 24. Dove hunting will begin at noon and end at sunset.

In announcing the three way split season, L. D. Young, Jr., commission director, stated that without a doubt this is the best season dates we have had on doves in many years. He went on to say that the three period split season should please sportsmen from every section of the state.

"We want to commend the officials of the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service for granting Louisiana such a liberal season on doves. The Wild Life and Fisheries Commission has for several years requested zoning Louisiana for the taking of doves. But the three way split season should afford hunters all over the state an opportunity to hunt this fine game bird in their immediate area," Young said.

In addition to doves, the commission also announced seasons on snipe, rails and gallinules and woodcock. The snipe season for 30 consecutive full days is from Dec 15 through Jan 13 with a bag limit of eight and eight in possession. Shooting hours on snipe will be from sunrise until sunset.

A 50-day season, from Oct. 6 through Nov. 24, for rails and gallinules was approved for Louisiana. The daily bag and possession limit for sora rails will be 25. For other rails and gallinules will be from sunrise until sunset.

Woodcock hunters in Louisiana were given 40 consecutive full days, beginning Dec 7 and running through Jan 13 with a bag limit of four and possession limit of eight. Woodcock shooting hours are from sunrise until sunset.

Cincinnati Blasts Milwaukee For 9 To 3 Triumph

CINCINNATI (AP) — Cincinnati Reds hitters had a fine day Saturday, pouncing on five Milwaukee pitchers for 15 hits and a 9-3 victory over the Braves.

After Eddie Mathews' 21st home run gave Milwaukee a short-lived lead in the first, the Braves were hardly in the game.

AGAINST PACKERS FRIDAY NIGHT

College Grid All-Stars Will Rank Underdogs

CHICAGO (AP) — The College All-Stars, as usual, will be rank underdogs when they face the National Football League champion Green Bay Packers in the 29th game of the series at Soldier Field Friday night.

The midsummer classic is a presentation of the Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc. and has produced more than $2 million for Chicago charities since its inception in 1934.

It will be televised and broadcast nationally (ABC) starting at 8:45, EST.

Head coach Otto Graham and his staff have been working with a group of 49 players at Northwestern University since July 12. They are the most talented players of 1961 and many will begin pro careers with the NFL or American Football League after the All-Star game.

A three-week training period is an extremely short time to weld material into a cohesive force no matter how good it is. Precision team work and a lusty mental approach are prerequisites for meeting the packaged power and savvy of a pro champion.

PROS HOLD EDGE

The collegians will be striving to become the first to defeat the pros since 1958, when the All-Stars, under Graham for the first time, trimmed the Detroit Lions 35-19. The next two years they were mangled by the Baltimore Colts 29-0 and 27-7, and last year they fell before the Philadelphia Eagles 28-14.

The pros have an 18-8 edge in the series with two games being tied.

Green Bay will be making its fourth appearance. The Packers lost 6-0 in 1937 and won 45-28 in 1940 and 19-7 in 1945.

After blanking the New York Giants 37-0 last winter for the NFL title the Packers were hailed as one of the greatest clubs in the league's history.

TALENT - LADEN STARS

To face the likes of such men as Paul Hornung, Fred Thurston, Jim Ringo, Henry Jordan, Bill Forester and Jesse Whittenton—all Associated Press All-NFL selections in 1961—Graham has a talent-laden squad.

The ends include some of the nation's best receivers last year—Greg Mather of Navy (also an outstanding placekicker), Charles Bryant, Ohio State, Gary Collins, Maryland and Bill Miller, Miami, Fla.

There are 18 guards and tackles weighing from 230 to 275 pounds.

Potentially the offensive backfield is one of the finest running groups of any—Bob Ferguson, Ohio State; Ernie Davis, Syracuse; Ronnie Bull, Baylor; Curtis McClinton, Kansas; Lance Alworth, Arkansas, and sprinter Leroy Jackson, Western Illinois.

Passing—which is expected to keynote the All-Stars hopes—will be handled by Roman Gabriel of North Carolina State, John Hadl, Kansas, and Bobby Ply, Baylor.

If all this, and more, can be put together in machine-like units and shot with confidence, the Packers may have their hands full.

Twins Rally Late; Defeat Indians, 5-3

CLEVELAND (AP) —Lenny Green delivered a sacrifice fly in the ninth inning to break a 2-2 tie and the Minnesota Twins went on to beat the Cleveland Indians 5-2 Saturday.

Jim Kaat (10-9) went the distance for the Twins and limited Cleveland to five hits. He showed no effects from an accident in his last outing when he lost three teeth as a grounder hit him in the mouth. He struck out eight.

Minnesota now has won 10 of its last 12 games, while the Indians have dropped 12 of their last 14.

The Indians scored one run in their half of the fifth. Bubba Phillips was hit by a pitch and raced to third on Tito Francona's single. When Green and Bob Allison allowed Jerry Kindall's pop fly to drop between them, Phillips scored.

Monroe Morning World

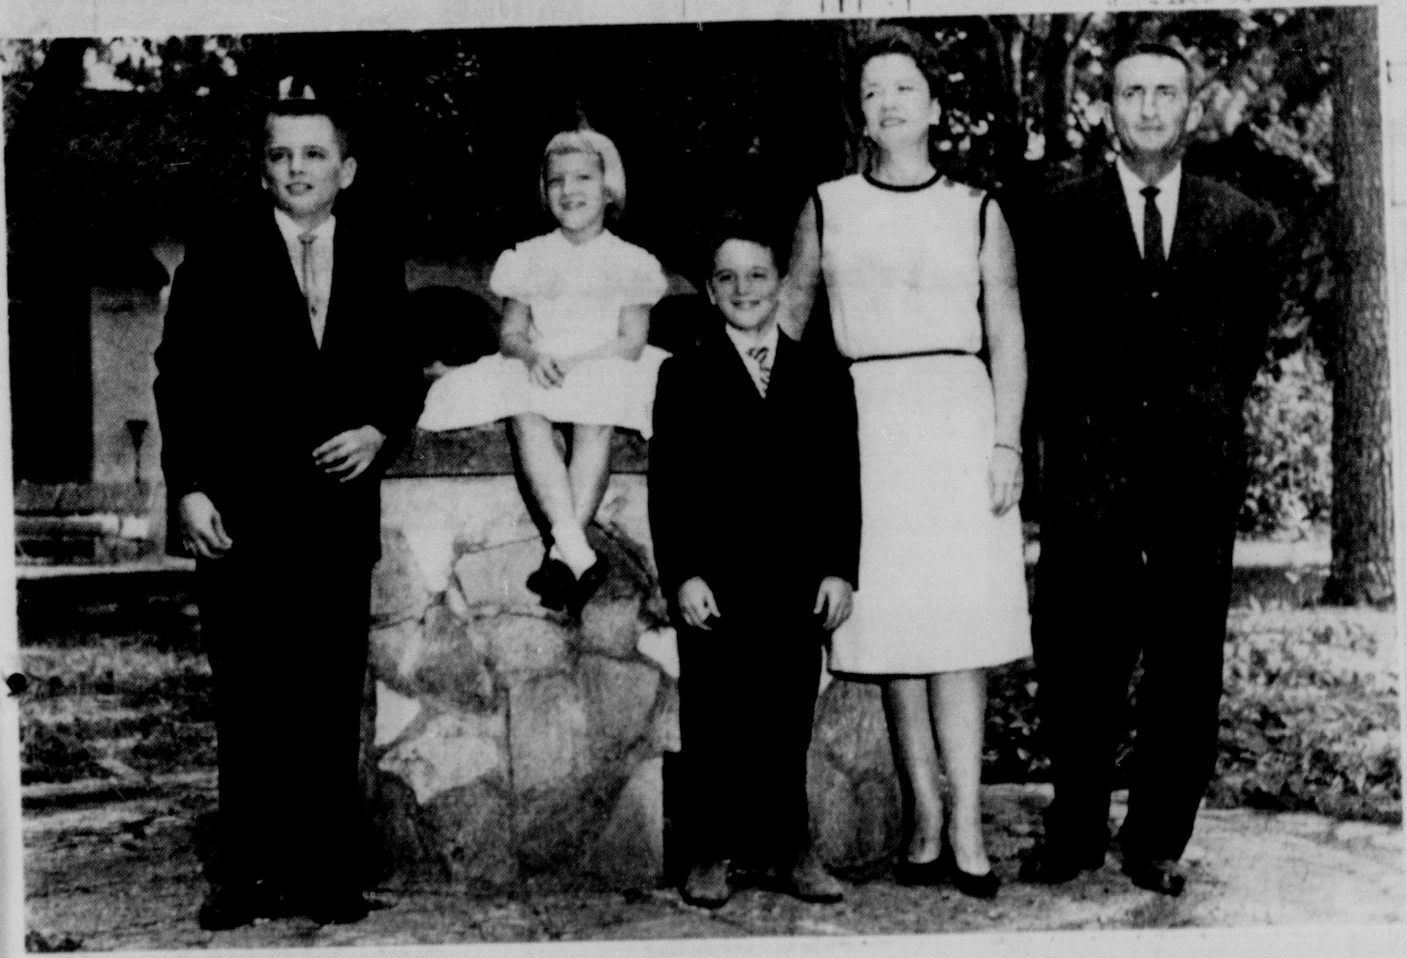
A newcomer from Bastrop, Mrs. Allen Turpin, Sr., has built this home at 3713 Loop road. At the entrance to the garden room and patio overlooking the bayou, Mrs. Turpin used these antique wrought iron gates, brought from the family home in Morehouse parish.



After a six years residence in Collinston, Mr. and Mrs. L. P. Milner, Jr., and their children have returned to Monroe. They will live at the Milner home, 1521 Park Avenue, which has been extensively remodeled. Louis, III, Nancy, Breard, Mrs. Milner, and Mr. Milner are shown at the wishing well in the rear gardens. Daughter Polly Ann, away at Camp Waldemar, was not present for the picture.

Several hundred guests from throughout North Louisiana have been invited to an open house this afternoon from five until seven at Spokane Plantation near Lake St. John, the home of the WILLIAM TURNERS. The party honors MRS. ARCH TURNER III, MRS. MISS MILLICENT TERRELL... JAMES HUFF, and TERRELL BARHAM.

Co-hosts with the Turners will be the LAWRENCE ALWOODS, JOHN BOUGHTONS, POLLARD COLEMANS, CURTISS HUFFS, WARREN KELLYS, JOHN MAXWELLS, STANLEY MAXWELLS, and ARCH TURNERS.

Parties for brides fill the calendar these summer days. A clever one here in town this week was the luau given Friday night by MILDRED and ED HEARD honoring SALLY HINKLE and FRANK COLVETT, whose wedding is planned for August 11. Mildred carried out the island theme in decorations and menu. Flaming torches lighted the way to the garden gate. Japanese lanterns and baskets of flowers hung in trees around the patio, while more flowers floated in the fountain. The honorees wore leis of fresh orchids flown in from Hawaii for the occasion.

A combo played for dancing on the patio, where guests, all wearing leis, gathered before dinner. Tropical punch was served from a keg wreathed in flowers and greenery.

A pyramid of fresh fruit and candles centered the dining table. Mildred's Island menu included chicken breasts served with Polynesian sauce (pineapple, ginger, soy sauce, cocoanut noted in this); Hawaiian rice, flavored with onions and raisins; royal bean casserole with water chestnuts, mushrooms, and cheese; and for dessert, orange shells filled with apricot sherbert and coconut.

Three brides were honored Thursday when JUNE GODFREY and SARAH RHYMES entertained at a morning party in the Godfrey home on Pargoud boulevard: JEANNETTE BROOKS, SALLY HINKLE and HELENE LOWERY of Rayville. Hostesses and honorees greeted guests in the living room, which was decorated with an arrangement of white chrysanthemums.

On the dining table, a pair of white love birds flanked the centerpiece: an antique container filled with white chrysanthemums. . . . Orange chrysanthemums were used in the family room. Chicken salad sandwiches, rolled cheese sandwiches, and orange muffins were served with coffee and bottled drinks to about one hundred fifty ladies who called between ten and twelve.

Several informal parties this week have honored DOROTHY STRAHLER of Cincinnati, Ohio, who has been visiting her sister, Helen Roberts on Country Club road. On Monday Helen invited about twenty friends in for a visit with Dorothy. A pink theme was carried out at the party, with pink roses centering the table and pink lemonade filling tall cool glasses. Pink and white confections and Brownies were also served.

IRENE KEELING was hostess for luncheon on Wednesday, honoring Dorothy. A tall hurricane light filled with lemons, white grapes, and ivy decorated the table on the porch at the Paragon. A salad plate highlighted by shrimp, with lime sherbert for dessert was the menu served to twelve guests.

Dessert-bridge at Bayou DeSiard country club was JUDY WORTHEN's compliment to Dorothy. The party was held last Friday afternoon, with four tables playing. Pie-in-the-sky was served for dessert. ANN ROWLAND won high in the bridge games, with the honoree taking the travelling prize.

On Wednesday afternoon, BEVERLY ERNST entertained wih a bridge at home, also honoring Dorothy Strahler. A bouquet of zinnias and Gerber daisies decorated the living room, where the two tables were set up. Dessert was an interesting baked dish of apples, nuts, and cinnamon. The honoree won high, and BETTY HUDGENS, low.

Week-end guests of the LEE VANDERPOOLS this week end are JEANINE and JACK BEACH and RUSTY VERKIN of Galveston, Texas, who arrived on Thursday to be here through Sunday. Last night the hosts honored their visitors with a barbecue party at the Vanderpool home on Loop road. Individual tables covered with yellow check cloths and centered with hurricane lamps were set up in the garden. Barbecue supper was served to thirty guests.

A Bon Voyage party Friday honored BETTYE SCREPETIS, Northeast State junior who leaves August 10 with the college tour of the West. Hostesses MIRDIE FOREMAN and EVELYN BLEDSOE, presented Bettye with a fitted make-up case for the trip. Pink asters and magnolia foliage decorated the entrance hall of the Foreman home on South Fifth street. On the dining table, greenery and yellow chrysanthemums echoed the color scheme of the napkins. Ten guests attended . . . Betty's trip will include stops at Yellowstone, the Seattle World's Fair, a trip by steamer to Vancouver, and a tour of San Francisco.

A mother-daughter team planning a trip West are BERNICE BARTLETT, who will travel with the Northeast college tour, and her daughter, BEVERLY BARTLETT, who is to leave next Sunday with the Louisiana Tech tour to the same area.

And speaking of San Francisco, the JAMES HEARDS, JR., are there today. With MARY E. HEARD, they sail tomorrow for Hawaii aboard the Lurline.

Cast and crew of "The Clown and His Circus," which closed a most successful run at Little Theatre Monday night, were invited to DIANE GRIFFIN's eleventh birthday party after the performance. Birthday cake and bottled drinks were served from the pink lemonade stand in the lobby. Diane's cake was decorated to suggest the play, with a carrousel at one end and clown and animal candles at the other.

Today's poem is "The Closed Door" by Thes Theodosia Garrison:

I never crossed your threshold with a grief
But that I went without it; never came
Heart hungry but you fed me, eased the blame,
And gave the sorrow solace and relief.
I never left you but I took away
The love that drew me to your side again
Through that wide door that never could remain
Quite closed between us for a little day.
Oh, friend who gave and comforted, who knew
So overwell the want of heart and mind,
Where may I turn for solace now or find relief from this unceasing loss of you?
Be it for fault, for folly, or for sin,
Oh terrible my penance and most sore
To face the tragedy of that closed door
Whereby I pass and may not enter in.

MISS MILLICIENT TERRELL BARHAM, whose engagement to William Pollard Coleman was announced last week in Bastrop by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Thomas Barham, will be honoree at an open house this afternoon at Spokane Plantation near Lake St. John from five until seven p.m. Parents of the prospective groom are among those hosting the party. A late summer wedding is planned.

Miss Yerger, Dr. David Wall To Be Married

Mr. and Mrs. William Yerger of Mound announce the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter Mary Eloise to Dr. David Weeks Wall of New Orleans, son of Mr. and Mrs. Rivers P. Wall of Baton Rouge.

The wedding will take place at the Holy Name of Jesus Church in New Orleans on Saturday August 11 at 10:30 in the morning.

Miss Yerger is a graduate of Maryville College of the Sacred Heart in St. Louis and attended the St. Louis University Law School. Dr. Wall attended Tulane University and Tulane Medical school and at present is an instructor in Tulane Medical School.

CLEANER DISHES, ATTRACTIVE HANDS

Good housekeeping and good grooming go hand in hand when you use an automatic electric dishwasher. Electric dishwashers get tableware and cooking utensils cleaner than handwashing can, by using water between 140 and 160 degrees along with strong dishwashing detergent. Letting a dishwasher do the work helps keep hands soft and lovely.

MR. AND MRS. JOHN GUERRIERO, JR., are pictured following their wedding Saturday morning, July 21, at nuptial mass in St. Matthew's Catholic church. The Rev. Father Warren T. Sarroque officiated at the double ring ceremony. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Joseph Guerriero of Monroe, and the bride's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Albert Franklin Davis of Jackson, Miss. Upon their return from an extended wedding trip, the couple will be at home at 304 Downey Lane, Monroe.

Creams, Lotion Important Aids To Skin Beauty

During the summertime, and particularly when traveling, your creams and lotions will prove one of your most important beauty aids.

For a quick pick-up, for instance when your skin feels taut and dry from air conditioned planes, trains and hotel rooms, or from too long a stay out-of-doors, cleanse your face thoroughly with moisturized liquid cleanser. Next, apply a liberal amount of dry skin cream and allow it to remain on your face during your bath or shower. The steam from the water will hasten the softening qualities of the cream and provide added moisture. After your bath, remove the cream with tissue, pat on skin freshener or astringent, and then apply your make-up. You will feel completely refreshed, and the use of these requisites regularly will help you maintain a lovely complexion.

SOMETHING NEW IN DOORS

Durability and lasting beauty are provided by architectural flush doors surfaced with decorative plastic laminates. The doors come in over 100 patterns and colors.

Several hundred guests from throughout North Louisiana have been invited to an open house this afternoon from five until seven at Spokane Plantation near Lake St. John, the home of the WILLIAM TURNERS. The party honors MRS. ARCH TURNER III, MRS. MISS MILLICENT TERRELL JAMES HUFF, and TERRELL BARHAM.

Co-hosts with the Turners will be the LAWRENCE ALWOODS, JOHN BOUGHTONS, POLLARD COLEMANS, CURTISS HUFFS, WARREN KELLYS, JOHN MAX WELLS, STANLEY MAXWELLS, and ARCH TURNERS.

Parties for brides fill the calendar these summer days. A clever one here in town this week was the luau given Friday night by MILDRED and ED HEARD honoring SALLY HINKLE and FRANK COLVETT, whose wedding is planned for August 11. Mildred carried out the island theme in decorations and menu. Flaming torches lighted the way to the garden gate. Japanese lanterns and baskets of flowers hung in trees around the patio, while more flowers floated in the fountain. The honorees wore leis of fresh orchids flown in from Hawaii for the occasion.

A combo played for dancing on the patio, where guests, all wearing leis, gathered before dinner. Tropical punch was served from a keg wreathed in flowers and greenery.

A pyramid of fresh fruit and candles centered the dining table. Mildred's Island menu included chicken breasts served with Polynesian sauce (pineapple, ginger, soy sauce, cocoanut noted in this), Hawaiian rice, flavored with onions and raisins, royal bean casserole with water chestnuts, mushrooms, and cheese, and for dessert, orange shells filled with apricot sherbert and coconut.

Three brides were honored Thursday when JUNE GODFREY and SARAH RHYMES entertained at a morning party in the Godfrey home on Pargoud boulevard: JEANNETTE BROOKS, SALLY HINKLE and HELENE LOWERY of Rayville. Hostesses and honorees greeted guests in the living room which was decorated with an arrangement of white chrysanthemums.

On the dining table, a pair of white love birds flanked the centerpiece, an antique container filled with white chrysanthemums. Orange chrysanthemums were used in the family room. Chicken salad sandwiches, rolled cheese sandwiches, and orange muffins were served with coffee and bottled drinks to about one hundred fifty ladies who called between ten and twelve.

Several informal parties this week have honored DOROTHY STRAHLER of Cincinnati, Ohio who has been visiting her sister Helen Roberts on Country Club road. On Monday Helen invited about twenty friends in for a visit with Dorothy. A pink theme was carried out at the party with pink roses centering the table and pink lemonade filling tall cool glasses. Pink and white confections and Brownies were also served.

IRENE KEELING was hostess for luncheon on Wednesday, honoring Dorothy. A tall hurricane light filled with lemons, white grapes, and ivy decorated the table on the porch at the Paragon. A salad plate highlighted by shrimp, with lime sherbert for dessert was the menu served to twelve guests.

Dessert-bridge at Bayou DeSiard country club was JUDY WORTHEN's compliment to Dorothy. The party was held last Friday afternoon, with four tables playing. Pie-in-the-sky was served for dessert. ANN ROWLAND won high in the bridge games, with the honoree taking the travelling prize.

On Wednesday afternoon BEVERLY ERNST entertained with a bridge at home, also honoring Dorothy Strahler. A bouquet of zinnias and Gerber daisies decorated the living room, where the two tables were set up. Dessert was an interesting baked dish of apples, nuts, and cinnamon. The honoree won high and BETTY HUDGENS, low.

Week-end guests of the LEE VANDERPOOLS this week end are JEANINE and JACK BEACH and RUSTY VERKIN of Galveston, Texas, who arrived on Thursday to be here through Sunday. Last night the hosts honored their visitors with a barbecue party at the Vanderpool home on Loop road. Individual tables covered with yellow check cloths and centered with hurricane lamps were set up in the garden. Barbecue supper was served to thirty guests.

A Bon Voyage party Friday honored BETTYE SCREPETIS, Northeast State junior who leaves August 10 with the college tour of the West. Hostesses MIRDIE FOREMAN and EVELYN BLEDSOE presented Bettye with a fitted make-up case for the trip. Pink asters and magnolia foliage decorated the entrance hall of the Foreman home on South Fifth street. On the dining table, greenery and yellow chrysanthemums echoed the color scheme of the napkins. Ten guests attended. Betty's trip will include stops at Yellowstone, the Seattle World's Fair, a trip by steamer to Vancouver, and a tour of San Francisco.

A mother-daughter team planning a trip West are BERNICE BARTLETT who will travel with the Northeast college tour, and her daughter BEVERLY BARTLETT who is to leave next Sunday with the Louisiana Tech tour to the same area.

And speaking of San Francisco the JAMES HEARDS JR. are there today. With MARY F. HEARD, they sail tomorrow for Hawaii aboard the Lurline.

Cast and crew of "The Clown and His Circus" which closed a most successful run at Little Theatre Monday night were invited to DIANE GRIFFIN's eleventh birthday party after the performance. Birthday cake and bottled drinks were served from the pink lemonade stand in the lobby. Diane's cake was decorated to suggest the play, with a carrousel at one end and clown and animal candles at the other.

Today's poem is "The Closed Door" by Theodosia Garrison.

I never crossed your threshold with a grief
But that I went without it; never came
Heart hungry but you fed me, eased the blame
And gave the sorrow solace and relief.
I never left you but I took away
The love that drew me to your side again
Through that wide door that never could remain
Quite closed between us for a little day.
Oh friend who gave and comforted, who knew
So overwell the want of heart and mind,
Where may I turn for solace now, or find
relief from this unceasing loss of you?
Be it for joy, for pity or for sin,
Oh terrible my penance and most sore
To face the tragedy of that closed door
Whereby I pass and may not enter in.

MISS MILLICIENT TERRELL BARHAM, whose engagement to William Pollard Coleman was announced last week in Bastrop by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Thomas Barham, will be honoree at an open house this afternoon at Spokane Plantation near Lake St. John from five until seven p.m. Parents of the prospective groom are among those hosting the party. A late summer wedding is planned.

MR. AND MRS. JOHN GUERRIERO, JR., are pictured following their wedding Saturday morning, July 21, at nuptial mass in St. Matthew's Catholic church. The Rev. Father Warren T. Sarroque officiated at the double ring ceremony. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Joseph Guerriero of Monroe, and the bride's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Albert Franklin Davis of Jackson, Miss. Miss Yerger, Dr. David Wall To Be Married

Mr. and Mrs. William Yerger of Mound announce the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter Mary Elose to Dr. David Weeks Wall of New Orleans, son of Mr. and Mrs. Rivers P. Wall of Baton Rouge.

The wedding will take place at the Holy Name of Jesus Church in New Orleans on Saturday August 11 at 10:30 in the morning.

Miss Yerger is a graduate of Maryville College of the Sacred Heart in St. Louis and attended the St. Louis University Law School. Dr. Wall attended Tulane University and Tulane Medical school and at present is an instructor in Tulane Medical School.

Summer Tip: Mothers Must Organize Time

Summertime is not vacation time for housewife.

She must do chores, take care of the household duties, prepare the meals, supervise the activities of the children and the hundred other things which are her daily schedule.

Each day has only twenty - four hours. But you can make them stretch, if you organize your time more efficiently.

One of the most effective ways of doing this, according to the Educational Bureau of Timex Watches, is to make a list.

At the beginning of each day, invest a few minutes in writing a list. You'll reap dividends all DA YLONG. For instance:

1. LIST the whole family's daily (and weekly) appointments on a kitchen bulletin board so everyone can see at a glance that Dad is due at the Little League game at 1:30, Mary has a piano lesson at 4; Mother is to be at the dentist at 3:15. In this manner no one wastes time looking for anyone else, appointments are never forgooten, and transportation can be coordinated.

2. LIST your food needs by categories. Make a permanent record of basic food needs: condiments, cereals, dairy goods, vegetables, so that, prior to shopping, you can make up the day's shopping list without omitting even small, but important items.

. LIST your telephone calls for the list. Be sure to write down telephone numbers you are likely to use frequently so that you do not waste time looking them up again. Keep a record of area code so that you can make out-of-town calls with a minimum of delay. heck off completed calls, with call - backs, be-in-after-four, etc. so you will know which calls have been satisfactorily completed, and which are still in the "unfinished business" catefory.

4. LIST your day's errands, so that you don't miss anything and don't have to backtrack. Plan your stops systematically. If the tailor is located between the grocery and the drugstore, visit each establishment in order. Doubling back is a time - waster.

5. LIST baby - sitters instruction. Set up a permanent sheet of basic chores such as what-and-when - to - feed - whom, bedtimes for each youngster, emergency phone number, location of children's books, etc. heck what the rules are for the evening, so you won't have to waste time delivering lengthy oral instructions at the last moment when you are ready to leave.

6. LIST measurements of your nearest and dearest. You can save precious shopping time with wallet - size cards carrying such vital statistics as hat and glove sizes, waist measurements and lengths. It is also a good idea to list such peronal preference a color and type of gift the recipient has enjoyed in the past.

7. List your ideas. Keep a purse or bedside memo pad to record problems you wish to discuss with your child's teacher . . . . points you wish to make to your employer or office superior . . . bargain sales you wish to investigate tomorrow. By writing a thought down the first time, you will waste no valuable time corraling the idea a second time.

8. LIST packing needs for a trip. When vacation, or visiting time rools round, set the whole packing story down in advance. What are you planning to take? If you want to avoid a timec-onsuming last - minute search, or annoying last - minute turnings back, such a list is vital.

9. LIST your schedule for the week. In keeping with the best business practice, it is a good idea to know what your work load will be for the week. One way of doing this is to keep a large calendar book. By listing tasks to be performed and appointments to be kept, birthdays, anniversaries, and bill - paying days, you will have a well - organized guide to each week's activities. Monday morning you can look through the week's schedule and thus have an ide awhich are your busy and which your leisurely days. Knowing what lies ahead is the best time - saver of all.

Traditional Furniture Is Seen At Mart

New emphasis on the Meaiterranean and French influence in furniture were seen at the recent wholesale markets held throughout the country. Traditional furniture was in greater evidence than ever before and stores will reflect this during the fall.

There was more thought given to comfort as more completely upholstered pieces appeared. Manufacturers, too, are paying more attention to one-room living and combination dining - living rooms with their greater offerings of dual or multi - purpose furniture. The Early American hutch for example, is just as much at home with books in it in the living room as with china on its shelves for the dining room.

Underground Church

HELSINKI, Finland (AP) — Plans for construction of a large parish church here, with most of it underground and adjoining a bomb shelter, have aroused both criticism and commendations. Critics say a church should not be rendered inconspicuous by hiding it below ground. Others maintain that crypt churches are in accord with ancient Christian tradition.

MISS MARGARET SEBASTIAN GREEN

Margaret Green To Wed Don H. Oatley In August

Announcement has been made by Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Lamar Green, Sr., of Ferriday of the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Miss Margaret Sebastian Green, to Don H. Oatley, son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Townsend Oatley of Baton Rouge. The wedding is planned for Saturday evening, August 18, at eight o'clock in Sevier Memorial Methodist church in Ferriday.

The bride - elect attended Louisiana State university and was graduated from Northeast Louisiana State College. She was a campus beauty two years and a member of the Homecoming court at Northeast. She was selected by the Student Council to represent the college in the search for the country's best dressed college girls.

Mr. Oatley attended Louisiana State and was graduated from Nichols State. They will reside in Baton Rouge.

College Rooms Double For Sleep, Living

Whether it's away to college or day - hopping from home this Fall, a bedroom must be an all-purpose room . . . . a place to sleep; entertain; and study. To provide for all these activities, the room must almost be furnished like a one - room apartment.

Since the bed or beds in the room are the major pieces of furniture, the coverings selected will naturally dominate the room. Tailored styles look better and will survive the wear and tear more satisfactorily than the fussy types. For "sitting room" look, push bed into corner of room and eliminate headboard. For custom - effect, select bedspread which has matching cafe curtains.

Wise back - to - schoolers will pick furnishings which require a now filled to capacity, have only limited maintenance service, and students will be expected to share the responsibility of many housekeeping chores. No longer is it a question of beauty of practicality. Today's fabrics taek work, worry and wear out of housekeeping, and the variety of bedcoverings make beauty easy to live with. Diversified in color, mood, and design, there is a bedspread style to fit every need.

The young person decorating her room should remember that the basic color she selects will influence her mood and efficiency. Too bold colors in a smallish room will make her feel hemmed in. Too much pattern will be distracting. Too drab colors will make her feel drab. Since the wails of most rooms at school are painted a neutral, uninteresting shade, a strong shock color can usually be selected for the bedspread.

A room plan should also include a desk or table with a good reading light, where homework can be done, and chatty letters can be written to friends. Invitations, theatre programs, pin-up pictueres, etc. can become a focal point of interest instead of creating a cluttered effect, if they are pinned to pegboard or a bulletin board.

Accessories are highly important to the success of the room. These touches can make or break the atmosphere. Best of all, they can be long on color and-or cleverness, short on cost: Travel posters are very effective on walls and so inexpensive (sometimes even free). Record jackets provide a handsome wall montage at no additional cost to a student who has a collection. Framed wallpaper, fabric, or a map of the world, are all good-looking wall pieces. Dime store apothecary jars, filled with sour balls or cookies, can be a nibbler's delight as well as a decorative touch. Pots of ivy or philodendron don't require that you be a "green thumb" gardener and they give a softening, homey touch to a room. Don't overlook the "fool-the-eye" artificial flowers either. These are in abundant selection at local dime store and the only care they require is an occasional dusting. nice additions to your list would also be a wicker hamper, which can be sued to transport things from home; can be used to store laundry or items there's no place for at school; and can also be put to use as a table when pals drop in. A full - length mirror, to either hang on the wall or inside the closet door, is a boon to morale in checking pre - date appearances.

MONEY SAVED?

NEW YORK (UPI) — It does not always follow that money is saved when do - it - yourselfers make new furniture or remodel the house, the American Bankers Association (ABA) cautions.

There may be expensive tools to be purchased or rented and sometimes accidents, followed by medical bills, occur.

Light Means Right For Air Travellers

Oversized purses are being advertised as "airline cheaters." But, the wise traveler knows that no "travel light means to travel right." The wise woman carries only as many pieces of luggage as she can handle without help.

For two to four weeks abroad, one large case and an airline bag should fill the bill. The large cases are in the 24 - inch to 26 - inch class; the outsize 29 - inch case should see the average woman around the world.

The secret is packing is planning.

Style in travel is simplicity and grooming based on a coordinated wardrobe built around one basic color. The dark colors, black, brown, navy, grey, are usually — but not necessarily — the best.

Synthetic materials are in most cases both space and weight - saving. They rinse quickly; dry fast. Also pack well. Knits, both wool and silk, particularly ribbon knits, are good travelers. Summer travel calls for silks, linens and synthetics. In the fall, winter and early spring lightweight wools and synthetics are best. The wise tourist plans according to the probable weather forecasts in the places she intends to visit.

Many fashions know no time or place: the all - weather coat, the good suit, basic black dress, costume (dress and jacket) and separates form the nucleus around which the wardrobe can be built. Silk raincoats are particularly good as they can double for an evening wrap and they are pretty and lightweight.

At any time of the year: a warm sweater is protection against sudden shifts in temperature. A particularly fetching addition to the fashion scene is chiffon: deceptively styled, both covering and revealing, making it acceptable through the afteroon and into the night.

With regard to packing, here are three basic schools of thought:

1. Place everything flat.
2. Arrange all apparel in cylindrical rolls.
3 Use tissue paper.

MARK CLOTHES

When pressed with a hot iron, such crayon marks will last through numerous washings, the Cleanliness Bureau reports.

MR. AND MRS. ROBERT C. BUTZ, formerly of Monroe, now residing in Grosse Pointe Park, Michigan, announce the engagement of their daughter, Genevieve LaVerne, to Andrew Scott Adsit, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold C. Adsit of Kenilworth, Illinois. Miss Butz is the granddaughter of Mrs. William Frank Kellam of Shreveport and the late Mr. Kellam; and the great granddaughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Huckabay of Vivian. She is a graduate of Grosse Pointe High School and of Michigan State University, where she was a member of Kappa Theta sorority. In the two years since graduation, Miss Butz has been teaching in Lake Forrest, Illinois. Mr. Adsit is a graduate of DePauw university at Greencastle, Indiana, where he was a member of Delta Tau Delta; and of Northwestern School of Law in Chicago, where he was affiliated with Phi Delta Phi legal fraternity. An October wedding is planned.

SOAPSUDS

Everywhere you turn, somebody is extolling the joys of soapsuds.

A famous author declares that any man — prince or potentate — deprived of soap, water, barber, and clean linen for four weeks, couldn't get a date with Tugboat Annie!

A happy grandmother in Texas handed out cakes of her favorite soap, instead of the traditional cigars, to celebrate the birth of her first grandchild.

A noted columnist declares that the genius who invented soap has done more for men than the tinker who turned out the first wheel.

In Australia, even sheep on the hoof are treated with a soapy solution — which helps to protect the wool while it grows!

MISS ANN WANDA DOLES, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Doles Jr. of Jones, and Jesse Alex Martin, son of Mr. and Mrs. Percy Martin of Tylertown, Miss., will exchange vows August 26 at 5 p.m. in the New Hope Baptist Church of Jones. The Rev. Rawls W. Pierce of Bastrop, will perform the double ring ceremony. The bride-elect, a graduate of Bonita High School, received her degree from Northeast Louisiana State College.

ANNOUNCEMENT IS MADE today by Mr. and Mrs. B. W. Tarver of Monroe of the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Miss Billie Frances Tarver, to Gerald Wayne Paylor. Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Paylor, Jr., are parents of the prospective groom. The wedding is planned for Thursday, August 23 in the sanctuary of Central Baptist church.

MISS GRETCHEN GRESHAM is engaged to be married to Jerry Dale Till. The prospective bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. D. Gresham, Jr., while Mr. Till's parents are Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Till, all of Bernice. The wedding is planned for September 7 in Bernice Baptist church.

AUGUST 11 is the date chosen for the marriage of Miss Delane Smith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Waymon Smith of Hodge, and Jim Finton, son of Mr. and Mrs. Pierce Finton of Jonesboro. The wedding is to be at 7 p.m. at Hodge Baptist church with the Rev. J. D. Wagnon officiating.

What's Out And In For Fall

NEW YORK (AP) — When you unpack those winter clothes that you probably stored away a few weeks ago, will they be out of style?

What in your wardrobe will survive another season without revealing its age?

Fashion writers in New York for Press Week in July got an advance showing of fall fashion by members of New York Couture Group. Their notes on what's in, what's out, and what's still good, and what's new read about like this.

PASSE

Big skirts. Voluminously gathered and knife pleated ones are pared down to slightly gathered, tucked or wrapped skirts.

Bare necks. Although they plunged down to there last season, costumes for fall not only build up to the neck, they reach up to the nose, with exaggerated collars and scarves. Ball gowns are modest in front, bare in back.

Belts. They are prominent on jackets and coats, but they are missing on dresses.

Bare arms. Unflattering to older women, designers are covering them with elbow and wrist length sleeves.

Glorified linings. The shock treatment of gaudy silk print or violent plaids for linings of coats and suits and matching blouses or dresses is over. Blouses still match jacket linings, but with quieter fabrics.

OLD, BUT STILL GOOD

High waistlines. It's firmly entrenched as a part of coat and suit silhouettes, as well as dresses.

Back interest. Fronts are shaped, full backs sometimes flares free, other times are belted.

Tunics. Versions of the Rajah coat have multiplied like rabbits.

Fur. Mink's still on everything. It also trims other furs such as persian lamb, broadtail, and leopard.

Glitter. A bad stock market has done nothing at all to dampen enthusiasm for the brilliant opulence of beads, crystals and metallic fabrics.

WHAT'S NEW?

Everything seems to be inspired by another era or another culture. This year it's chic to look like a Russian with a fur bordered tunic; or an intriguing mata hari in a sweeping cape costume or trench coat; or a mystic Asian.

Fabrics are new, and uses of them are, too. For daytime heavy tweeds and fuzzy wools are combined with stains and velvet. And woolly fabrics are also used as ball gowns.

MUSIC MAKERS

CHICAGO (UPI) — Musicmaking in America has grown faster than any other leisure - time activity, the American Music Conference reports.

Today, more than 23 million adult amateur musicians and more than 10 million school-age children study or play instruments. In 1947, only 14.5 million adults and 2.5 million children were classified as amateur musicians

MISS SONYA BOWDEN

57 Homeowners Out Of 100 Paying Mortgage

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Fifty-seven of every 100 home owners in the United States are paying off a mortgage.

Three out of fivehomeowners

Three out of five home owners in debt are paying off conventional loans and two out of five are retiring loans backed by the government.

These and other facts about home ownership in the country have been turned up by the Census Bureau. Its findings are based on the 1960 census of housing.

The 57 per cent mortgage ratio for owner - occupied homes was slightly higher than the 55 per cent figure for 1956 and well above the 44 per cent of 1950.

In all, there were 27.9 million non-farm, owner-occupied one - to four-family dwelling units in 1960, including 15.8 million which were mortgaged.

Regionally, the ratio of mortgaged homes to all houses was highest in the West—66 per cent. It was 57 per cent in the Northeast, 55 per cent in the South and 53 per cent in the North Central region.

Among the 15.8 million mortgaged homes were 1.2 million securing a second or subsequent mortgage. Including these junior mortgages, the debt total was $117.2 billion, or an average of $7.400 per house. Net of junior mortgages, the average per indebted home owner was $7.300.

In 1950, there were 8.3 million home owners in debt. They owed an average of $4,100 each. The sharp increase over the decade—roughly 75 per cent—reflects price inflation and the trend towards low-downpayment buying.

Helping this trend greatly was the use of government - backed loans—those insured by the Federal Housing Administration or guaranteed by the Veterans Administration. With Uncle Sam promising to make good, lenders are willing to accept a large mortgage and a small down payment. When the lender is taking all the risk himself, he usually insists that the buyer plunk down roughly one-quarter of the purchase price so that he has an incentive to keep up his payments and avoid foreclosure.

GROWING OLD

OAKLAND, Calif. (UPI) — "The time to start growing old is one minute before you die," Dr. Lawrence K. Kinsell, chief of Oakland's Institute for Metabolic Research, said in a report to the American Academy of General Practice.

He assured his fellow doctors he was not being the least bit faceteious.

Miss Bowden To Be Bride Of Mr. Williams

The forthcoming marriage of Miss Sonya Bowden to Douglas Williams, son of Mr. and Mrs. Russell E. Williams of Delhi,, is announced today by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Bowden of Tallulah. The couple will exchange vows at 7 p.m. Saturday, September 1, in the First Baptist Church of Tallulah with the Rev. Paul Lipe of Delhi officiating.

Miss Bowden has chosen Miss Nelwyn Tullos as her maid of honor. Bridesmaids will be Mrs. Jim Brown and Miss Dot Williams, sister of the groom. The bride-to-be is the granddaughter of Mrs. Hilton Russell, Sr., of Beverly Hills, California and the late Mr. Russell; and of Mrs. A. J. Bowden of Winnsboro and the late Mr. Bowden.

The prospective groom's maternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Mack Hearn of Kilgore, Texas. Mr. Williams will attend his son as best man, and groomsmen will be John David Gowan and Jo Mack O'Neal of Delhi.

Andy Bowden, brother of the bride, will serve as ring bearer; and Sonny Lyn Stephens of Winnsboro, the bride's cousin, will be flower girl.

The couple will live in Monroe, where both are juniors at Northeast Louisiana State College.

PRESSURE COOKERY

It is important to follow directions exactly when cooking foods under pressure. According to the Gas Appliance Manufacturers Association, the automatic top burner with the heat control on the gas range is a great help in holding exact pressure and timing. Home economists with GAMA suggest placing the pressure saucepan in cold water at the end of the cooking time to reduce pressure quickly and stop cooking.

Special Care Recommended For Fringe

"Fringe benefits" of fashion get bigger by the season. Fringe not only feathers the edges of bedspreads, beach umbrellas and baby shawls, but it has become very important on place mats, tablecloths and napkins; on bath, geach and fingertip towels; on playclothes, dresses, stoles and shifts. Even bathing suits are in the swim with occasional fringe trim.

But the matting is a matter of concern. Fringe is fine, many women say, until it's been laundered.

One simple laundering step will help to keep washable fringe looking like new. Follow your own laundry recipe.

The forthcoming marriage of Miss Sonya Bowden to Douglas Williams, son of Mr. and Mrs. Russell E. Williams of Delhi,, is announced today by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Bowden of Tallulah. The couple will exchange vows at 7 p.m. Saturday, September 1, in the First Baptist Church of Tallulah with the Rev. Paul Lipe of Delhi officiating.

Miss Bowden has chosen Miss Nelwyn Tullos as her maid of honor. Bridesmaids will be Mrs. Jim Brown and Miss Dot Williams, sister of the groom. The bride-to-be is the granddaughter of Mrs. Hilton Russell, Sr., of Beverly Hills, California and the late Mr. Russell; and of Mrs. A. J. Bowden of Winnsboro and the late Mr. Bowden.

The prospective groom's maternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Mack Hearn of Kilgore, Texas. Mr. Williams will attend his son as best man, and groomsmen will be John David Gowan and Jo Mack O'Neal of Delhi.

Andy Bowden, brother of the bride, will serve as ring bearer; and Sonny Lyn Stephens of Winnsboro, the bride's cousin, will be flower girl.

The couple will live in Monroe, where both are juniors at Northeast Louisiana State College.

PRESSURE COOKERY

It is important to follow directions exactly when cooking foods under pressure. According to the Gas Appliance Manufacturers Association, the automatic top burner with the heat control on the gas range is a great help in holding exact pressure and timing. Home economists with GAMA suggest placing the pressure saucepan in cold water at the end of the cooking time to reduce pressure quickly and stop cooking.

Special Care Recommended For Fringe

"Fringe benefits" of fashion get bigger by the season. Fringe not only feathers the edges of bedspreads, beach umbrellas and baby shawls, but it has become very important on place mats, tablecloths and napkins; on bath, geach and fingertip towels; on playclothes, dresses, stoles and shifts. Even bathing suits are in the swim with occasional fringe trim.

But the matting is a matter of concern. Fringe is fine, many women say, until it's been laundered.

One simple laundering step will help to keep washable fringe looking like new. Follow your own laundry recipe.

MISS GRETCHEN GRESHAM is engaged to be married to Jerry Dale Till. The prospective bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. D. Gresham, Jr., while Mr. Till's parents are Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Till, all of Bernice. The wedding is planned for September 7 in Bernice Baptist church.

AUGUST 11 is the date chosen for the marriage of Miss Delane Smith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Waymon Smith of Hodge, and Jim Finton, son of Mr. and Mrs. Pierce Finton of Jonesboro. The wedding is to be at 7 p.m. at Hodge Baptist church with the Rev. J. D. Wagnon officiating.

57 Homeowners Out Of 100 Paying Mortgage

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Fifty-seven of every 100 home owners in the United States are paying off a mortgage.

They owe an average of $7,400 each.

Three out of fivehomeowners

Three out of five home owners in debt are paying off conventional loans and two out of five are retiring loans backed by the government.

These and other facts about home ownership in the country have been turned up by the Census Bureau. Its findings are based on the 1960 census of housing.

The 57 per cent mortgage ratio for owner - occupied homes was slightly higher than the 55 per cent figure for 1956 and well above the 44 per cent of 1950.

In all, there were 27.9 million non-farm, owner-occupied one to four-family dwelling units in 1960, including 15.8 million which were mortgaged.

Regionally, the ratio of mortgaged homes to all houses was highest in the West—66 per cent. It was 57 per cent in the Northeast, 55 per cent in the South and 53 per cent in the North Central region.

Among the 15.8 million mortgaged homes were 1.2 million securing a second or subsequent mortgage. Including these junior mortgages, the debt total was $117.2 billion, or an average of $7,400 per house. Net of junior mortgages, the average per indebted home owner was $7,300.

In 1950, there were 8.3 million home owners in debt. They owed an average of $4,100 each. The sharp increase over the decade—roughly 75 per cent—reflects price inflation and the trend towards low-downpayment buying.

Helping this trend greatly was the use of government backed loans—those insured by the Federal Housing Administration or guaranteed by the Veterans Administration. With Uncle Sam promising to make good, lenders are willing to accept a large mortgage and a small down payment. When the lender is taking all the risk himself, he usually insists that the buyer plunk down roughly one-quarter of the purchase price so that he has an incentive to keep up his payments and avoid foreclosure.

GROWING OLD

OAKLAND, Calif. (UPI) — "The time to start growing old is one minute before you die," Dr. Lawrence K. Kinsell, chief of Oakland's Institute for Metabolic Research, said in a report to the American Academy of General Practice.

He assured his fellow doctors he was not being the least bit facetious.

What's Out And In For Fall

NEW YORK (AP) — When you unpack those winter clothes that you probably stored away a few weeks ago, will they be out of style?

What in your wardrobe will survive another season without revealing its age?

Fashion writers in New York for Press Week in July got an advance showing of fall fashion by members of New York Couture Group. Their notes on what's in, what's out, and what's still good, and what's new read about like this.

PASSE

Big skirts. Voluminously gathered and knife pleated ones are pared down to slightly gathered, tucked or wrapped skirts.

Bare necks. Although they plunged down to there last season, costumes for fall not only build up to the neck, they reach up to the nose, with exaggerated collars and scarves. Ball gowns are modest in front, bare in back.

Belts. They are prominent on jackets and coats, but they are missing on dresses.

Bare arms. Unflattering to older women, designers are covering them with elbow and wrist length sleeves.

Glorified linings. The shock treatment of gaudy silk print or violent plaids for linings of coats and suits and matching blouses or dresses is over. Blouses still match jacket linings, but with quieter fabrics.

OLD, BUT STILL GOOD

High waistlines. It's firmly entrenched as a part of coat and suit silhouettes, as well as dresses.

Back interest. Fronts are shaped, full backs sometimes flares free, other times are belted.

Fur. Mink's still on everything. It also trims other furs such as persian lamb, broadtail, and leopard.

Glitter. A bad stock market has done nothing at all to dampen enthusiasm for the brilliant opulence of beads, crystals and metallic fabrics.

WHAT'S NEW?

Everything seems to be inspired by another era or another culture. This year it's chic to look like a Russian with a fur bordered tunic or an intriguing mata hari in a sweeping cape costume or trench coat, or a mystic Asian.

Fabrics are new, and uses of them are, too. For daytime heavy tweeds and fuzzy wools are combined with stains and velvet. And woolly fabrics are also used as ball gowns.

MUSIC MAKERS

CHICAGO (UPI) — Musicmaking in America has grown faster than any other leisure - time activity, the American Music Conference reports.

Today, more than 23 million adult amateur musicians and more than 10 million school-age children study or play instruments. In 1947, only 14.5 million adults and 2.5 million children were classified as amateur musicians.

Safety Check Of Home Pool Recommended

Now that the swimming season is at its peak, a "safety check" of your backyard pool can insure continued peace of mind for you and many more weeks of safe and healthful recreation for your family. Pool owners are advised to take the following steps:

1. Inspect diving boards and ladders. Loose bolts and fastenings should be tightened. Worn or frayed padding on springboards should be replaced.

2. Check the fence around the pool. (This is particularly important if your backyard is readily accessible to neighborhood children.) The fence should be "child - proof" all around. The gate should have a padlock or other fastening device so it can be locked securely when there's no one at home to provide competent supervision.

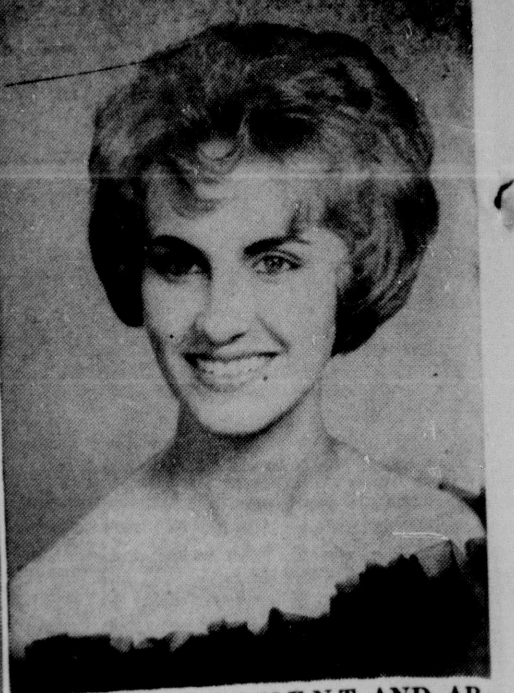
3. If your underwater lighting system is something less than brand new, it may be advisable to have a competent electrician look it over. In older pools, water may seep in around the glass and come in contact with "live" electricity inside the fixture. This can create an extremely hazardous condition for pool users.

4. Even if your pool was installed this year, you should check the lights at least once during the season to make sure the glass is tightly sealed against water seepage.

5. Make sure that the filtration system and circulating pump are functioning properly and that no water from the pool can reach the motor.

6. Heavy usage of the pool during the "dog days" of mid - summer may require that you increase the amount of chlorine or other sanitizing chemicals. Your pool dealer can check the condition of the water or show you how to do it.

TO BE MARRIED on August 19, Miss Linda Cheryl Strain, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. O. Strain of Delhi, is the bride-elect of Roger Dishongh, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. B. Dishongh, also of Delhi. The Rev. Connie Ward will hear the vows at 3 p.m. in the First Baptist church in Delhi.



THE ENGAGEMENT AND APPROACHING marriage of Miss Dixie Carolyn Howie to Jack Arthur Morgan, son of Mr. and Mrs. Garland Bardin and the late Jack Morgan, is made known today by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. D. W. Howie of Crossett, Ark. The wedding will be an event of September 7 in Temple Baptist Church in Crossett.

Northwestern Graduates Marry In Shreveport

In a candlelight service in Addie Lane Memorial Chapel of Noel Memorial Methodist Church, Lieutenant Thurman Alvin Roberts, Jr., of Grayson ,claimed as his bride Miss Doris Marie Richard, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Edgar Richard of Shreveport. Mr. and Mrs. T. A. Roberts of Grayson are parents of the groom. The Rev. Warren Blakeman performed the double ring ceremony at 7:30 p.m., Saturday, July 28.

Arrangements of white gladioli and jade foliage stood at each side of the altar. Pre-nuptial music was provided by Robert Hallquist at the organ, and soloist Miss Jerry Ann Vann, who sang "I Love Thee" and "The Lord's Prayer."

As she entered on the arm of her father, the bride was gowned in white silk organza with bodice of Chantilly lace, Sabrina neckline detailed with irridescent sequins and seed pearls, and long lace sleeves ending in points over the hands. Appliques of lace adorned the floor length bouffant skirt. A queen's crown of Chantilly lace and pearls held her veil of illusion. She carried a white Bible topped with a bouquet of butterfly roses and a white orchid; and, for something old, a lace handkerchief used by brides of her family for three generations.

Miss Alice Louisa Richard attended her sister as maid of honor. Her dress of pink silk organza was accented with pink satin bows scattered over the bell-shaped skirt. She wore a tiny pink hat with circular veil of pink illusoin and carried a nosegay of pink glamellias and white butterfly roses.

Bridesmaids were Mrs. Richard O. Richard, sister-in-law of the bride, of Shreveport; and Ms. William Bryan, of Ruston. Their dresses were identical to that of the maid of honor and they carried nosegays of glamellias.

The groom was attended by his cousin, William Whit Rodgers of Ruston, as best man; and by groomsmen Joseph L. Martinez of Leesville; Wiliam Bryan of Ruston; Charles Michael Gaines of Olla; and Richard Owen Richard, brother of the bride, of Shreveport.

RECEPTION

Following the ceremony, a reception was held in the church parlors. An arrangement of white gladioli stood at each side of the fireplace, with pink gladioli on the mantel.

Mrs. Richard, mother of the bride, was attired in a light rose chiffon sheath with cummerbund and panels extending to the hem of the skirt. She wore pink shoes and a white pillbox hat. Mrs. Roberts chose for her son's wedding Wedgwood blue peau de soie with bodice of re-embroidered Alencon lace. Her hat was of white feathers, and other accessories of blue. Both wore orchid corsages.

White butterfly roses and leatherleaf fern centered the bride's table, where the tiered cak stood at on end. At the opposite side of the table was the punch bowl, encircled with leatherleaf fern and florets.

For a wedding trip to Panama City, Florida, the bride changed to a turquoise silk suitdress complimented with white accessories and a white orchid corsage. Upon their return, Lt. and Mrs. Roberts will be at home in Fort Knox, Ky., where he will be stationed.

Mrs. Roberts, a graduate of Byrd High School, received her degree cum laude from Northwesten State College. She is a member of Delta Zeta, Pi Omega Pi, and Kappa Delta Pi.

Lt. Roberts, who attended Grayson High School and the Citadel, was graduated from Northwestern State College. He is a member of Sigma Tau Gamma and the Black Knights.

Cover White With Cake Or Tube Make-Up

If you have acquired a suntan while wearing a one - piece bathing suit and now want to try one of the new two - piece models, but rind that your covered midriff is still winter - white, two simple tips will correct the situation.

One is to apply a cake or tube make - up in a tan shade to give the area color. Another is to smooth hand creme over your midriff and allow it to dry. Then, puff on a tan shade of face powder and buff it down to a sheen with the palms of your hands. Either technique will give you an all - over tan a ppearance in your new two - piece suit and will also assist in screenin the sun's rays until this untanned part of your body becomes a deeper tone.

A Cold Shower Is Suggested To Chase Heat

Woman To Woman

By PATRIIA MCORMACK

United Press International

NE WYORK (UPI) — A chilling suggestion: Cool off when the temperature soars by taking a cold shower.

Don't give the suggestion a cold shoulder because you have a notion it might give you pneumonia!

And stop shivering bout the fragile condition of the anatomy.

Start thinking of the ancestral millions who never knew anything but icy baths — usually in streams, rivers and lakes.

Who says so is Jeanne Bryant, a beauty consultant. She reports that it wasn't until about 500 b.c. that humans had a choice of hot or cold baths —and then it wasn't even running hot water.

The Scythians back then, a Nomadic bunch, scrubbed and rinsed themselves, then crawled inside small tents where hemseed on red hot stoned created stam — primitive hot water.

Soap came along somewhat later. Miss Bryant said research has shown that some unknown Gaul was the first man to discover soap — via serendipity.

Seems he was getting ready for a date and in an attempt to smooth down his hair he tried a mixture of goat's fat and eechtree ashes as a pomade. He got suds.

THE ENGAGEMENT and approaching marriage of Miss Barbara Ann Voth to R. N. Lanningham, Jr. is being announced today by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Donald E. Voth of Baton Rouge. Mr. Lanningham is the son of Mr. and Mrs. R. N. Lanningham, Sr. of Fairbanks. The couple will be married August 3, 7:30 p.m., at Lanier Baptist Church in Baton Rouge.

Start thinking of the ancestral millions who never knew anything but icy baths — usually in streams, rivers and lakes.

Who says so is Jeanne Bryant, a beauty consultant. She reports that it wasn't until about 500 b.c. that humans had a choice of hot or cold baths —and then it wasn't even running hot water.

The Scythians back then, a Nomadic bunch, scrubbed and rinsed themselves, then crawled inside small tents where hemseed on red hot stoned created stam — primitive hot water.

Soap came along somewhat later. Miss Bryant said research has shown that some unknown Gaul was the first man to discover soap — via serendipity.

Seems he was getting ready for a date and in an attempt to smooth down his hair he tried a mixture of goat's fat and eechtree ashes as a pomade. He got suds.

THE ENGAGEMENT and approaching marriage of Miss Barbara Ann Voth to R. N. Lanningham, Jr. is being announced today by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Donald E. Voth of Baton Rouge. Mr. Lanningham is the son of Mr. and Mrs. R. N. Lanningham, Sr. of Fairbanks. The couple will be married August 3, 7:30 p.m., at Lanier Baptist Church in Baton Rouge.

MISS SANDRA LOUISE CLARK, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Rufus B. Clark of Natchez, Miss., and sister of Mrs. Ray Shilip Carroll, of Monroe, whose engagement and approaching marriage to Henry Carl Zizzi, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Carl Zizzi, Sr., of Natchez, is announced. The wedding will be an event of August eleventh at 11 o'clock in the morning at St. Mary's Catholic Cathedral in Natchez.

Illinois Rites Unite Couple From Arkansas

Mr. and Mrs. John C. Mulholland, of Lake Forest, Illinois, announce the marriage of their daughter, Alison, and James Henry Ragar, son of Mrs. Hurley Rager and the late Mr. Rager, of Warren, on July 20, at four in the afternoon.

The Rev. Clinton M. Atchley performed the double-ring ceremony in the presence of members of the immediate family.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. Miss Alta Jean Atchley was her only attendant. Wayne Freppon, of Bald Knob, served the groom as best man.

Following the ceremony there was a reception for members of the wedding party and family in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wellslake Morse.

The bride attended the University of Arkansas and Southern State College. The groom is a senior student at Southern State College. Following a wedding trip the couple will be at home in Magnolia.

HOW TO COOK AND SHELL EGGS

Home economists with the Gas Appliance Manufacturers Association say that proper cooking of eggs helps in removing the shell. They recommend covering eggs with cold water, bringing to a boil over a high gas flame and covering the pan. Turn off the flame and leave the eggs in the hot water for at least 15 minutes. Then cool promptly in cold water. Crackle the shell, rolling the egg between hands to loosen the shell. Start peeling at the large end of the egg, dipping occasionally in water.

SUMMER SLIPS CARE

Cotton and dacron slips are popular for summer wear under sheer dresses. Margaret Spader, home service consultant to the Gas Appliance Manufacturers Association, suggests drying the slips in the gas clothes dryer at a "delicate fabrics" setting. When the spinning stops, remove the slips immediately and you won't have to iron them.

MRS. CHARLES ROLAND HOGAN

Charles Hogan Claims Bride In Shreveport

Charles Roland Hogan claimed as his bride Miss Evelyn Ann Copple, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Copple of Shreveport, in a wedding performed at 3 p.m. Saturday, July 22, in North Highland Baptist Church, Shreveport. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Dewitt Hogan of West Monroe.

The Rev. Ben Rogers, assisted by the Rev. O. P. Brazer, heard the vows under an arch entwined with ivy and flanked with baskets of gladioli and fern. Music was provided by Mrs. Nita Rogers at the organ and Mrs. Carol McCormick, soloist.

The bride entered on the arm of her father, who gave her in marriage. Her gown of white Chantilly lace was styled with scalloped neckline, molded bodice, and full, floor - length skirt. A crown of sequins and pearls her veil of white tulle. She carried a white Bible topped with an orchid.

Attendants were Miss Ruth Willis of Shreveport, maid if honor; and Miss Kay Westmoreland of Shreveport, bridesmaid. They wore dresses of mint green taffeta with chiffon overskirts, and carried pink carnations.

Jim McCormick was best man and groomsmen were Kent Hogan and Paul Dennis Copple.

Mrs. Copple chose for her daughter's wedding a dress of sunshine yellow with bone accessories and an orchid corsage. Mrs. Hogan's dress was white with multi - colored embroidery. Her accessories were white, and she wore an orchid corsage.

The church parlors were scene of the reception immediately following the ceremony. The bride's bouquet, with those of the attendants at each side, decorated the refreshment table.

When the couple left on their wedding trip to Washington, D. C., the bride was wearing a rose beige sheath dress with matching coat, bone accessories, and a white orchid corsage.

Mr. Hogan, a graduate of West Monroe High School, attended East Texas Baptist College, and is a member of Phi Mu Alpha Sinfonia. The couple will live in Springfield, Virginia, where the groom is serving with the 256th Army Band at Fort Belvoir.

World-Wide Menus Planned By Home Cooks

Many exciting family or party meals with an international accent can be cooked on the kitchen charcoal grill or in the fireplace. Thanks to the abundance of new cookbooks on the subject, home barbecuing over wood charcoal briquets now has become a creative venture all the year 'round.

A meal of Armenian heritage is the shish - kebab dinner. While traditionally made with lamb, this versatile dinner on a spear also can be made of beef or pork cut in cubes and marinated ahead of time. Best equipment is a set of six metal skewers complete with metal rack.

Thread the skewers with meat, tomato quarters, marinated mushrooms, parboiled onions, green pepper squares and small canned beets. The all - in - one meal then grills over wood charcoal briquets. A fine dessert is almond pastry. Serve with strong coffee, the thick Turkish brew or your own favorite brand.

Any number of Hawaiian parties can be centered around the home grill. Guests can toast their own appetizers of pineapple, water chestnuts, and chicken livers. Roast pork on the rotisserie is a good main dish, and a bowl of crisp vegetables is welcome as a salad. Bananas baked on charcoal are a pleasant dessert, sprinkled ahead of time with orange juice and grated coconut, then grilled in the skins or in foil.

A dinner in a Chinese mood is another welcome change from routine. Appetizers can be butterfly shrimp grilled over wood charcoal briquets. The main course is chicken grilled over charcoal and painted with a mixture of soy sauce and honey for deep color and flavor. Rice cooked in the kitchen can be served in lacquer or china bowls on a tray near the hibachi or grill. Guests help themselves to a bowl of rice and servings of chicken, and add garnish from a platter of thinly sliced cucumbers, radishes, mushrooms and other salad foods. Melon and tea are a supremely good finale.

Danish open sandwiches often take on extra fillip when heated on the hibachi over charcoal. Try thin slices of dark bread topped with smoked fish, mashed and seasoned egg yolk, thin sliced vegetables, sausages and cheese.

Calorie Count Reduced By Heat Controls

Correctly pre-heating an oven or a utensil on the top of the range is recognized by good cooks as one of the many secrets of cooking success.

To the calorie - conscious household precise pre-heating should be a "must," says Margaret Spader, home service consultant, "because the way you cook certain foods determines their calorie count."

"Starting the cooking process at too low a temperature causes such foods to absorb fat. Take pancakes, for an easy-to-observe example. If the griddle is not set at 375 degrees, the pancakes will absorb grease and stick to the griddle surface.

"The same applies to hashed brown potatoes. I've seen cooks keep adding fat to keep the potatoes from sticking to the pan. If they had pre-heated the utensil they could have eliminated a lot of calories and pot-watching.

"In deep-fat frying, if the fat is less than 350 degrees, doughnuts and other foods soak up the grease and take much longer to cook. Proper pre-heating prevents this and also determines how successful you are with items like veal chops, eggs, chicken, blintzes and other favorites."

As to how a cook can tell when she's working with the right temperatures, Miss Spader says:

"It takes a sort of sixth sense when you're using an obsolete stove. But today's ranges take these temperature requirements into account. They're equipped with top burner heat controls that can be pre-set to specific temperature requirement into account. They're equipped with top burner heat controls that can be pre-set to specific temperatures. Even when cold ingredients are added to food cooking over one of these burners, the sensing element in the control reacts immediately and the flame rises automatically to compensate for the heat loss and keep the food from soaking up fats."

The adviser points out that heat control is a factor not only in terms of cooking results but also in achieving important economies.

Meat, one of the costliest items on the food budget, can be "victimized" by careless cooking techniques and antiquated stoves, she says. The wrong temperatures in the oven, can have the effect of cooking fats into a roast instead of draining them off, and improper heat control, virtually impossible in an automatically controlled oven, will dry out the natural meat juices that ought to be saved for basting.

Allergies Haunt Traveler; No Place To Hide

BLOOMFIELD, N. J (UPI)—When it comes to vacationing, persons with allergies have alomst no place to hide.

In the countryside, persons sensitive to itches and-or sneezes (and that includes almost everyone) encounter poison ivy, poison oak, poison sumac, ragweed, "true" or "false," wormwood, mugwort, pigweed or a host of other growing things that produce human suffering.

The oak, elm, pecan and hickory cause some persons to break out in rashes or start sniffling. Just plain grass can produce sneezing and gasping in some cases.

Different things crop up in different parts of the country, according to Dr. George Babcock, Jr., director of clinical research of the Schering Corp., manufacturers of pharmaceuticals. Babcock speaks with some feeling about the causes of summertime miseries because he is allergic to poison ivy.

"Every individual is capable of displaying a potential allergic response to somethin," Babcock said in an interview.

A seafood dinner in Maine may cause acute discomfort for some, he said, while a simple little sting of a bee or wasp can prove fatal to the most hyper-sensitive persons.

Different things affect different people and crop up in various parts of the country. The bona fide ragweed that causes 8 million Americans to wheeze and sneeze exists mainly in the eastern United States, for example.

But the traveler venturing into the western United States is likely to suffer anyway, under the impact of the pollen produced by the insidious growth known as "false ragweed."

The city dweller may never get poison ivy, since that usually is developed only on contact with the plant. But the 500 million pounds of pollen grains produced by hay-fever-causing plants fall indiscriminately just about everywhere, except high mountain areas.

Babcock said the only real solution, short of destroying every allergy producing growth in the land, is the treatment of the allergic person before he has a chance to be stricken. Various antibiotics and serums have been developed to help prevent the onset of hives, itching, sneezing and various other allergic symptoms.

Owens-Conrad Wedding Plans Are Announced

Trinity Baptist Church in West Monroe will be the scene of the wedding uniting Miss Peggy Jeannette Conrad and Thomas Laron Ownes on August 24. The Rev. James O. Evans, pastor of St. Mark's Methodist church, will hear the vows at 7 p.m.

The bride - elect is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Marvin C. Conrad of West Monroe. Her grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. C. R. Jordan of Redfield, Arkansas; and Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Conrad of Waverly. Miss Conrad has named her sister, Mrs. Ray Edwards, as matron of honor. Bridesmaids will be Miss Janie Conrad, sister of the bride-elect, and Miss Ila Kay Guraedy.

Mr. Owens the son of Mr. and Mrs. Dwight E. Owens, is the grandson of the late Mr. and Mrs. James C. Jordan; and of Mr. and Mrs. Dan S. Odom, all of West Monroe. A graduate of West Monroe high school, he attended Louisiana Tech. Rabeon Owens will be his brother's best man, and groomsmen will be Fred Riser, Jr., and Bennie Gwin.

But the traveler venturing into the western United States is likely to suffer anyway, under the impact of the pollen produced by the insidious growth known as "false ragweed."

The city dweller may never get poison ivy, since that usually is developed only on contact with the plant. But the 500 million pounds of pollen grains produced by hay-fever-causing plants fall indiscriminately just about everywhere, except high mountain areas.

Babcock said the only real solution, short of destroying every allergy producing growth in the land, is the treatment of the allergic person before he has a chance to be stricken. Various antibiotics and serums have been developed to help prevent the onset of hives, itching, sneezing and various other allergic symptoms.

Owens-Conrad Wedding Plans Are Announced

Trinity Baptist Church in West Monroe will be the scene of the wedding uniting Miss Peggy Jeannette Conrad and Thomas Laron Ownes on August 24. The Rev. James O. Evans, pastor of St. Mark's Methodist church, will hear the vows at 7 p.m.

The bride - elect is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Marvin C. Conrad of West Monroe. Her grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. C. R. Jordan of Redfield, Arkansas; and Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Conrad of Waverly. Miss Conrad has named her sister, Mrs. Ray Edwards, as matron of honor. Bridesmaids will be Miss Janie Conrad, sister of the bride-elect, and Miss Ila Kay Guraedy.

Mr. Owens the son of Mr. and Mrs. Dwight E. Owens, is the grandson of the late Mr. and Mrs. James C. Jordan; and of Mr. and Mrs. Dan S. Odom, all of West Monroe. A graduate of West Monroe high school, he attended Louisiana Tech. Rabeon Owens will be his brother's best man, and groomsmen will be Fred Riser, Jr., and Bennie Gwin.

The bride -to - be attended St. Patrick's School and graduated from Lake Providence High School. She attended Northeast State, Monroe.

Her maternal grandmother is Mrs. Nell H. Patrick, Lake Providence, and paternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Bonner, Sr., also of Lake Providence.

Mr. Regenild is the grandson of Mrs. Gussie P. Regenold of Lake Providence and Mrs. William J. Grossman Sr., also of Lake Providence.

He graduated from Lake Providence High School, attended LSU and Louisiana Tech. He is a member of Delta Kappa Epsilon.

An early September wedding is planned.

HOLIDAY LECTURE

CINCINNATI (UPI) — Three hundred junior and senior high school science students from metropolitan Cincinnati, including northern Kentucky, spent Easter week learning about the microbial world.

The students attended the Holiday Science Lecture of the American Association for the Advancement of Science at the University of Cincinnati. Their lecturer was Dr. Rene J. Dubos, internationally known viologist and professor of the Rockefeller Institute.

Their Summer Job: Running Maine Hotel

SOUTHPORT, Maine (AP) — Running a summer hotel in Maine may be a far cry from teaching children in Akron, Ohio, but its the seasonal avocation of Janet Paul and Jean Griffin.

For nine months of the year Janet is a speech and hearing therapist with the Akron Board of Education. Jean, an attorney, works with the Child Study Department of the Akron school system.

During the summer they're the owner-managers of a three-story hotel (The Rendezvous) fronting the sea along Maine's rugged, but tourist-attracting, mid-coast region.

The two girls took it over in January, 1961 after a varied apprenticeship.

Long summer residents of the Pine Tree State, they had worked as hostesses at a restaurant in nearby Boothbay Harbor, and at one time managed highly-popular sunset suppers aboard a coastal passenger boat.

With this training under their belts, there were still some practical difficulties.

Before securing the hotel they felt the need to get a liquor license, in order to have a cocktail lounge but the town has always voted dry. They launched a letter-writing campaign and got enough voter support to have Southport finally go wet in the fall of 1960.

Then, once they bought the hotel, it was a race against the time to get the place open for the 1961 summer tourist season.

Electricians, carpenters and painters were hired to renovate the 75-year-old building according to plans outlined by Janet and Jean. A staff had to be hired and kitchen equipment bought, but somehow they managed and had a profitable season as well.

The two girls and the staff, several of which are also Akron teachers, hope this season will be just as profitable, but somewhat less hectic.

BARCELONA, Spain (AP) — A throng estimated at 100,000 stood in tribute Friday to singer Raquel Meller as her funeral cortege passed through the streets of Bacelona. She died Thursday at 74.

MRS. GERALD MERCER

Mercer-Watson Vows Pledged In Crossett

The wedding of Miss Myra Watson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Allen Watson, and Gerald Mercer, son of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Mercer, was solemnized at 7:00 p.m. July 20, in the Temple Baptist Church in Crossett, Ark.

The double ring ceremony was performed by the Rev. J. W. Buckner beneath an ivy - entwined arch flanked by branched candelabra holding lighted white tapers. Floor baskets of white gladioli and fern stood on each side of the chancel. Nuptial music was presented by Mrs. J. W. Buckner, organist, and Miss Mary Williams, soloist.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of white silk organza appliqued with garland motifs of Alencon lace. The sculptured bodice was fashioned with long fitted sleeves and scooped neckline edged with scallops of lace. Her bouffant skirt, which fell to a cathedral train, featured a peau de soie bustle effect in back. A finger - tip veil of French illusion was attached to her pillbox of organza with scallops of the lace edging the crown. She carried a bouquet of stephanotis centered with a white orchid.

Matron of honor was Mrs. John David Law, of Lemoore, California. She wore a pale blue cotton sheath dress with all -over embroidery in white. Her headdress was a matching pillbox and she carried a corsage of blue organza roses attached to an ivory filigree fan.

Bridesmaids were Miss Betty Mercer, sister of the groom; Mrs. Charles Lamb of Savannah, Georgia, cousin of the bride; Mrs. James Hundley of Monticello, and Miss Barbara Garrett of Memphis, Tennessee. Their costumes were identical to that of the honor attendant.

Miss Renee Watson, cousin of the bride, served as flower girl. She wore a dress of white organza and a headdress of blue flowers. She carried a white net basket holding flower petals and wore a corsage of white pom mums. Hughen Watson, cousin of the bride, was ring bearer.

The groom chose his cousin, Douglas Sipes, as best man. Groomsmen were James Hundley, of Monticello; Virgil Dollar, of Monroe; Buddy Dean, of El Dorado; and Riley Ogden, of Mena.

There was a reception in the Fellowship Hall of the church immediately after the wedding service. The bride's table was centered with an arrangement of white pom mums in a crystal bowl on a cloth of white net over taffeta trimmed with blue satin ribbon. Mrs. Jimmy Ross served the wedding cake and Miss Gail Johnson poured, with Miss Nelda Rose Carter and Miss Gay Watson assisting. Miss Mary Ann Hatley was in charge of the guest book and Misses Daphne and Libby Robinson distributed rice bags.

For travel the bride wore a suit of blue silk shantung over an overblouse and pillbox hat of printed silk. Her accessories were black patent and she wore the orchid from her bouquet. After a wedding trip to New Orleans and the Gulf Coast the couple will be at home in Crossett.

What Makes Your Teen-Age Daughter Tick

By PATRICIA MCCORMACK
United Press International

NEW YORK (UPI)—Listen to Dr. Ruth Bakwin to better understand the delicate mechanisms that make your teen-age daughter tick.

Dr. Bakwin, professor of clinical pediatrics at New York University - Bellevue Medical Center and emeritus director of pediatrics at New York Infirmary, reports that the adolescent girls—as the boys—have mixed feelings about growing up.

At one moment, they yearn to be accepted as adults. But in the next breath, they're feeling inadequate and clinging to the sheltered existence of childhood.

Dr. Bakwin, participating in a recent American Medical Association seminar on the problems of teen-agers, noted that see - saw feelings are normal in the transition from childhood to adulthood.

"The parents themselves do not know if the youngster will behave as a child or an adult," she said. "They don't know what to expect. The growing up process is made more difficult by this ambivalent feeling of the parents.

Give your adolescent an increasing amount of freedom and independence, Dr. Bakwin suggests. But don't load the child with too much responsibility.

Dr. Bakwin also reported on love. Some girls get thumpy heart over each boy who dates them.

"This is especially easy," Dr. Bakwin said, "when 'going steady' is popular. Forewarning the teenager ahead of time of the intensity but inconstancy of her first few infatuations will help to carry her more easily through this period."

What should you do about a daughter who feels she will not be popular if she doesn't submit to kissing, petting—or whatever is asked on a date?

"Some of these girls indulge in sex relations to reassure themselves," she said. "They want to be convinced that they are normal and adult.

"In our present society this is not looked upon as so disgraceful as it was previously considered but it caues parents an anxious time."

What happens eventually: The adolescent girl with such feelings gradually learns that self-restraint consists of the ability to give up immediate and relatively trivial pleasures in order to obtain a deeper and more lasting happiness."

To help the adolescent to a feeling of adequacy, Dr. Bakwin recommends giving symbols of independence: an allowance to spend as the youngster wishes, a latch key, her own room, privacy of mail and telephone calls.

If your taste runs to antiques, you'll like a modern four-poster crib fitted with a fabric canopy which can be removed for laundering. Suds and rinse this often, then stretch it back over its frame while still slightly damp and no ironing will be needed.

MRS. SAMUEL DON WESTON

THE ENGAGEMENT and approaching marriage of Olivia Ann Colvin of Dallas, Texas, to Dr. Charles Jarrett also of Dallas, is announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ansley H. Colvin, Jr. of Jonesboro. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Branyon O. Jarrett of Augusta, Georgia. The ceremony will be performed at the First Baptist Church in Jonesboro, on Friday, August 24, at seven p.m.

Mrs. Dawson Speaker For Lamkin HDC

June meeting of the Lamkin Home Demonstration Club was held in the home of Mrs. S. J. Taylor. Mrs. Audrey Dawson, home demonstration agent, presented a demonstration on Selecting Ready Made Dresses.

Refreshments were served to those present. The August meeting will be a picnic. Members will be notified of the time and place at a later date.

Travelers going abroad are often warned to carry their own soap — advice usually unnecessary in the U.S. where hotels "serve" soap as a matter of course.

Miss Welch, Samuel Weston Pledge Vows

Wearing a gown of antique satin with bodice overlaid with Chantilly lace, Miss Mary Katherine Welch entered the sanctuary of St. Andrew's Methodist church to become the bride of Samuel Don Weston, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Weston of Sicily Island. The bride who is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Spurgeon Welch, Sr., was given in marriage by her father.

The Rev. L. W. Taylor heard the vows at 7 p.m. Saturday, July 21, under an arch of greenery and chrysanthemums which decorated the church. Tapers burned in candelabra at each side. Mrs. Joe Stewart provided music at the organ and accompanied the soloist, Lloyd C. Gill.

The bride was attended by Miss Carolyn Weston, cousin of the groom, maid of honor; and Miss Julia Ann Scott. They wore identical dresses of pink silk organza with matching accessories and carried colonial bouquets of chrysanthemums. Miss Linda Jones, niece of the bride, lighted the candles.

Johnnie Weston, brother of the groom, was best man, and ushers were William Mound, and Spurgeon Welch, Jr., brother of the bride

Following the wedding, the parents of the bride were hosts for a reception in the church parlors. Mrs. Welch was wearing a beige lace sheath with pink accessories and a corsage of pink chrysanthemums. Mrs. Weston, mother of the groom, chose pink lace with white accessories and white chrysanthemum corsage.

Post-Party Clean Up Is Simplified

Plates, knives, forks, spoons, glasses, tumblers, tablecloth, serviettes and glass cloths. Asbetos gloves, basting brush, big cutting board, skewers, spatula, long handled forks and tongues, paper plates, cups and napkins and garbage pail. Who'd ever guess that both lists are intended for the same purpose . . . to serve as a check list of essential appointments for the outdoor meal. Well they are, only the former dates back to 1881 when it appeared in Mrs. Beeton's famous Book of Household Management, while the latter appears in a recently published book on outdoor cookery.

Just to look at Mrs. Beeton's list leaves you feeling limp at the prospect of the post - party clean-up entailed. A look at the current list, however, leaves you with the comforting knowledge that much of the gear's disposable. And what isn't can be handled easily and quickly if you develop a standard routine.

If you'll provide a garbage pail, and it needn't look like the stereotype if you'll paint it with bright colored stripes, guests will get rid of their own paper service. Provide a tray, near the garbage pail for parking used flatware. When guests have left all you have to do is round up the cooking tools, skewers, tongues, forks, etc., load them on the tray with the flatware and bundle everything into the kitchen sink. Now fill sink with hot water, add about three tablespoons of sal soda concentrated along with detergent and let soak. The sal steps up the detergent's action and helps cut the grease.

While the soak's in progress, get back to the barbecue grill. Use sal soda again but this time apply it dry with a stiff - bristled brush. This procedure emulsifies any baked on grease that's apt to resist other forms of cleaning. Use the garden hose for rinsing.

Before winding up outdoors, check the flagstones or cement terrace for grease spots. The longer they're allowed to remain the harder they'll be to remove, so hose down spotted area sprinkle with dry sal and leave overnight. Next morning a quick hosing and brushing erases the last bit of evidence of last night's meal.

MISS FRANCES ANN RISER

August Wedding Planned By Miss Riser, Mr. Veech

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Andrew Riser of Ruston announce the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Frances Ann, to Joseph Allen Veech, son of Mr. and Mrs. John James Veech of Passaic, New Jersey.

The wedding will take place at six-thirty o'clock in the evening of August 24 at the Barnett Springs Baptist Church.

The bride-to-be is a graduate of Ruston High School and is a senior at Louisiana Polytechnic Institute majoring in Home Economics. She is the granddaughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. James Laster Green of Choudrant, and the late Mr. and Mrs. Adam Hartwell Riser of Ruston.

Mr. Veech is a graduate of Passaic High School and received his degree in Forestry from Louisiana Polytechnic Institute. He is descended from the late Mr. and Mrs. William Veech of Passaic, and Mrs. Joseph Staudt and the late Mr. Staudt of Garfield, New Jersey.

After their marriage, the couple will make their home in Athens, Georgia, where Mr. Veech will work on a Master's Degree at the University of Georgia.

FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH in Bastrop will be scene of the ceremony uniting Miss Mary Rella Nesbitt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Walker, and Paul Douglas Folse, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bowden Folse. The Rev. Ray Rust will hear the vows at 3 p.m., August 19. Both bride-elect and prospective groom are graduates of Bastrop High school and students at Louisiana Tech, where Mr. Folse will receive his degree in August.

Launch Campaign To Change Bank's Looks

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — For a bank in the heart of the city, it seems a little incongruous.

Two attractive women, one brunette and one blonde, are sitting amidst a collection of oil paintings, talking about staging a bridal fashion show.

And what's more, the bridal fashion show will be held in the lobby of the bank.

That's where the paintings will wind up, too, as part of an art exhibit.

The women are Martha Alexander (the brunette) and Jane Smith (the blonde), who comprise the bank's women's division. Miss Alexander is director of the division.

The fashion show and art exhibit are just two of the projects in the works as part of a long - range campaign to change the bank from a marble mausoleum of cold - eyed finance to a warm, friendly — and occasionally feminine — place of comfort.

As it with most of the activites of most banks, the ultimate object is business — the business that can be brought in by women.

"Women have become a fact of business life," says Frank A. Plummer, the bank's president and board chairman who put the wheels in motion for creation of a women's division.

"Although the division has been in operation only a few months," he says, "we already can measure the benefits in dollars and cents."

Miss Alexander cites statistics to illustrate the purpose of her division: "Women own 70 per cent of the private wealth in this country, and they spend 85 per cent of all the consumer dollars."

And yet, she adds, "Most banks don't even have a powder room or a pleasant place for a woman to sit down."

But there's more to the work of the women's division than dealing with women who hold wealth. There's also the business of dealing with women who are married to men who hold wealth.

"We're the wife of the bank," says Miss Alexander." While the men are talking with the men, we entertain the women."

Greeting newcomers to Birmingham turns up new business.

"The wives are alone in a new city, they don't know anybody, they don't know where to go or what to do," Miss Alexander says.

"We offer to do anything we can to help — and we've hunted houses, arranged sight - seeing tours, set up garden club memberships, located baby sitters, lined up concert tickets, made hair - dresser appointments — the list is almost endless.

"And through it all," she adds, "there's been only one request we couldn't handle — a woman asked us to find her a millionaire."

Mrs. Flowers Hostess For Lenwil HDC

The July meeting of the Lenwil Home Demonstration Club was held in the home of Mrs. Lawson Flowers, Jr. on July 26th. Plans were made for the annual picnic which will be held at the Cheniere Area 4 Park on August 23rd. Announcements of forthcoming events were made by Mrs. E. R. Williamson, President.

Mrs. T. L. Tippen reported on Home furnishings. The demonstration was presented by Mrs. Audrey Dawson and was entitled "Selecting Ready Made Garments." The need to inspect garments for good workmanship was emphasized by Mrs. Dawson.

During the game period, Mrs. C. J. Moffett won the prize. Refreshments were served to Mrs. Dawson and Mrs. J. D. Lassiter, visitors, and to the following members: Mrs. Arlan Rawls, Mrs. Tippen, Mrs. John Anding, Mrs. W. C. White, Mrs. C. J. Moffett, Mrs. Leslie Hollingsworth, Mrs. Williamson and Mrs. Huey Ellis.

Problem Or Persons

NEW YORK (AP) — Christians "need to become concerned with individual alcoholics, and not just the general problem of alcoholism," the Rev. Dr. Howard J. Clinebell Jr., of the Southern California School of Theology, told a meeting here. Declaring that it is irrelevant to deplore the problem without helping the individual, he added:

"Few experiences can so test the relevance of our message and our faith or remind us of the depth and complexity of human problems as work with an alcoholic."

ICED COFFEE

Ever serve strong iced coffee with a topping of whipped cream and a dusting of cinnamon?

MY ANSWER

By BILLY GRAHAM

QUESTION: Recently becoming interested in Christianity, it has been my observation that there are many people who raise questions about the Christian religion. Can you tell me why there are so many unbelievers?

C. B.

ANSWER: Jesus Himself did not say that everyone would be a believing person. In fact, the reason so many doubt is first because man is by nature skeptical. It is the most natural thing for him to be faithless. The second reason is that few of those who are in unbelief have ever made a careful study of the Christian faith, nor have they ever faced the facts of their own spiritual poverty and deadness. Before you form any opinion as to the truth or falsity of the Bible and the Christian faith, you have a moral responsibility to study the Bible itself, and not what people have said about the Bible. Bible helps and Bible study plans are good, and they have their place in Christian training, but always be sure that you first have a knowledge of the Bible itself. The Bible is the most convincing book. It will give its own proof, and through a knowledge of it, your unbelief will vanish.

Ins And Outs Of Tight Skirts

By JEAN SPRAIN WILSON

Since it has already been confessed that 80 per cent seek their wives' advice in purchasing clothes, the veteran tailor is convinced that a few wise words on their part could easily eliminate wrinkled, lumpy jackets, baggy knees and drooping seats to name a few sartorial sins.

Reyle, who gets upwards of $250 each suit for camouflaging the corpulence of literally some of the biggest men in the business and entertainment world, would start off with some general rules such as:

Warn him to make his appointment for suit fittings at the same hour of day — preferably mid-afternoon. If he has a hefty appetite, he'll be 2 - inches larger at this time than in the morning. (The same time rule applies to shoe shoppers.)

Unload his pockets of all but essential identification, credit cards and business notes. Insist that he buy suits with inside pockets in which to evenly distribute these things. Stout men have a tendency to burden pockets, figuring what's a few more lumps anyway?

Talk him into wearing a girdle. Your best, and honest, argument is that more men wear them than he suspects. (They'd rather call them polo belts, though.) One will aid his digestion, support his back muscles and decrease his girth by three inches.

Be sure that his suits are dry cleaned every sixth wearing, or more, depending on the weather and where he lives. Reyle insists that pressing soil into even the most durable fabrics is sudden death to it.

Above all, Reyle believes the wife should go with him to a fitting and appraise his suit from the sides. A heavy man is likely to force the fit, or have it let out on the sides, which won't work. Test a fit this way:

Look for horizontal wrinkles. The suit may be out of balance. Arm holes may be too small.

If the jacket back is too short, the vents may cross and the collar may stand away from the neck. If the back is too long, the tail vents may open, or the coat may cup at the seat.

The waistline should be perpendicular. If the belt insists on sinking under the stomach, you should be equally insistent on his use of suspenders. Unless tailors turn to cutting kangaroo holes in trousers, maternity style trousers will not hang correctly any other way.

SUIT — Three - button, single-breasted jacket looks well if lapels are rolled to the center button. Double - breasted suits emphasize too much front expanse. Jacket should show ½-inch of linen cuffs and collar.

TROUSERS — One small pleat and two darts on each side keeps the stress from showing, particularly around the pocket and lining area. Knee and crotch lining are particularly advisable in soft cloth.

Cuffs foreshorten the height and add weight to fabric keeping it in shape when he walks. The width of the trouser leg depends on the man's height, and the size of his feet. Very small feet require smaller leg widths. Still, a fat man should avoid skimpy pants legs, or he'll look like Humpty Dumpty.

BELTS — If you can't talk him out of one, have him buy a wide one with some kind of give, and a matching buckle, to be worn on the side. He should never wear a big, silver buckle in front. Why have a stomach head light?

COLORS — Dark blue, well brushed, is always good, but a man should check his scalp condition. Nothing looks worse than dandruff or gray hairs on shoulders. Pin stripes are good for variety, as are small, rectangular plaids.

SHIRTS — Stay and button-down collars are preferred to starched ones. Make sure collars are loose so that points do not curl at the suit lapels. The style of collar depends on the shape of the man's face.

TIES — Choose good ones that can be tied and retied without wrinkling, preferably with a moderate knot, and in conservative, diminutive patterns. Palest shade of maize looks fine with dark blue; pearl gray with light blue.

SHOES — Most heavy men have small hands and feet. They often buy moccasin types, although wing-tipped shoes are much more flattering.

FORMALWEAR — Vests are popular again and stomach - concealing. Cummerbunds, attached to trousers, with recessed zippers, are favored, too.

Of course, if the wife of a portly man could encourage him to stick to a diet, Reyle wouldn't have to write any handbooks, which he admits, he probably won't get around to anyway.

But in still another way he's doing his best to inspire his own customers to lose weight.

"I charge them my cost plus 50 per cent on all work in letting out a suit," says the well known tailor.

"But I happily take suits in for free."

Ins And Outs Of Tight Skirts

By JEAN SPRAIN WILSON

Since it has already been confessed that 80 per cent seek their wives' advice in purchasing clothes, the veteran tailor is convinced that a few wise words on their part could easily eliminate wrinkled, lumpy jackets, baggy knees and drooping seats to name a few sartorial sins.

Reyle, who gets upwards of $250 each suit for camouflaging the corpulence of literally some of the biggest men in the business and entertainment world, would start off with some general rules such as:

Warn him to make his appointment for suit fittings at the same hour of day — preferably mid-afternoon. If he has a hefty appetite, he'll be 2 - inches larger at this time than in the morning. The same time rule applies to shoe shoppers.

Unload his pockets of all but essential identification, credit cards and business notes. Insist that he buy suits with inside pockets in which to evenly distribute these things. Stout men have a tendency to burden pockets, figuring what's a few more lumps anyway?

Talk him into wearing a girdle. Your best, and honest, argument is that more men wear them than he suspects. (They'd rather call them polo belts, though.) One will aid his digestion, support his back muscles and decrease his girth by three inches.

Be sure that his suits are dry cleaned every sixth wearing, or more, depending on the weather and where he lives. Reyle insists that pressing soil into even the most durable fabrics is sudden death to it.

Above all, Reyle believes the wife should go with him to a fitting and appraise his suit from the sides. A heavy man is likely to force the fit, or have it let out on the sides which won't work. Test a fit this way.

Look for horizontal wrinkles. The suit may be out of balance. Arm holes may be too small.

If the jacket back is too short, the vents may cross and the collar may stand away from the neck. If the back is too long, the tail vents may open, or the coat may cup at the seat.

The waistline should be perpendicular. If the belt insists on sinking under the stomach, you should be equally insistent on his use of suspenders. Unless tailors turn to cutting kangaroo holes in trousers, maternity style trousers will not hang correctly any other way.

GARDEN CENTER NOTES

Beauty Unity Is Depicted

By MRS. JOHN TOLAR

Interpretive design in flower arranging was the subject of the Garden Center program presented last week by Mrs. Marcus Mapp, member of Bayou DeSiard Garden Club, and very accomplished flower arranger and lecturer.

The theme chosen by Mrs. Mapp was "Unity in the Beauty of Creation and Nature" She said she chose this because it demands imagination.

She stated that imagination is the basic foundation for distinction and a quality possessed by almost everyone. When viewing the displays at the flower show where a certain theme has been interpreted it is quite interesting to note the differences in the way the theme is depicted by individuals. Each has his own way of seeing the subject and displaying his own creative ideas.

SEASHELL

For her first arrangement Mrs. Mapp used a lovely white seashell that she placed on a base formed of a square of celetex roughly swirled with a plastic white paste.

Before drying some white stone chips and sand containing mica had been sprinkled on top. This arrangement interpreted an undersea garden. In the beginning of our world we find in Genesis in the first chapter that the waters covered the face of the earth. This was a challenge to Mrs. Mapp, this undersea garden. When the earth emerges from the sea we think of the sea shells and first spark of plant life lifting it's head.

Thus the sea shell served as the container for a few white mums with their buds placed in a spiral design. To insure their foothold and to add a feeling of security and assurance that they would begin life in a new world, a sparkling cluster of white quartz was placed directly at the base of the shell. A small bit of white fern (plastic) was used as a filler with the mums and symbolized the lack of life giving sun rays, but also giving a feeling that the entire placement is one of confidence in things to come.

An interpretation of beginnings in America was Mrs. Mapp's second design. She brought out that our heritage is certainly to be remembered with pride and admiration. There were tremendous hardships, but with a yearning for the bounty of the earth the pioneer women created beauty.

PIONEER LIFE

Through her efforts at dying cloth, and tilling the soil, her brand of beauty was created in hues assembled here in a manner suitable to pioneer times and life. For a container Mrs. Mapp chose an old fashioned lady's high top shoe, soft brown in color. Zinnias in shades of yellow and orange were placed in a diagonal design. Brown and orange cattails, clusters of oats and wheat were used as a filler. A cluster of orange colored grapes was placed at the base of the shoe near the toe, carrying the line of the design. These symbolized the plentiful harvest. The whole design was placed on a tan hand - woven mat. A very antiquated pair of ladies glasses was placed within the design at the base of the shoe. Glasses have a tremendous personality all their own and seem to wink at you as though they are bursting with stories of courage and triumph.

A contemporary arrangement was next shown by Mrs. Mapp. This is one that could be found in most of our homes today, she explained. Yellow and orange zinnias formed a mass line design in a green compote container. To strengthen the line the foliage of iris was used as the tall placement behind the zinnias. Two clusters of small green grapes hung over the edge of the container with one of the zinnias as though it was reaching for the cluster of larger grapes that lay at the right side of the base of the design. A soft green mat served as a base for this design. To tie this modern design in with the theme of her show Mrs. Mapp placed lovely polished rocks in the bowl around the needle - point holder, bringing to mind the beauty of Nature and Creation.

DRAMATIC POTENTIAL

As we look to the future we can be as dramatic as we dare. Mrs. Mapp stated that this was her favorite field of creativity. Her final composition was a salute to our own lovely Louisiana, one of the leading producing states of salt, sulphur and oil. The base for this design was an authentic piece of ripplestone collected by the arranger's husband while out on a geological field trip. It was just perfect to remind us that our wealth comes from the earth and has lain locked in her soil and rocks from the beginning of time.

The tallest placements in this design were two black dowels which towered over the next in height, a core from an oil well drilled in our area and reminding us of our wealth of oil from the earth to us. The dowels were symbols of the earth vents which give off spurts of flame and fumes also. They provide the life - giving air circulation for our mines. Next to the oil well core was placed a salt dome from the mines at Winnfield. In the center of the design was placed a core from the sulphur mines of Louisiana. The flames of the burning gas were cleverly symbolized by the use of bright red glads - tiered within the design resembling two columns of flame blazing against the sky.

Mrs. Mapp ended with this thought, a quotation from Ralph Waldo Emerson's writings, when he said:

"Consider that the perpetual admonition of nature to us is, the world is new, untried. Do not live or believe in just the past. I give you the universe new and unhandled every hour."

We do appreciate your splendid program, Mrs. Mapp. It was one that we will enjoy a long, long time. Sharing your talent with us has been a rare treat; a lesson in interpretive design, and appreciation of creative imagination. We'll be looking forward to your next Garden Center and T. V. program in the near future.

Our next program will come to us from the Garden of Eden Garden Club of Bastrop, of which Mrs. J. E. Jackson is president.

Camera Notes

By IRVING DESFOR
AP Newsfeatures

Photography sometimes is a compelling force which impels countless Americans to grab their cameras, load up with film and head for photogenic vistas abroad.

That must leave a vacuum and you know how nature abhors a vacuum.

To fill that void, the same compelling force recently unloaded a large group of photographers 'midst the skyscrapers and canyons of New York City.

SWITCH

It was quite a switch, however, to find that this was a group of 80 Scandinavians, members of the Federation of Nordic Photographers, who are promoting travel in the United States through photography.

Seeing them darting around on my home territory taught me that the sights and scenes to which I've become accustomed look mighty exciting and dramatic when viewed through a foreigner's viewfinder.

I felt even more sheepish when I heard about their sightseeing boat trip around Manhattan. A seasoned group of expert cameramen, many of them professional press photographers in Denmark, they snapped away at the Statue of Liberty with machine-gun rapidity just like any other group of excited tourists. As a typical New Yorker, born and raised, I haven't yet gotten around to visiting this world famed landmark! Nor have I taken her picture yet. The trouble is that it's too conveniently close.

This visit of the Scandinavian photographers is the first click in a program welcomed by photographic and travel agencies. Other groups of amateur and professional photographers throughout the world are being encouraged to travel and record the sights of this country. The pictures they get will be organized into traveling exhibits which will tour the major cities in the world.

EXCHANGE

While in New York, the Danish press photographers have arranged to work in small groups for several days in the city's newspapers, magazines and press associations. In return, members of the New York Press Photographers Association will work in Danish publications when they visit that country in the future.

Swedish photographers will visit Washington, Pittsburgh, Cleveland, Detroit and Niagara Falls. The Danish group are the guests of the state of Florida for a week and will present a specially designed chair for the astronauts' lounge at Cape Canaveral.

The pictures taken by the Scandinavians will make up the first traveling exhibit in this program. Popular Photography will award $500 for the three best pictures submitted by members of the group. The exhibit will premiere at a travel convention in Las Vegas in October before starting its tour in this country and in Europe.

"An expert photographer's record of his trip cannot be equalled by any other traveler," commented Bruce Downes, editor and publisher of Popular Pohtography. "We've estimated that he shows his pictures to an average of 78 people. And of these, we find that seven people are motivated to take a similar trip. Nothing sells like photography, and nobody sells travel like picture-takers!"

Frazer Key Lay Leader For Church

Harry Frazer Jr. of Monroe has been named chairman of Episcopal laymen's work in the Monroe convocation, it was announced by Ed Kerr of Alexandria, state chairman of Louisiana Episcopal Laymen. Frazer, a member of the Grace Church congregation, will promote laymen's activities in all 14 Episcopal churches in northeast Louisiana.

Frazer announced that his main goal this year will be to promote increased participation by laymen in the bishop's "Minute Man" program to help establish more new missions within the state. At present, Episcopal laymen of the state contribute more than $14,000 a year toward this project. The goal is to double this amount, he said.

DEFINITION

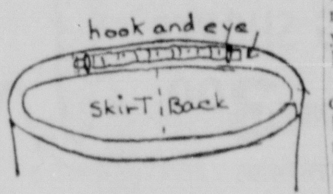
A "Minute Man," he pointed out, is one who pledges to send the bishop of Louisiana a certain amount once each year when he receives a communique from him. At the time of the call, the exact purpose is stated, Frazer said, so the layman knows exactly what job his money is accomplishing.

In past years, the "Minute Man" program has financed new missions at Bossier City, Harahan, Monroe, Lafayette, East Gentilly and a house for seminarians at the University of the South, Sewanee, Tenn.

SEW SIMPLE
By Eunice Farmer

A waistband that grows is perfect for skirts, shorts, and slacks that must fit a growing child with a varying waistline. Before hand-sewing the INSIDE of the waist-band to your skirt, make two machine buttonholes at the back about 6 or 8 inches apart. You may slip a piece of elastic through the buttonholes, using the waistband of your skirt as a casing.

The elastic must be measured to insure a snug fit. You may machine stitch both ends of the elastic to the waistband, or you may fasten a hook and eye to one end. When it is unhooked, you can press the waistband flat, and it also makes it easier to change the length of the elastic as your child grows.



This waistband that grows is not an original idea of mine. It was suggested by Mrs. E. J. Reil, Manson, Ia., who is being sent a Tailor Trix pressing board for the best suggestion of the week.

NARROWER DARTS

"Dear Eunice,

"Would you please tell me where to take in the proper amount on the back of a skirt pattern? My skirt always seems too full across the back where the darts end and doesn't shape like skirts should."

Mrs. J. W. T.

Dear Mrs. J. W. T.:

The center back seam is seldom taken in. If you do adjust this seam, the same amount must be taken in down the entire length of your skirt or you will change the grain line.

Your problem seems to be in the darts. The deeper the darts are stitched, the more shaping you have formed. Since the back of your skirt should be relatively flat, try making the darts the same length, but slightly narrower at the widest part. Your skirt should be perfectly flat at the ends of the darts in back, without any pucker or shape at the ends.

CHALK MARKINGS

"Dear Eunice Farmer:

"What is the quickest and most accurate method of transferring the pattern markings to printed or textured materials and also garments that are to be lined?"

Mrs. A. J. R.

Dear Mrs. A. J. R.:

These markings may be made with colored chalk on the WRONG side of your fabric. Darts can be marked by making a ¼ inch clip at each side of the end of the dart, and chalk mark the point where dart ends. It is best to mark with tailor tacks any markings from your pattern that you will not be using immediately.

When your garment is to be completely lined, you will not have to mark your garment fabric at all, simply place all your markings on the lining itself. A tracing wheel would be satisfactory for markings on the lining.

GAY GINGHAM

Give your family room, child's room and your bedroom a lift for summer: An inexpensive fabric can be the magic ingredient to perk up your home. Gay checked cotton gingham makes an unusual frame for a group of pictures. Pictures may be floral prints, nursery prints, cowboy, old cars, or whatever, clipped from magazines.

Glue or staple the fabric to the wrong side of the board and then glue the picture in the center of the board and group several together above a couch, bed, or table. You may also cover throw pillows with the same fabric.

Please send your questions and tips to Eunice Farmer, in care of this paper.

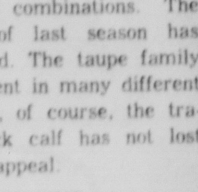
Make Plant Cuttings Now



By AUDREY H. DAWSON

July and August are excellent months for making cuttings of some of your favorite plants. You, Mrs. Gardener, may make cuttings of abelia, hydrangeas, gardenia, crape myrtle, holly, viburnium, legustrum, pittosporum, azalea, camellia, sasanqua and yellow jasmine.

Make the cuttings from about five inches of the tip growth, leaving from two to four leaves on each cutting. Treat the base of the cutting with a root inducing harmone power such as harmodin and rootone. Then place in moist sand or vermiculite or a mixture of both at a depth of approximately four inches. Be sure to keep the cutting watered well and keep the humidity high until the cuttings have rooted.

PRESIDENTS' MEETING

The 24 presidents of the Home Demonstration Clubs will meet Wednesday, August 1, at 9:30 a.m. to make some definite plans for activities to be carried out in 1963. So be sure to have your club represented, Mrs. President. You will be my guest for lunch.

HOME, GARDEN WEEK

Several homemakers have called asking for a program for Home and Garden Week. At present we have not received our supply. When you call leave your name and address and we will mail you a copy as soon as we get them.

If you are planning to attend and are interested in housing you will want to hear Bertram Berenson, assistant professor of architecture at LSU. The development of contemporary architectural ideas, individual dwellings and awareness and need for beauty will be reviewed. Another housing topic, modification of existing homes will be discussed by Perry Staub, Baton Rouge.

Family hobby exhibits will be on display throughout the week.

The Heart Association will present a special program on Tuesday afternoon.

SHOES FOR FALL

The long vamp with "slightly snipped" toe and square throat will be high fashion for this fall. Many shoes will feature the double pointed toe, but very few triple - needle toes will be found. Fabric shoes, especially silk, will be favorites. Lizard and alligator pumps will feature black and brown combinations. The shiny gold of last season has been subdued. The taupe family will be present in many different shades. And, of course, the traditional black calf has not lost its fashion appeal.

SEWING

In just a short time, Mrs. Seamstress, you will be making dresses for those misses who will be entering school. So, here're a few hints on using your sewing machine that will save time.

Use your machine for basting, lenghthen the stitch to six or seven inches per stitch. This not only saves time, but is much more accurate. Tying threads on seam ends that do not show on top is another job that can be done quickly and easily by your machine. When stitching of seam is finished, lift the presser foot just enough to keep the feed dog from pulling the material back, then let the needle go up and down in the same hole several times. This will tie the knot. Clip the threads closely. Back stitching is also satisfactory for under seams.

Use of a seam guide is a must for keeping an even seam stitch. You, Mrs. Seamstress, can place a piece of adhesive tape parallel with the presser foot of the machine. Since most seam allowances are ⅝ inch the tape should be placed in a straight line ⅝ of an inch from the needle. Uneven seam widths are often the reason pieces of a pattern do not fit properly.

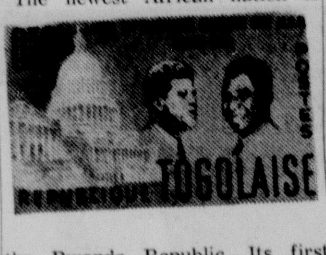
Stamp News

New nations in Africa are becoming old hands in the stamp issuing business. They have been quick to realize the advantages of world-wide publicity and promotion via postage stamps as well as a positive means of obtaining additional revenue.

Togo, for example, has issued a new set of stamps featuring President John F. Kennedy. It was released on July 4, (U. S. Independence Day) and honors the visit of Togo President Sylvanus Olympio to the United States in March. Each stamp depicts a head view of President Kennedy facing President Olympio. The United States Capitol Building in Washington appears at the left.

Togo gained its independence in 1960.

The newest African nation is



the Rwanda Republic. Its first stamp issue consists of 8 stamps. Each illustrates in medallion form a likeness of President Kayibanda, that country's first chief executive, plus a map of Africa showing the location of the new Rwanda Republic. All the stamps in this set are bi-colored.

Word has arrived from the Philippines that in view of the change of Independence Day from July 4 to June 12, that government attempted to move up its latest stamp issuance to that date, but the printer could not oblige in such haste. The stamps feature President Dios dado Macapogal taking the oath of office on Dec. 30, 1961. First day covers of this stamp, nevertheless, will be dated June 12, 1962.

A report from the nation's capital reveals that Alfred Parker, designer of the United States nursing stamp issued on Dec. 28, 1961, has identified his model as Mrs. Susan Bernstein of Carmel, Calif. There have been conflicting newspaper stories with different individuals claiming their portrait was the basis for the stamp. Parker, realizing that no living person may be pictured on a United States stamp, announced that he used Mrs. Bernstein as a model just so he could have a basis for the construction of a nurse's figure.

Scott Publications has announced the updating of its British Africa which completes the current revision of its Specialty Series on the British Commonwealth. British Africa is complete in two binders at $24. British Asia, British Europe and British America are the other albums in this series which have been updated.

Canada's new 5 cent stamp honors Jean Talon who played an important role in the early development and advancement of Canada. He was born in 1625 at Chalons sur Marne, France, and came to the New World on May 24, 1665. The new adhesive depicts a pastoral scene.

Stamp collectors interested in obtaining a first day cover check list may get one free by writing the Washington Press, Maplewood, N. J.

SOUTHERN GARDENER

Long Season In Southland

By WILLIAM LANIER HUNT

The growing season here in the southern states is so very long that we can scarcely believe it ourselves. Consequently, we are still gardening as if we were reading northern gardening books, and we fail to get the most out of our flowers.

Chrysanthemums and fall asters can still be moved about in July and August to produce a wonderful show of flowers in October and November. Most of us have old, starved clumps of Korean chrysanthemums in our gardens. These clumps can be divided into three - to - five - stemmed groups and set out all over the garden right now.

There are probably no more accommodatig perennials than chrysanthemums and fall asters. They can even be grown in rows in the vegetable or cutting garden and slipped into place in the flower garden a week or so before they flower to produce an annual fall show that is truly dazzling.

Then, when they have bloomed, you can lift them out and put them back with the vegetables.

The fall asters and michaelmas daisies (They are asters, too) provide the "blue," violet and purple colors to go with the yellows, oranges and reds of chrysanthemums. Perennial asters provide height, too, and can be used as background plants.

Those who have very small gardens can buy clumps of chrysanthemums from nearby florists and perennials nurseries. Potted chrysanthemums set around the sitting terrace are some of the most practical and easily managed flowers available.

Michaelmas daisies and chrysanthemums are rapid multipliers and hungry feeders. We plant them in our gardens and have a wonderful show of flowers the first two or three years. Then, about the fourth year, they have made such dense clumps that they starve themselves to death rapidly. They simply must be taken up and divided every few years if they are to produce the show of which they are capable.

In England, where our native American asters and the michaelmas daisies which have come from them are really appreciated, gardeners take up these plants every year and re-set them in well fertilized soil.

Failing this, they thin out the stalks and feed the plants with liquid fertilizer to get the most out of them. At the Harvest Festival in the churches, the aster show is truly amazing. In the cathedral town of Salisbury, one of the smaller churches is literally smothered inside with blue, violet and gold.

GARDEN CENTER NOTES

Beauty Unity Is Depicted

By MRS. JOHN TOLAR

Interpretive design in flower arranging was the subject of the Garden Center program presented last week by Mrs. Marcus Mapp, member of Bayou De Siard Garden Club, and very accomplished flower arranger and lecturer.

The theme chosen by Mrs. Mapp was "Unity in the Beauty of Creation and Nature." She said she chose this because it demands imagination.

She stated that imagination is the basic foundation for distinction and a quality possessed by almost everyone. When viewing the displays at the flower show where a certain theme has been interpreted it is quite interesting to note the differences in the way the theme is depicted by individuals. Each has his own way of seeing the subject and displaying his own creative ideas.

SEASHELL

For her first arrangement Mrs. Mapp used a lovely white sea shell that she placed on a base formed of a square of celetex roughly swirled with a plastic white paste.

Before drying some white stone chips and sand containing mica had been sprinkled on top. This arrangement interpreted an undersea garden. In the beginning of our world we find in Genesis in the first chapter that the waters covered the face of the earth. This was a challenge to Mrs. Mapp, this undersea garden. When the earth emerges from the sea we think of the sea shells and first spark of plant life lifting it's head.

Thus the sea shell served as the container for a few white mums with their buds placed in a spiral design. To insure their foothold and to add a feeling of security and assurance that they could begin life in a new world, a sparkling cluster of white quartz was placed directly at the base of the shell. A small bit of white fern (plastic) was used as a filler with the mums and symbolized the lack of life giving sun rays, but also giving a feeling that the entire placement is one of confidence in things to come.

An interpretation of beginnings in America was Mrs. Mapp's second design. She brought out that our heritage is certainly to be remembered with pride and admiration. There were tremendous hardships, but with a yearning for the bounty of the earth the pioneer women created beauty.

PIONEER LIFE

Through her efforts at dying cloth, and tilling the soil, her brand of beauty was created in hues assembled here in a manner suitable to pioneer times and life. For a container Mrs. Mapp chose an old fashioned lady's high top shoe, soft brown in color. Zinnias in shades of yellow and orange were placed in a diagonal design. Brown and orange cattails, clusters of oats and wheat were used as a filler. A cluster of orange colored grapes was placed at the base of the shoe near the toe, carrying the line of the design. These symbolized the plentiful harvest. The whole design was placed on a tan hand - woven mat. A very antiquated pair of ladies glasses was placed within the design at the base of the shoe. Glasses have a tremendous personality all their own and seem to wink at you as though they are bursting with stories of courage and triumph.

A contemporary arrangement was next shown by Mrs. Mapp. This is one that could be found in most of our homes today, she explained. Yellow and orange zinnias formed a mass line design in a green compote container. To strengthen the line the foliage of iris was used as the tall placement behind the zinnias. Two clusters of small green grapes hung over the edge of the container with one of the zinnias as though it was reaching for the cluster of larger grapes that lay at the right side of the base of the design. A soft green mat served as a base for this design. To tie this modern design in with the theme of her show Mrs. Mapp placed lovely polished rocks in the bowl around the needle - point holder, bringing to mind the beauty of Nature and Creation.

DRAMATIC POTENTIAL

As we look to the future we can be as dramatic as we dare Mrs. Mapp stated that this was her favorite field of creativity. Her final composition was a salute to our own lovely Louisiana, one of the leading producing states of salt, sulphur and oil. The base for this design was an authentic piece of ripplestone collected by the arranger's husband while out on a geological field trip. It was just perfect to remind us that our wealth comes from the earth and has lain locked in her soil and rocks from the beginning of time.

The tallest placements in this design were two black dowels which towered over the next in height, a core from an oil well drilled in our area and reminding us of our wealth of oil from the earth to us. The dowels were symbols of the earth vents which give off spurts of flame and fumes also. They provide the life - giving air circulation for our mines. Next to the oil well core was placed a salt dome from the mines at Winnfield. In the center of the design was placed a core from the sulphur mines of Louisiana. The flames of the burning gas were cleverly symbolized by the use of bright red glads - tiered within the design resembling two columns of flame blazing against the sky.

Mrs. Mapp ended with this thought, a quotation from Ralph Waldo Emerson's writings, when he said:

"Consider that the perpetual admonition of nature to us is, the world is new, untried. Do not live or believe in just the past. I give you the universe new and unhandled every hour."

We do appreciate your splendid program, Mrs. Mapp. It was one that we will enjoy a long, long time. Sharing your talent with us has been a rare treat, a lesson in interpretive design, and appreciation of creative imagination. We'll be looking forward to your next Garden Center and T. V. program in the near future.

Our next program will come to us from the Garden of Eden Garden Club of Bastrop, of which Mrs. J. E. Jackson is president.

Camera Notes

By IRVING DESFOR
AP Newsfeatures

Photography sometimes is a compelling force which impels countless Americans to grab their cameras, load up with film and head for photogenic vistas abroad.

That must leave a vacuum and you know how nature abhors a vacuum.

To fill that void, the same compelling force recently unloaded a large group of photographers 'midst the skyscrapers and canyons of New York City.

SWITCH

It was quite a switch, however, to find that this was a group of 80 Scandinavians, members of the Federation of Nordic Photographers, who are promoting travel in the United States through photography.

Seeing them darting around on my home territory taught me that the sights and scenes to which I've become accustomed look mighty exciting and dramatic when viewed through a foreigner's viewfinder.

I felt even more sheepish when I heard about their sightseeing boat trip around Manhattan. A seasoned group of expert cameramen, many of them professional press photographers in Denmark, they snapped away at the Statue of Liberty with machine-gun rapidity just like any other group of excited tourists. As a typical New Yorker, born and raised, I haven't yet gotten around to visiting this world famed landmark! Nor have I taken her picture yet. The trouble is that it's too conveniently close.

This visit of the Scandinavian photographers is the first click in a program welcomed by photographic and travel agencies. Other groups of amateur and professional photographers throughout the world are being encouraged to travel and record the sights of this country. The pictures they get will be organized into traveling exhibits which will tour the major cities in the world.

EXCHANGE

While in New York, the Danish press photographers have arranged to work in small groups for several days in the city's newspapers, magazines and press associations. In return, members of the New York Press Photographers Association will work in Danish publications when they visit that country in the future.

Swedish photographers will visit Washington, Pittsburgh, Cleveland, Detroit and Niagara Falls. The Danish group are the guests of the state of Florida for a week and will present a specially designed chair for the astronauts' lounge at Cape Canaveral.

The pictures taken by the Scandinavians will make up the first traveling exhibit in this program. Popular Photography will award $500 for the three best pictures submitted by members of the group. The exhibit will premiere at a travel convention in Las Vegas in October before starting its tour in this country and in Europe.

"An expert photographer's record of his trip cannot be equalled by any other traveler," commented Bruce Downes, editor and publisher of Popular Pohtography. "We've estimated that he shows his pictures to an average of 78 people. And of these, we find that seven people are motivated to take a similar trip. Nothing sells like photography, and nobody sells travel like picture takers'."

Frazer Key Lay Leader For Church

Harry Frazer Jr. of Monroe has been named chairman of Episcopal laymen's work in the Monroe convocation, it was announced by Ed Kerr of Alexandria, state chairman of Louisiana Episcopal Laymen. Frazer, a member of the Grace Church congregation, will promote laymen's activities in all 14 Episcopal churches in northeast Louisiana.

Frazer announced that his main goal this year will be to promote increased participation by laymen in the bishop's "Minute Man" program to help establish more new missions within the state. At present, Episcopal laymen of the state contribute more than $14,000 a year toward this project. The goal is to double this amount, he said.

DEFINITION

A "Minute Man," he pointed out, is one who pledges to send the bishop of Louisiana a certain amount once each year when he receives a communique from him. At the time of the call, the exact purpose is stated. Frazer said, so the layman knows exactly what job his money is accomplishing.

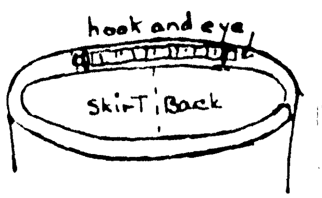
In past years, the "Minute Man" program has financed new missions at Bossier City, Harahan, Monroe, Lafayette, East Gentilly and a house for seminarians at the University of the South, Sewanee, Tenn.

SEW SIMPLE

By Eunice Farmer

A waistband that grows is perfect for skirts, shorts, and slacks that must fit a growing child with a varying waistline. Before hand-sewing the INSIDE of the waist-band to your skirt, make two machine buttonholes at the back about 6 or 8 inches apart. You may slip a piece of elastic through the buttonholes, using the waistband of your skirt as a casing.

The elastic must be measured to insure a snug fit. You may machine stitch both ends of the elastic to the waistband, or you may fasten a hook and eye to one end. When it is unhooked, you can press the waistband flat, and it also makes it easier to change the length of the elastic as your child grows.



This waistband that grows is not an original idea of mine. It was suggested by Mrs. E. J. Reil, Manson, Ia., who is being sent a Tailor Trix pressing board for the best suggestion of the week.

NARROWER DARTS

"Dear Eunice,

"Would you please tell me where to take in the proper amount on the back of a skirt pattern? My skirt always seems too full across the back where the darts end and doesn't shape like skirts should."

Mrs. J. W. T.

Dear Mrs. J. W. T.

The center back seam is seldom taken in. If you do adjust this seam, the same amount must be taken in down the entire length of your skirt or you will change the grain line.

Your problem seems to be in the darts. The deeper the darts are stitched, the more shaping you have formed. Since the back of your skirt should be relatively flat, try making the darts the same length, but slightly narrower at the widest part. Your skirt should be perfectly flat at the ends of the darts in back, without any pucker or shape at the ends.

CHALK MARKINGS

"Dear Eunice Farmer:

"What is the quickest and most accurate method of transferring the pattern markings to printed or textured materials and also garments that are to be lined?"

Mrs. A. J. R.

Dear Mrs. A. J. R.

These markings may be made with colored chalk on the WRONG side of your fabric. Darts can be marked by making a ¼ inch clip at each side of the end of the dart, and chalk mark the point where dart ends. It is best to mark with tailor tacks any markings from your pattern that you will not be using immediately.

When your garment is to be completely lined, you will not have to mark your garment fabric at all, simply place all your markings on the lining itself. A tracing wheel would be satisfactory for markings on the linin.

GAY GINGHAM

Give your family room, child's room and your bedroom a lift for summer. An inexpensive fabric can be the magic ingredient to perk up your home. Gay checked cotton gingham makes an unusual frame for a group of pictures. Pictures may be floral prints, nursery prints, cowboy, old cars, or whatever, clipped from magazines.

Glue or staple the fabric to the wrong side of the board and then glue the picture in the center of the board and group several together above a couch, bed, or table. You may also cover throw pillows with the same fabric.

Please send your questions and tips to Eunice Farmer, in care of this paper.

Make Plant Cuttings Now

By AUDREY H. DAWSON

July and August are excellent months for making cuttings of some of your favorite plants. You, Mrs. Gardener, may make cuttings of abelia, hydrangeas, gardenia, crape myrtle, holly, viburnium, legustrum, pittosporum, azalea, camellia, sasanqua and yellow jasmine.

Make the cuttings from about five inches of the tip growth, leaving from two to four leaves on each cutting. Treat the base of the cutting with a root inducing harmone power such as harmodin and rootone. Then place in moist sand or vermiculite or a mixture of both at a depth of approximately four inches. Be sure to keep the cutting watered well and keep the humidity high until the cuttings have rooted.

PRESIDENTS' MEETING

The 24 presidents of the Home Demonstration Clubs will meet Wednesday, August 1, at 9:30 a.m. to make some definite plans for activities to be carried out in 1963. So be sure to have your club represented, Mrs. President. You will be my guest for lunch.

HOME, GARDEN WEEK

Several homemakers have called asking for a program for Home and Garden Week. At present we have not received our supply. When you call leave your name and address and we will mail you a copy as soon as we get them.

If you are planning to attend and are interested in housing you will want to hear Bertram Berenson, assistant professor of architecture at LSU. The development of contemporary architectural ideas, individual dwellings and awareness and need for beauty will be reviewed. Another housing topic, modification of existing homes will be discussed by Perry Staub, Baton Rouge.

Family hobby exhibits will be on display throughout the week.

The Heart Association will present a special program on Tuesday afternoon.

SHOES FOR FALL

The long vamp with "slightly snipped" toe and square throat will be high fashion for this fall. Many shoes will feature the double pointed toe, but very few triple - needle toes will be found. Fabric shoes, especially silk, will be favorites. Lizard and allegator pumps will feature black and brown combinations. The shiny gold of last season has been subdued. The taupe family will be present in many different shades. And, of course, the traditional black calf has not lost its fashion appeal.

SEWING

In just a short time, Mrs. Seamstress, you will be making dresses for those misses who will be entering school. So, here're a few hints on using your sewing machine that will save time.

Use your machine for basting, lengththen the stitch to six or seven inches per stitch. This not only saves time, but is much more accurate. Tying threads on seam ends that do not show on top is another job that can be done quickly and easily by your machine. When stitching of seam is finished, lift the presser foot just enough to keep the feed dog from pulling the material back, then let the needle go up and down in the same hole several times. This will tie the knot. Clip the threads closely. Back stitching is also satisfactory for under seams.

Use of a seam guide is a must for keeping an even seam stitch. You, Mrs. Seamstress, can place a piece of adhesive tape parallel with the presser foot of the machine. Since most seam allowances are ⅝ inch the tape should be placed in a straight line ⅝ of an inch from the needle. Uneven seam widths are often the reason pieces of a pattern do not fit properly.

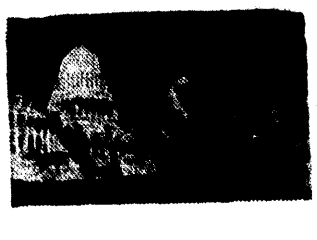
Stamp News

New nations in Africa are becoming old hands in the stamp issuing business. They have been quick to realize the advantages of world-wide publicity and promotion via postage stamps as well as a positive means of obtaining additional revenue.

Togo, for example, has issued a new set of stamps featuring President John F. Kennedy. It was released on July 4, (U. S. Independence Day) and honors the visit of Togo President Sylvanus Olympio to the United States in March. Each stamp depicts a head view of President Kennedy facing President Olympio. The United States Capitol Building in Washington appears at the left.

Togo gained its independence in 1960.

The newest African nation is



the Rwanda Republic. Its first stamp issue consists of 8 stamps. Each illustrates in medallion form a likeness of President Kayibanda, that country's first chief executive, plus a map of Africa showing the location of the new Rwanda Republic. All the stamps in this set are bi-colored.

Word has arrived from the Philippines that in view of the change of Independence Day from July 4 to June 12, that government attempted to move up its latest stamp issuance to that date, but the printer could not oblige in such haste. The stamps feature President Dios dado Macapagal taking the oath of office on Dec. 30, 1961. First day covers of this stamp, nevertheless, will be dated June 12, 1962.

A report from the nation's capital reveals that Alfred Parker, designer of the United States nursing stamp issued on Dec. 28, 1961, has identified his model as Mrs. Susan Bernstein of Carmel, Calif. There have been conflicting newspaper stories with different individuals claiming their portrait was the basis for the stamp. Parker, realizing that no living person may be pictured on a United States stamp, announced that he used Mrs. Bernstein as a model just so he could have a basis for the construction of a nurse's figure.

Scott Publications has announced the updating of its British Africa which completes the current revision of its Specialty Series on the British Commonwealth. British Africa is complete in two binders at $24. British Asia, British Europe and British America are the other albums in this series which have been updated.

Canada's new 5 cent stamp honors Jean Talon who played an important role in the early development and advancement of Canada. He was born in 1625 at Chalons sur Marne, France, and came to the New World on May 24, 1665. The new adhesive depicts a pastoral scene.

Stamp collectors interested in obtaining a first day cover check list may get one free by writing the Washington Press, Maplewood, N. J.

SOUTHERN GARDENER

Long Season In Southland

By WILLIAM LANIER HUNT

The growing season here in the southern states is so very long that we can scarcely believe it ourselves. Consequently, we are still gardening as if we were reading northern gardening books, and we fail to get the most out of our flowers.

Chrysanthemums and fall asters can still be moved about in July and August to produce a wonderful show of flowers in October and November. Most of us have old, starved clumps of Korean chrysanthemums in our gardens. These clumps can be divided into three - to - five - stemmed groups and set out all over the garden right now.

There are probably no more accommodatig perennials than chrysanthemums and fall asters. They can even be grown in rows in the vegetable or cutting garden and slipped into place in the flower garden a week or so before they flower to produce an annual fall show that is truly dazzling.

Then, when they have bloomed, you can lift them out and put them back with the vegetables.

The fall asters and michaelmas daisies (They are asters, too) provide the "blue," violet and purple colors to go with the yellows, oranges and reds of chrysanthemums. Perennial asters provide height, too, and can be used as background plants.

Those who have very small gardens can buy clumps of chrysanthemums from nearby florists and perennials nurseries. Potted chrysanthemums set around the sitting terrace are some of the most practical and easily managed flowers available.

Michaelmas daisies and chrysanthemums are rapid multipliers and hungry feeders. We plant them in our gardens and have a wonderful show of flowers the first two or three years. Then, about the fourth year, they have made such dense clumps that they starve themselves to death rapidly. They simply must be taken up and divided every few years if they are to produce the show of which they are capable.

In England, where our native American asters and the michaelmas daisies which have come from them are really appreciated, gardeners take up these plants every year and re-set them in well fertilized soil.

Failing this, they thin out the stalks and feed the plants with liquid fertilizer to get the most out of them. At the Harvest Festival in the churches, the aster show is truly amazing. In the cathedral town of Salisbury, one of the smaller churches is literally smothered inside with blue, violet and gold.

JFK Steers Boat

Kennedy's trick at the tiller and on the lines of the mainsail marked the first time he is known to have sailed since the summer of 1960.

He may have taken the 22-foot Victura out earlier this season—others in the family have been using the sloop—but if so, no outsiders were aware of it.

Kennedy, in a greyish sweater, was at the tiller when the Victura left the family dock and nosed into the sound. He apparently switched places with a younger sailing mate as the Victura turned back after venturing past an abandoned harbor light and leaving shore a mile behind.

After depositing three hands back at the pier, the Victura went out again for a few minutes with the President, his youngest brother, Edward M. (Ted) Kennedy, and one other aboard. This time the chief executive handled the mainsail. He helped furl the canvas and the jib of the genoa-rigged boat as it finally put to shore.

Rhodesian DC3 Engine Shot Up Above Katanga

SALISBURY, Southern Rhodesia (AP)—A Dakota DC3 aircraft belonging to Rhodesian air services had its port engine shot up and was forced down over northern Katanga Saturday a company spokesman said here.

He said the plane managed to land safely at Manono and the crew is believed to be safe.

J. Malloch, the company's operations director here, said the plane was operating legitimately over northern Katanga with U.N. clearance. He said it was transporting food for the Katanga government.

Unconfirmed reports said the plane was flying at 9,000 feet and therefore its damage was possibly caused by a fighter plane.

ENGLISH CHANNEL SWIM

26-Miles Undersea

DOVER, England (UPI)—Englishman Simon Paterson, 20, swam the channel underwater Saturday and shattered the American-held time record by more than five hours.

Paterson plunged into the icy channel at dawn at Cap Griz Nez, France, and surfaced 13 hours 50 minutes, later at Shakespeare Beach west of here to become the second man to swim the 26-mile straight line distance underwater .

American frogman Fred Baldasare, 38, of Coca Beach, Fla., was the first to go the route underwater July 11 in a crossing of 19 hours, 1 minute. Due to currents he covered about 40 miles.

Simon said after the swim "I feel perfectly fit and very happy."

He is the 119th person to swim the channel since the first recorded success Aug. 27, 1875. More than 800 have tried it.

Byrd Predicts Withholding Tax To Lose By 3-1

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Harry F. Byrd, D-Va., predicted Saturday the administration plan for a withholding tax on interest and dividends would be defeated by a 3 to 1 margin in the Senate if put to a vote.

He made the forecast—and said he also had given it to Treasury Secretary Douglas Dillon—in an interview with Sen. Jack Miller, R-Iowa. The interview was recorded for Midwestern radio stations.

The first patent ever issued by the United States was for an improvement in making an ingredient of soap.

Crash Kills Four

CARROLLTON, Ga. (AP) —A rented plane plunged through dark clouds and drizzling rain to destruction Saturday in the soft earth of a west Georgia pasture, killing the four occupants.

The victims were:

Fred L. McAlister, 28, of Jackson, Miss., public relations director for Southern Bell Telephone Co. in Mississippi; his wife, Rachel, 22; their 7-month-old son, Ricky; and Mrs McAlister's 10-year-old brother, Stevie Garrett of Greenville, S. C., McAlister's parents live at Travelers' Rest, S.C.

They set out early in the day in the rented Cessna—175 with Greenville as their destination, to return the 10-year-old to his home after a vacation in Mississippi. Four hours later all were dead.

The torn condition of the bodies caused confusion for more than two hours as to whether the death toll was three, four or five. But Jackson authorities said only four were aboard when the plane left there.

The crash came on a farm two miles west of this city. Residents of the area told Sheriff Hugh L. Lambert they saw the plane catapult toward the earth, then heard the crash. They said the engine was roaring and whining.

Police chief Rader Threadgill and deputy sheriff Robbie Hamrick described the scene of devastation. The wreckage was strewn over several areas with bits of bodies intermingled.

The bodies of Mr. and Mrs. McAlister were thrown more than 100 feet from where the plane's single engine had ploughed into the ground.

JFK Steers Boat

Kennedy's trick at the tiller and on the lines of the mainsail marked the first time he is known to have sailed since the summer of 1960.

He may have taken the 22-foot Victura out earlier this season—others in the family have been using the sloop—but if so, no outsiders were aware of it.

Kennedy, in a greyish sweater, was at the tiller when the Victura left the family dock and nosed into the sound. He apparently switched places with a younger sailing mate as the Victura turned back after venturing past an abandoned harbor light and leaving shore a mile behind.

After depositing three hands back at the pier, the Victura went out again for a few minutes with the President, his youngest brother, Edward M. (Ted) Kennedy, and one other aboard. This time the chief executive handled the mainsail. He helped furl the canvas and the jib of the genoa-rigged boat as it finally put to shore.

Rhodesian DC3 Engine Shot Up Above Katanga

SALISBURY, Southern Rhodesia (AP)—A Dakota DC3 aircraft belonging to Rhodesian air services had its port engine shot up and was forced down over northern Katanga Saturday a company spokesman said here.

He said the plane managed to land safely at Manono and the crew is believed to be safe.

J. Malloch, the company's operations director here, said the plane was operating legitimately over northern Katanga with U.N. clearance. He said it was transporting food for the Katanga government.

Unconfirmed reports said the plane was flying at 9,000 feet and therefore its damage was possibly caused by a fighter plane.

ENGLISH CHANNEL SWIM

26-Miles Undersea

DOVER, England (UPI)—Englishman Simon Paterson, 20, swam the channel underwater Saturday and shattered the American-held time record by more than five hours.

Paterson plunged into the icy channel at dawn at Cap Griz Nez, France, and surfaced 13 hours 50 minutes, later at Shakespeare Beach west of here to become the second man to swim the 26-mile straight line distance underwater .

American frogman Fred Baldasare, 38, of Coca Beach, Fla., was the first to go the route underwater July 11 in a crossing of 19 hours, 1 minute. Due to currents he covered about 40 miles.

Simon said after the swim "I feel perfectly fit and very happy."

He is the 119th person to swim the channel since the first recorded success Aug. 27, 1875. More than 800 have tried it.

Byrd Predicts Withholding Tax To Lose By 3-1

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Harry F. Byrd, D-Va., predicted Saturday the administration plan for a withholding tax on interest and dividends would be defeated by a 3 to 1 margin in the Senate if put to a vote.

He made the forecast—and said he also had given it to Treasury Secretary Douglas Dillon—in an interview with Sen. Jack Miller, R-Iowa. The interview was recorded for Midwestern radio stations.

The first patent ever issued by the United States was for an improvement in making an ingredient of soap.

Crash Kills Four

CARROLLTON, Ga. (AP) —A rented plane plunged through dark clouds and drizzling rain to destruction Saturday in the soft earth of a west Georgia pasture, killing the four occupants.

The victims were:

Fred L. McAlister, 28, of Jackson, Miss., public relations director for Southern Bell Telephone Co. in Mississippi; his wife, Rachel, 22; their 7-month-old son, Ricky; and Mrs McAlister's 10-year-old brother, Stevie Garrett of Greenville, S. C., McAlister's parents live at Travelers' Rest, S.C.

They set out early in the day in the rented Cessna—175 with Greenville as their destination, to return the 10-year-old to his home after a vacation in Mississippi. Four hours later all were dead.

The torn condition of the bodies caused confusion for more than two hours as to whether the death toll was three, four or five. But Jackson authorities said only four were aboard when the plane left there.

The crash came on a farm two miles west of this city. Residents of the area told Sheriff Hugh L. Lambert they saw the plane catapult toward the earth, then heard the crash. They said the engine was roaring and whining.

Police chief Rader Threadgill and deputy sheriff Robbie Hamrick described the scene of devastation. The wreckage was strewn over several areas with bits of bodies intermingled.

The bodies of Mr. and Mrs. McAlister were thrown more than 100 feet from where the plane's single engine had ploughed into the ground.

Estes Witnesses Assert 60-70 Per Cent Interest Possible

AMARILLO, Tex (AP) — Witnesses testified Saturday that Billie Sol Estes urged them to build up their political influence, and that at least some lending companies had a chance to make 60 to 70 per cent interest if Estes' empire had not collapsed.

The testimony came at a third day of a Texas court of inquiry in which:

1. An Estes associate said that some employes of lending companies which claim they were bilked by Estes knew Estes was selling bogus mortgages.

2. Estes persuaded one lending company to approve some of his mortgages by requiring two of the firm's employes to listen to an hour-long Estes church sermon played on a tape recorder.

The inquiry, scheduled to end Friday night, was extended to permet Texas Atty. Gen. Will Wilson to probe deeper Saturday. He was absent the first two days because of the death of his father. The hearing was recessed after Saturday's testimony.

"Estes kept telling me I should become acquainted with influential people like Mr. Yarborough," testified Coleman D. McSpadden, an Estes associate who earlier pleaded guilty to federal charges of fraud.

McSpadden quoted Estes as saying that he had "spent $40,000 on his (Yarborough's) last campaign." The witness did not further identify Yarborough.

Sen. Ralph Yarborough, D-Tex., has said he received $1,700 from Estes to help pay for the senator's weekly radio broadcasts to Texas constitutents. An aide to Yarborough said at the time that the senator also had received "a few thousand dollars" of campaign contributions from Estes.

McSpadden said Friday Estes told him he was giving an interest in a grain elevator to Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson. He added quickly that he doubted Estes ever really planned to give a share to Johnson.

An aide to Johnson said neither Johnson nor his family ever had any business dealings with Estes.

McSpadden reviewed Friday's testimony that Estes boasted he could stop an FBI probe, and Atty. Gen. Wilson asked if Estes said anything else on the matter.

"He said, 'I've got to start going to Washington. I believe I can do a better job there than Commercial Solvents has.'" Commercial Solvents is a New York firm which supplied Estes with fertilizer for his extensive retail sales.

Harold Orr returned to the stand. Orr, McSpadden and Ruel Alexander pleaded guilty to a federal fraud indictment to which Estes pleaded innocent. The three Estes associates await sentencing.

Orr declared that at least some of the lending companies who say they have been bilked of from $22 to $24 million by Estes by purchasing mortgages on which the collateral is nonexistent knew the mortgages were fake.

Orr named Richard Crane of Pacific Finance, Los Angeles, and said Crane "brought up Estes and said he knew about some bogus (irrigation) pump paper that Associated Investments got stuck with for about $1.5 million."

The witness said Crane knew about this because his company had been talking about a possible merger with Associated Investments.

Orr also said Richard Rumberger and Chuck Lloyd of Pioneer Finance Co., of Detroit were among those who knew some of the mortgages actually had no collateral.

Orr said at one time he discussed interest rates with Jim Turiff and William King of CIT Corp., a financing firm. He said they told him the discount on the purchase of Estes mortgages was computed at 6 to 8 per cent plus the interest quoted in the mortgages.

"The effect was to make the interest run up to 60 to 70 per cent over the life of the mortgage," said Orr.

King said, Orr testified, that he could void every CIT Corp., contract in Texas under the usury laws.

Orr was asked why CIT stopped buying mortgages involved in Estes' operations.

The witness replied, "Bill Briner (not otherwise identified) of CIT found out how we were operating. So Turriff then went to Mr. Estes and said, 'get Bill Briner on the payroll.' We arranged to pay him $300 to $400 a month, but in about two weeks the lid blew off everything" — referring to Estes' and Orr's arrest.

He said that Lloyd and Rumberger of Pioneer Finance were dissatisfied with some notes Pioneer had brought from Superior and want to talk about them.

HOME OWNED · HOME OPERATED

The poles are set, the lines are strung, bright lights have replaced the kerosene lamp, and the Electric Cooperatives of Louisiana have literally turned night into day in the rural areas. This remarkable accomplishment has meant new business, new jobs, progress for town and country.

But the electrical loads first delivered to rural Louisiana by the Electric Cooperatives are increasing by the day. An improved community and more and varied uses for electric power mean more lines . . . and greater service facilities.

The Electric Cooperatives of Louisiana have succeeded — are succeeding and will succeed in their continuing task of providing a dependable, efficient, low cost electric service to rural Louisiana.

Estes Witnesses Assert 60-70 Per Cent Interest Possible

AMARILLO, Tex (AP) — Witnesses testified Saturday that Billie Sol Estes urged them to build up their political influence, and that at least some lending companies had a chance to make 60 to 70 per cent interest if Estes' empire had not collapsed.

The testimony came at a third day of a Texas court of inquiry in which:

1. An Estes associate said that some employes of lending companies which claim they were bilked by Estes knew Estes was selling bogus mortgages.

2. Estes persuaded one lending company to approve some of his mortgages by requiring two of the firm's employes to listen to an hour-long Estes church sermon played on a tape recorder.

The inquiry, scheduled to end Friday night, was extended to permet Texas Atty. Gen. Will Wilson to probe deeper Saturday. He was absent the first two days because of the death of his father. The hearing was recessed after Saturday's testimony.

"Estes kept telling me I should become acquainted with influential people like Mr. Yarborough," testified Coleman D. McSpadden, an Estes associate who earlier pleaded guilty to federal charges of fraud.

McSpadden quoted Estes as saying that he had "spent $40,000 on his (Yarborough's) last campaign." The witness did not further identify Yarborough.

Sen. Ralph Yarborough, D-Tex., has said he received $1,700 from Estes to help pay for the senator's weekly radio broadcasts to Texas constitutents. An aide to Yarborough said at the time that the senator also had received "a few thousand dollars" of campaign contributions from Estes.

McSpadden said Friday Estes told him he was giving an interest in a grain elevator to Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson. He added quickly that he doubted Estes ever really planned to give a share to Johnson.

An aide to Johnson said neither Johnson nor his family ever had any business dealings with Estes.

McSpadden reviewed Friday's testimony that Estes boasted he could stop an FBI probe, and Atty. Gen. Wilson asked if Estes said anything else on the matter.

"He said, 'I've got to start going to Washington. I believe I can do a better job there than Commercial Solvents has.'" Commercial Solvents is a New York firm which supplied Estes with fertilizer for his extensive retail sales.

Harold Orr returned to the stand. Orr, McSpadden and Ruel Alexander pleaded guilty to a federal fraud indictment to which Estes pleaded innocent. The three Estes associates await sentencing.

Orr declared that at least some of the lending companies who say they have been bilked of from $22 to $24 million by Estes by purchasing mortgages on which the collateral is nonexistent knew the mortgages were fake.

Orr named Richard Crane of Pacific Finance, Los Angeles, and said Crane "brought up Estes and said he knew about some bogus (irrigation) pump paper that Associated Investments got stuck with for about $1.5 million."

The witness said Crane knew about this because his company had been talking about a possible merger with Associated Investments.

Orr also said Richard Rumberger and Chuck Lloyd of Pioneer Finance Co., of Detroit were among those who knew some of the mortgages actually had no collateral.

Orr said at one time he discussed interest rates with Jim Turiff and William King of CIT Corp., a financing firm. He said they told him the discount on the purchase of Estes mortgages was computed at 6 to 8 per cent plus the interest quoted in the mortgages.

"The effect was to make the interest run up to 60 to 70 per cent over the life of the mortgage," said Orr.

King said, Orr testified, that he could void every CIT Corp., contract in Texas under the usury laws.

Orr was asked why CIT stopped buying mortgages involved in Estes' operations.

The witness replied, "Bill Briner (not otherwise identified) of CIT found out how we were operating. So Turriff then went to Mr. Estes and said, 'get Bill Briner on the payroll.' We arranged to pay him $300 to $400 a month, but in about two weeks the lid blew off everything" — referring to Estes' and Orr's arrest.

He said that Lloyd and Rumberger of Pioneer Finance were dissatisfied with some notes Pioneer had brought from Superior and want to talk about them.

The poles are set, the lines are strung, bright lights have replaced the kerosene lamp, and the Electric Cooperatives of Louisiana have literally turned night into day in the rural areas. This remarkable accomplishment has meant new business, new jobs, progress for town and country.

But the electrical loads first delivered to rural Louisiana by the Electric Cooperatives are increasing by the day. An improved community and more and varied uses for electric power mean more lines . . . and greater service facilities.

The Electric Cooperatives of Louisiana have succeeded — are succeeding and will succeed in their continuing task of providing a dependable, efficient, law cost electric service to rural Louisiana.

LOST HANDS ALREADY

Dynamite Wired In Woman's Car

ENGLEWOOD, Colo. (UPI)—A stick of dynamite was found Saturday wired into the ignition of the car of a woman who lost both hands last January in the explosion of a package sent her through the mails.

The Englewood police department said the explosive had apparently been in the car of Mrs. Mildred Tandy, 46, of Eckert, Colo., for as long as six months—or since about the time a package blew up as she was opening it in a store she ran at Ekckert last Jan. 18.

A part-time carpenter and former acquaintance of Mrs. Tandy, David W. Wion, 52, of Sacramento, Calif., was arrested, convicted of sending the package, and is serving 20 years in federal prison.

Police cordoned off the area Saturday and demolition experts from the Denver Fire Department removed the dynamite and explosive cap.

The said the device was wired into the ignition to explode when the key was turned on, but that the ground wire was loose. They said, however, the bomb could have gone off any time the ground wire made contact when the key was on.

Mrs. Tandy had been visiting relatives in Oklahoma and had driven back with several of them this week for a visit with an aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Hedrick of Englewood.

Zimmerman went out to the car Saturday morning to attach a device to the steering wheel which would allow Mrs. Tandy to drive the car with her artificial hands. His nephew, Bob Lindsey, 18, of Tulsa, Okla., was with him.

"Bob said, 'Jim, what's that sticking out from under the dash'?" Zimmerman said. "I took a look at it. It was a stick of dynamite. I rolled out of that car and got everyone out of there and called the police.

Young Lion, Tipsy Owner Held By Cops

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — City police had to take Elizabeth, an 11-week-old lion cub, into custody Saturday because of a traffic accident they think she caused.

For a time there was a problem of what to do with Liz, who blinked sleepily on the floor of the second district station house and licked her paws nonchalantly.

"Why should it be our worry?" one patrolman commented. "Let's send it to the juvenile bureau."

Then it developed that McCormick was married. So an officer telephoned his wife.

"Hello, Mrs. McCormick?...This is the second district police station. We've booked your husband. He's been in an accident...Oh yes, he's all right...well, and-uh—we've got Elizabeth."

Mrs. McCormick said she would come and arrange to get husband and lion cub out.

Officers said McCormick drove a car, with Elizabeth as passenger, which hit a parked vehicle, heavily damaging both.

One policeman speculated on what part was played in the accident by Liz, who was frisking around on a leash when he arrived at the scene.

"I imagine she made a jump or something and he reached for her."

PROGRESS FOR CHURCHILL

LONDON (AP) — Sir Winston Churchill is still making good progress, officials reported at Middlesex Hospital Saturday but Lady Churchill said he would not be returning home yet awhile. The 87-year-old former prime minister is convalescing from a broken thigh, suffered in Monte Carlo June 28.

Head Negotiator Returns To U.S.

NEW YORK (AP) — U.S. disarmament negotiator Arthur H. Dean dodged his customary airport news conference Saturday when he arrived from Geneva en route to confer with President Kennedy.

To repeated questions about reports that the United States might soften its stand on disarmament control inspections, Dean said: "I can't issue a statement. I usually do, but this time I won't make a statement."

Sub Officials Hope To Make Up Loss

WASHINGTON (AP) — A nine-day shipyard strike has set back the schedule on vitally needed nuclear submarines, but officials expressed hope Saturday that some of the lost time can be recovered.

They were pleased at the agreement Friday between management of the Electric Boat Division of General Dynamics Corp. and negotiators for 8,500 members of the AFL-CIO Metal Trades Council at Groton, Conn.

It will be more difficult to offset the work stoppage effect on submarines in for overhaul and those nearing completion of construction than in making up time on hulls still in early stages of construction, a Navy spokesman explained.

Urgency in getting on with building and overhaul work for both the Polaris missile ships and the attack submarines is emphasized. Navy men noted reports that the Soviet Union now claims new nuclear-powered, missile-armed submersibles carrying atomic torpedoes.

Eleven submarines are on the ways at the Groton yard—seven Polaris types and four antisubmarine submarines.

The Navy has six Polaris ships deployed off the European coast, within missile range of Soviet targets. The schedule calls for a squadron of 10 ships, the last of them to join the squadron in the coming year.

However, completion of construction on a nuclear submarine still leaves the submarine far from ready to join the fleet on station. From the time a submarine completes its shakedown cruise until it takes up station as a fully operational part of the fleet usually is about six months. Of that, about two months are spent in a yard for checkup and overhaul following the shakedown.

Next submarine due into the electric boat yards for that purpose is the Polaris missile ship Thomas Edison. The next submarine to head for European waters station will be the Sam Houston.

One of the seven Polaris submarines at the Groton yard is due for delivery late this year, four others during 1963 and the other two in 1964.

Two of the nuclear-powered antisubmarine submarines are scheduled for delivery next year, another in 1964 and another in 1965.

Several other yards on both the East and West coasts have Polaris or antisubmarines under construction.

Navy officials say the need for more antisubmarines is as vital as for the missile-firing submersibles. The deep-diving, high-speed nuclear submarine is rated as the best weapon against another submarine. Fifteen of these are now in the fleet, but this is only a fraction of the U.S. submarine force, a major part of which still is conventionally powered boats.

In addition to new construction at the Groton yard, the atomic submarine Triton is in for conversion from her original mission of a radar picket submersible to equipment and armament as an antisubmarine.

3 Republicans See Wins In Economy Lag

WASHINGTON (AP) — Three Republican senators contended Saturday that what they called President Kennedy's inability to cope with a lagging economy promises GOP victories in the November elections.

Sens. Clifford P. Case of New Jersey and Jacob K. Javits of New York who list themselves as liberals, said indecision by the administration on what to do about the economy is likely to become the No. 1 issue in the congressional campaign.

Sen. John G. Tower, a Texas conservative, said the need for massive cuts in spending "to restore flagging confidence in the administration, both at home and abroad, is more and more evident every day."

Case said on a taped television program he thinks a collection of issues will work for the Republicans' benefit.

He said these include Kennedy's "failure to get the economy on a level that we can support" and inability to reduce long-term unemployment.

"The whole matter of his welfare programs, education program, absence of civil rights legislation, the failure up to now to take effective action in the tax field and other economic matters—this is a pretty sorry picture," Case said.

Javits said in the text of a speech prepared for a Massena, N. Y., rally that the Democratic administration has been "unable to extricate itself from the situation it created by its unnecessary and arbitrary show of force on the steel-price increase."

"The President cannot camouflage his failures of leadership by blaming Republicans for his setbacks," Javits said. "The country knows that he has lopsided Democratic majorities in the Congress; the country expects Republican opposition.

"And the country knows that the President's major defeats in Congress have been engineered by leaders of his own party."

Javits said the way for Republicans to win control of the House is "not to imitate ultra-conservative Southern Democrats in policies of negativism and obstruction—nor to outpromise Northern and Western Democrats."

Javits said the economic situation today is serious.

"There are enough indices and enough statistics available to show that the economy is sluggish, in a way which on other occasions has signaled a recession," he said.

FROM FAKIRS' BOOK

BLYTH, England (UPI) —Taking a leaf out of the book of Indian fakirs, pigeons are using nails to build their nests on the roof of the police station.

A police spokesman said Saturday the pigeons' sloppy construction work is causing a fantastic rate of punctures in patrol cars parked below.

NEED MORE WORKERS

East German Reds Release Prisoners

BERLIN (UPI) — Communist East Germany has been quietly releasing hundreds of short-term prisoners during the last month, authoritative western sources said Saturday.

The sources said the unannounced amnesty had two aims:

To east conditions in the overcrowded jails and make room for political offenders.

To get workers back into understaffed factories.

In one East Berlin prison, according to information reaching here, cells designed for four men now hold 10 to 12 persons.

There was some speculation here the Communists might make a propaganda play of the amnesty Aug. 13, the first anniversary of their anti-refugee wall.

Estimates of the number of political prisoners in Communist jails range from 12,000 to 15,000 of whom 6,000 to 9,000 were imprisoned since Aug. 13.

Many of them included skilled workmen jailed when caught telling anti-regime jokes or arguing about the Communist line at compulsory factory meetings.

During the near-panic after the Communists sealed the Berlin "escape hatch," hundreds of disgruntled workers were arrested. Their absence has been reflected in production difficulties, according to Western experts.

The amnesty is being applied in general only to needed industrial workers and to petty criminals serving sentences of less than one year.

The amnesty order was believed to have come from politburo member and economic boss Bruno Leuschner after the April politburo meeting.

Mishap Kills 4 Close To Amite

AMITE, La. (AP) — A two-car, head-on collision about 15 miles northeast of here Saturday killed four persons, including a Baton Rouge couple and one of their children.

The fourth victim was another man, apparently alone in his car.

Identities were not immediately available.

Traffic Tops Activity By Police

Traffic topped twin city police activities Saturday with a few minor burglary investigations also keeping officers busy.

Five persons suffered injuries—all minor—in three separate accidents in Monroe. Injured include Wayne D. Anderson, 14-year-old Monroe youth of 5601 DeSiard St.; L. F. Cummings Sr., 60, of 311 Holly St., West Monroe; and Eugene McVay, 35, of 1525 Bennie Breece St., West Monroe; Otis Don McVay, 4, also of 1525 Bennie Breece St.; and Willie Mae Scott, 28, Negro of 2205 Booth St., Monroe.

The two McVay's and the Scott Negro woman were all injured in a two-car collision on the parking lot at Barker's Discount Store. The accident occurred at the intersection of Arkansas Streets and North 19th Street.

Cummings was the passenger in a car driven by Billy M. Hearne, 22, of 210½ Riverfront St., West Monroe, which collided with a car operated by Ed Haynes, 55-year-old Negro of Rayville. Haynes was ticketed for reckless driving.

The Anderson youth was injured when he ran his motor scooter into the back of a car on DeSiard Street near Sherrouse Avenue. Police ticketed the youth with following too close.

Meanwhile, Monroe police were investigating two burglaries—one of a Negro woman's house at 2918 Seal St., and one at the Louisiana State Employment Bureau at 1801 Auburn St. At the employment agency, party or parties forced a door and broke into the vending machines. An unknown amount of money was taken. At the Negro woman's house, Liza Williams, approximately $35 was taken from her purse after entrance was gained.

West Monroe police were still investigating the Thursday night burglary of the Highland Park Pro Shop on the Arkansas Road in which approximately $200 in bills and change was taken. A window was forced to gain entrance.

Monroe police also booked a 45-year-old Monroe man for driving while under the influence of intoxicating beverages and reckless driving Saturday afternoon. Harry Korzenkwa, of 1612 North Second St., was taken into custody at 4200 DeSiard Street and booked on the charge at 5 p.m. Bond was set at $435.

Bathing Beach Closed Entirely At Ponchartrain

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The full 15-mile length of Lake Pontchartrain at New Orleans, from the Jefferson Parish line on the west to near the old lake bridge on the east, will be closed to swimmers the remainder of the summer.

The Orleans Parish Levee Board has ordered the lakefront closed due to pollution of the lake, according to findings of public health agencies.

Gerald Gallinghouse, board president, said Saturday moves toward ending the pollution need cooperation between Orleans and Jefferson parishes to insure that the lakefront will be open to swimmers by next spring.

He said the main sources of pollution are found in Jefferson Parish, adding that the Helois St. sewage plant in that parish is only 15 per cent effective.

This means, said Gallinghouse, that 85 to 90 per cent of the sewage from the plant is going into Lake Pontchartrain.

New Orleans city officials announced Friday plans for a $104,000 sewer line at the western edge of the city's lakefront and other sanitation measures aimed at eliminating some of the pollution.

Agreement Made In Orleans Strike

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The striking Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers International Union Local r-179 reached a tentative agreement Saturday with the Celotex Corp. at Marrero.

Members of the local union will meet Sunday to vote on ratifying the agreement concerning wages, hours and conditions.

Dynamite Wired In Woman's Car

ENGLEWOOD, Colo. (UPI)—A stick of dynamite was found Saturday wired into the ignition of the car of a woman who lost both hands last January in the explosion of a package sent her through the mails.

The Englewood police department said the explosive had apparently been in the car of Mrs. Mildred Tandy, 46, of Eckert, Colo., for as long as six months—or since about the time a package blew up as she was opening it in a store she ran at Ekckert last Jan. 18.

A part-time carpenter and former acquaintance of Mrs. Tandy, David W. Wion, 52, of Sacramento, Calif., was arrested, convicted of sending the package, and is serving 20 years in federal prison.

Police cordoned off the area Saturday and demolition experts from the Denver Fire Department removed the dynamite and explosive cap.

The said the device was wired into the ignition to explode when the key was turned on, but that the ground wire was loose. They said, however, the bomb could have gone off any time the ground wire made contact when the key was on.

Mrs. Tandy had been visiting relatives in Oklahoma and had driven back with several of them this week for a visit with an aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Hedrick of Englewood.

Zimmerman went out to the car Saturday morning to attach a device to the steering wheel which would allow Mrs. Tandy to drive the car with her artificial hands. His nephew, Bob Lindsey, 18, of Tulsa, Okla., was with him.

"Bob said, 'Jim, what's that sticking out from under the dash'?" Zimmerman said. "I took a look at it. It was a stick of dynamite. I rolled out of that car and got everyone out of there and called the police."

Young Lion, Tipsy Owner Held By Cops

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — City police had to take Elizabeth, an 11-week-old lion cub, into custody Saturday because of a traffic accident they think she caused.

But they booked her owner, Richard E. McCormick, for reckless and drunken driving.

For a time there was a problem of what to do with Liz, who blinked sleepily on the floor of the second district station house and licked her paws nonchalantly.

"Why should it be our worry?" one patrolman commented. "Let's send it to the juvenile bureau."

Then it developed that McCormick was married. So an officer telephoned his wife.

"Hello, Mrs. McCormick? This is the second district police station. We've booked your husband. He's been in an accident. Oh yes, he's all right. well, and uh—we've got Elizabeth."

Mrs. McCormick said she would come and arrange to get husband and lion cub out.

Officers said McCormick drove a car, with Elizabeth as passenger, which hit a parked vehicle, heavily damaging both.

One policeman speculated on what part was played in the accident by Liz, who was frisking around on a leash when he arrived at the scene.

"I imagine she made a jump or something and he reached for her."

PROGRESS FOR CHURCHILL

LONDON (AP) — Sir Winston Churchill is still making good progress, officials reported at Middlesex Hospital Saturday but Lady Churchill said he would not be returning home yet awhile. The 87-year-old former prime minister is convalescing from a broken thigh, suffered in Monte Carlo June 28.

Head Negotiator Returns To U.S.

NEW YORK (AP) — U.S. disarmament negotiator Arthur H. Dean dodged his customary airport news conference Saturday when he arrived from Geneva en route to confer with President Kennedy.

To repeated questions about reports that the United States might soften its stand on disarmament control inspections, Dean said: "I can't issue a statement. I usually do, but this time I won't make a statement."

Sub Officials Hope To Make Up Loss

WASHINGTON (AP) — A nine-day shipyard strike has set back the schedule on vitally needed nuclear submarines, but officials expressed hope Saturday that some of the lost time can be recovered.

They were pleased at the agreement Friday between management of the Electric Boat Division of General Dynamics Corp. and negotiators for 8,500 members of the AFL-CIO Metal Trades Council at Groton, Conn.

It will be more difficult to offset the work stoppage effect on submarines in for overhaul and those nearing completion of construction than in making up time on hulls still in early stages of construction, a Navy spokesman explained.

Urgency in getting on with building and overhaul work for both the Polaris missile ships and the attack submarines is emphasized. Navy men noted reports that the Soviet Union now claims new nuclear-powered, missile-armed submersibles carrying atomic torpedoes.

Eleven submarines are on the ways at the Groton yard—seven Polaris types and four antisubmarine submarines.

The Navy has six Polaris ships deployed off the European coast, within missile range of Soviet targets. The schedule calls for a squadron of 10 ships, the last of them to join the squadron in the coming year.

However, completion of construction on a nuclear submarine still leaves the submarine far from ready to join the fleet on station. From the time a submarine completes its shakedown cruise until it takes up station as a fully operational part of the fleet usually is about six months. Of that, about two months are spent in a yard for checkup and overhaul following the shakedown.

Next submarine due into the electric boat yards for that purpose is the Polaris missile ship Thomas Edison. The next submarine to head for European waters station will be the Sam Houston.

One of the seven Polaris submarines at the Groton yard is due for delivery late this year, four others during 1963 and the other two in 1964.

Two of the nuclear-powered antisubmarine submarines are scheduled for delivery next year, another in 1964 and another in 1965.

Several other yards on both the East and West coasts have Polaris or antisubmarines under construction.

Navy officials say the need for more antisubmarines is as vital as for the missile-firing submersibles. The deep-diving, high-speed nuclear submarine is rated as the best weapon against another submarine. Fifteen of these are now in the fleet, but this is only a fraction of the U.S. submarine force, a major part of which still is conventionally powered boats.

In addition to new construction at the Groton yard, the atomic submarine Triton is in for conversion from her original mission of a radar picket submersible to equipment and armament as an antisubmarine.

3 Republicans See Wins In Economy Lag

WASHINGTON (AP) — Three Republican senators contended Saturday that what they called President Kennedy's inability to cope with a lagging economy promises GOP victories in the November elections.

Sens. Clifford P. Case of New Jersey and Jacob K. Javits of New York who list themselves as liberals, said indecision by the administration on what to do about the economy is likely to become the No. 1 issue in the congressional campaign.

Sen. John G. Tower, a Texas conservative, said the need for massive cuts in spending "to restore flagging confidence in the administration, both at home and abroad, is more and more evident every day."

Case said on a taped television program he thinks a collection of issues will work for the Republicans' benefit.

He said these include Kennedy's "failure to get the economy on a level that we can support" and inability to reduce long-term unemployment.

"The whole matter of his welfare programs, education program, absence of civil rights legislation, the failure up to now to take effective action in the tax field and other economic matters—this is a pretty sorry picture," Case said.

Javits said in the text of a speech prepared for a Massena, N. Y., rally that the Democratic administration has been "unable to extricate itself from the situation it created by its unnecessary and arbitrary show of force on the steel-price increase."

"The President cannot camouflage his failures of leadership by blaming Republicans for his setbacks," Javits said. "The country knows that he has lopsided Democratic majorities in the Congress; the country expects Republican opposition.

"And the country knows that the President's major defeats in Congress have been engineered by leaders of his own party."

Javits said the way for Republicans to win control of the House is "not to imitate ultra-conservative Southern Democrats in policies of negativism and obstruction—nor to outpromise Northern and Western Democrats."

Javits said the economic situation today is serious.

"There are enough indices and enough statistics available to show that the economy is sluggish, in a way which on other occasions has signaled a recession," he said.

FROM FAKIRS' BOOK

BLYTH, England (UPI) —Tak a leaf out of the book of Indian fakirs, pigeons are using nails to build their nests on the roof of the police station.

A police spokesman said Saturday the pigeons' sloppy construction work is causing a fantastic rate of punctures in patrol cars parked below.

NEED MORE WORKERS

East German Reds Release Prisoners

BERLIN (UPI) — Communist East Germany has been quietly releasing hundreds of short-term prisoners during the last month, authoritative western sources said Saturday.

The sources said the unannounced amnesty had two aims:

To east conditions in the overcrowded jails and make room for political offenders.

To get workers back into understaffed factories.

In one East Berlin prison, according to information reaching here, cells designed for four men now hold 10 to 12 persons.

There was some speculation here the Communists might make a propaganda play of the amnesty Aug. 13, the first anniversary of their anti-refugee wall.

Estimates of the number of political prisoners in Communist jails range from 12,000 to 15,000 of whom 6,000 to 9,000 were imprisoned since Aug. 13.

Many of them included skilled workmen jailed when caught telling anti-regime jokes or arguing about the Communist line at compulsory factory meetings.

During the near-panic after the Communists sealed the Berlin "escape hatch," hundreds of disgruntled workers were arrested. Their absence has been reflected in production difficulties, according to Western experts.

The amnesty is being applied in general only to needed industrial workers and to petty criminals serving sentences of less than one year.

The amnesty order was believed to have come from politburo member and economic boss Bruno Leuschner after the April politburo meeting.

Traffic Tops Activity By Police

Traffic topped twin city police activities Saturday with a few minor burglary investigations also keeping officers busy.

Five persons suffered injuries—all minor—in three separate accidents in Monroe. Injured include Wayne D. Anderson, 14-year-old Monroe youth of 5601 DeSiard St.; I. F. Cummings Sr., 60, of 311 Holly St., West Monroe; and Eugene McVay, 35, of 1525 Bennie Breece St., West Monroe; Otis Don McVay, 4, also of 1525 Bennie Breece St.; and Willie Mae Scott, 28, Negro of 2205 Booth St., Monroe.

The two McVay's and the Scott Negro woman were all injured in a two-car collision on the parking lot at Parker's Discount Store. The accident occurred at the intersection of Arkansas Streets and North 19th Street.

Cummings was the passenger in a car driven by Billy M. Hearne, 22, of 210½ Riverfront St., West Monroe, which collided with a car operated by Ed Haynes, 55-year-old Negro of Rayville. Haynes was ticketed for reckless driving.

The Anderson youth was injured when he ran his motor scooter into the back of a car on DeSiard Street near Sherrouse Avenue. Police ticketed the youth with following too close.

Meanwhile, Monroe police were investigating two burglaries—one of a Negro woman's house at 2918 Seal St., and one at the Louisiana State Employment Bureau at 1801 Auburn St. At the employment agency, party or parties forced a door and broke into the vending machines. An unknown amount of money was taken. At the Negro woman's house, Laza Williams, approximately $35 was taken from her purse after entrance was gained.

West Monroe police were still investigating the Thursday night burglary of the Highland Park Pro Shop on the Arkansas Road in which approximately $200 in bills and change was taken. A window was forced to gain entrance.

Monroe police also booked a 45-year-old Monroe man for driving while under the influence of intoxicating beverages and reckless driving Saturday afternoon. Harry Korzenkwa, of 1612 North Second St., was taken into custody at 4200 DeSiard Street and booked on the charge at 5 p.m. Bond was set at $435.

Bathing Beach Closed Entirely At Ponchartrain

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The full 15-mile length of Lake Pontchartrain at New Orleans, from the Jefferson Parish line on the west to near the old lake bridge on the east, will be closed to swimmers the remainder of the summer.

The Orleans Parish Levee Board has ordered the lakefront closed due to pollution of the lake, according to findings of public health agencies.

Gerald Gallinghouse, board president, said Saturday moves toward ending the pollution need cooperation between Orleans and Jefferson parishes to insure that the lakefront will be open to swimmers by next spring.

He said the main sources of pollution are found in Jefferson Parish, adding that the Helois St. sewage plant in that parish is only 15 per cent effective.

This means, said Gallinghouse, that 85 to 90 per cent of the sewage from the plant is going into Lake Pontchartrain.

New Orleans city officials announced Friday plans for a $104,000 sewer line at the western edge of the city's lakefront and other sanitation measures aimed at eliminating some of the pollution.

Agreement Made In Orleans Strike

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The striking Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers International Union Local r-179 reached a tentative agreement Saturday with the Celotex Corp. at Marrero.

Members of the local union will meet Sunday to vote on ratifying the agreement concerning wages, hours and conditions.

Mishap Kills 4 Close To Amite

AMITE, La. (AP) — A two-car, head-on collision about 15 miles northeast of here Saturday killed four persons, including a Baton Rouge couple and one of their children.

The fourth victim was another man, apparently alone in his car.

Identities were not immediately available.

MONROE OIL & GAS

Drilling Outdoes Previous Record

Last week's drilling in the Monroe Oil & Gas District exceeded its own previous week's record when a total of 17 completions were recorded over the 14 parishes, complemented by the staking of 33 scattered new locations. More wells also were active at 24.

Ouachita Parish failed to register a final over the week, but had eight new locations, all in the Monroe Gas Field, and four rigs were actively drilling and testing.

District Manager Duncan S. Cook's report yesterday showed Union Parish on top with seven completions during the week. All were shallow gas wells in the Monroe Field, pumping from around 2300 feet.

Catahoula and LaSalle Parishes followed with three completions each. Finals in Catahoula were in the Patton Church, Tew Lake and Wallace Lake Fields, while LaSalle recorded wells in the Summerville and Trout Creek Fields and a wildcat.

Franklin Parish had a pair, one a wildcat, the other drilling in the Baskinton Field, and Rapides and Tensas Parishes had one each, in the Big Island and Buckhorn Fields, respectively.

The 33 new locations were scattered over nine parishes, with Ouachita heading the list, followed by Catahoula with seven fresh stakings, four of them in the Patton Church Field again. Concordia Parish reported half a dozen, all being wildcats, while LaSalle Parish had five, including three wildcats, and Union Parish, three, all in the Monroe Field.

All with one each were Morehouse, the Monroe Field, and Franklin, Richland and Tensas Parishes, each being a wildcat.

Active rigs were in Ouachita, Concordia, Franklin, LaSalle, Tensas, Union and Winn Parishes. Ouachita had four of them, all drilling, three in the Monroe Field and one in the Cheniere.

Most of the 24, however, were in Tensas and LaSalle Parishes, where the total together ran to 13. Seven in Tensas included a trio of wildcats, three wells in the Buckhorn Field and on in the West Newlight. All with two active wells were Concordia, Union and Winn, and Franklin had a single wildcat.

There were four recompletions. Two in Catahoula Parish were the M. E. Merriman et al's Graham Corporation No. 1 in the Mean Lake Field, and E. C. Wentworth et al's Tensas Basin Levee Board No. 1 in the Saline Lake Field. The remaining pair, both in the Monroe Field of Union Parish, were United Carbon Company's Perry - Handy No. 1 and Lon Nolan No. 6.

An even 10 wells were plugged and abandoned during the week and the total on inactive sites rose still higher to 126 in the district. Cook reported the number on locations as 82, of which 40 were drilling.

His report listed these other details on the week's completions, new locations and active rigs:

MONROE OIL & GAS

Drilling Outdoes Previous Record

Last week's drilling in the Monroe Oil & Gas District exceeded its own previous week's record when a total of 17 completions were recorded over the 14 parishes, complemented by the staking of 33 scattered new locations. More wells also were active at 24.

Ouachita Parish failed to register a final over the week, but had eight new locations, all in the Monroe Gas Field, and four rigs were actively drilling and testing.

District Manager Duncan S. Cook's report yesterday showed Union Parish on top with seven completions during the week. All were shallow gas wells in the Monroe Field pumping from around 2300 feet.

Catahoula and LaSalle Parishes followed with three completions each. Finals in Catahoula were in the Patton Church, Tew Lake and Wallace Lake Fields, while LaSalle recorded wells in the Summerville and Trout Creek Fields and a wildcat.

Franklin Parish had a pair, one a wildcat, the other drilling in the Baskinton Field, and Rapides and Tensas Parishes had one each, in the Big Island and Buckhorn Fields, respectively.

The 33 new locations were scattered over nine parishes, with Ouachita heading the list, followed by Catahoula with seven fresh stakings, four of them in the Patton Church Field again. Concordia Parish reported half a dozen, all being wildcats, while LaSalle Parish had five, including three wildcats, and Union Parish, three, all in the Monroe Field.

All with one each were Morehouse, the Monroe Field, and Franklin, Richland and Tensas Parishes, each being a wildcat.

Active rigs were in Ouachita, Concordia, Franklin, LaSalle, Tensas, Union and Winn Parishes. Ouachita had four of them, all drilling, three in the Monroe Field and one in the Cheniere.

Most of the 24, however, were in Tensas and LaSalle Parishes, where the total together ran to 13. Seven in Tensas included a trio of wildcats, three wells in the Buckhorn Field and on in the West Newlight. All with two active wells were Concordia, Union and Winn, and Franklin had a single wildcat.

There were four recompletions. Two in Catahoula Parish were the M. F. Merriman et al's Graham Corporation No. 1 in the Mean Lake Field and E. C. Wentworth et al's Tensas Basin Levee Board No. 1 in the Saline Lake Field. The remaining pair, both in the Monroe Field of Union Parish, were United Carbon Company's Perry Handy No. 1 and Lon Nolan No. 6.

An even 10 wells were plugged and abandoned during the week and the total on inactive sites rose still higher to 126 in the district. Cook reported the number on locations as 82, of which 40 were drilling.

His report listed these other details on the week's completions, new locations and active rigs.

WHAT'S ALL THE EXCITEMENT OUT IN THE FRONT OFFICE?
IT'S THE BOSS' WIFE--SHE'S ON THE WARPATH
DON'T TELL HER WHERE I AM
WHICH WAY DID HE GO? THE WORM!
SAVE ME, DAGWOOD... SHE'S NOT A BIG WOMAN, BUT SHE CAN PUNCH LIKE FLOYD PATTERSON
SHE'S MADE A STUDY OF INDIAN LORE AND KNOWS ALL ABOUT MASSACRES AND SCALPING
SHE'S EXPERT AT JUDO AND CAN TEAR A PHONE BOOK IN TWO WITH HER BARE HANDS
HERE SHE COMES
I'LL HIDE UNDER YOUR DESK
WELL, WHERE IS HE?
OH, HELLO, MRS. DITHERS
I CANNOT TELL A LIE, MRS. DITHERS-- HE'S HIDING UNDER MY DESK
NOW, I WANT YOU TO GIVE DAGWOOD A NICE RAISE FOR TELLING ME WHERE YOU WERE YES, DEAR
MR. DITHERS ALWAYS INSISTS THAT HIS EMPLOYEES TELL NOTHING BUT THE TRUTH

ARE YOU OUT OF YOUR MIND, COLONEL CANYON?
I DON'T THINK SO, DEETA! I TOLD THE PEACE MARCHERS THEY COULD PARADE IN A SET AREA OUTSIDE THE SITE OF THE MISSILE BASE—
BAN
—JUST AS THEY MAY DO SO OUTSIDE THE WHITE HOUSE! THE RULES ARE THE SAME...
NO CHANTING —NO SITTING —KEEP MOVING! PROVIDED...
THE MARCHERS MUST PROVE THEY ARE CITIZENS, OR HAVE APPLIED FOR CITIZENSHIP!
THE CHIEF OF POLICE AGREES THAT THIS IS CONSTITUTIONAL —DON'T YOU?
HIS MEN ARE QUESTIONING THE MARCHERS NOW! THOSE WHO CAN PROVE THEY ARE REALLY LEGAL RESIDENTS
SHALL HAVE THE RIGHT OF FREE SPEECH AND ASSEMBLY —AS GUARANTEED IN THE CONSTITUTION!
THEY WON'T PASS ME!
ME NEITHER
RIGHT! WE'RE PROUD OF BEING A PRIME TARGET!
WELL, AS CITIZENS, YOU HAVE THE SAME RIGHT OF ASSEMBLY
NOW ALL YOU NEED IS TO PROVE YOU ARE CITIZENS! WILL YOU PLEASE PRODUCE THAT PROOF?
ARE YOU CRAZY— I WAS BORN IN HODAG!
MY BIRTH CERTIFICATE IS IN THE CLERK'S OFFICE!
WHY—I HAVE MY BAPTISMAL RECORD AT HOME!

ARE YOU OUT OF YOUR MIND, COLONEL CANYON?
I DON'T THINK SO, DEETA! I TOLD THE PEACE MARCHERS THEY COULD PARADE IN A SET AREA OUTSIDE THE SITE OF THE MISSILE BASE—
POLICE
—JUST AS THEY MAY DO SO OUTSIDE THE WHITE HOUSE! THE RULES ARE THE SAME...
NO CHANTING —NO SITTING —KEEP MOVING! PROVIDED...
THE MARCHERS MUST PROVE THEY ARE CITIZENS OR HAVE APPLIED FOR CITIZENSHIP!
THE CHIEF OF POLICE AGREES THAT THIS IS CONSTITUTIONAL —DON'T YOU?
HIS MEN ARE QUESTIONING THE MARCHERS NOW! THOSE WHO CAN PROVE THEY ARE REALLY LEGAL RESIDENTS
SHALL HAVE THE RIGHT OF FREE SPEECH AND ASSEMBLY —AS GUARANTEED IN THE CONSTITUTION!
THEY WON'T PASS ME!
ME NEITHER
RIGHT! WE'RE PROUD OF BEING A PRIME TARGET!
WELL, AS CITIZENS, YOU HAVE THE SAME RIGHT OF ASSEMBLY
NOW ALL YOU NEED IS TO PROVE YOU ARE CITIZENS! WILL YOU PLEASE PRODUCE THAT PROOF?

HELP FOR HOMEMAKERS

DEAR HELOISE:

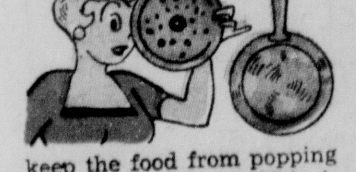
Sauce-pan lids are varied and many. But I have yet to find one like those I make . . . and for free too.

I take various types of pie tins that are left from the frozen packages of all sorts of pies. I then punch the bottoms full of holes with an ice pick.

Then I go to the dime store and buy the "knob" to fit in the center of the homemade lid. I attach this to the center of the pie tin.

I now have a wonderful lid for all types of cooking—far better than any lid that I have ever bought. Know why?

These vapor-escape holes let out all the steam and keep the food from popping all over the stove. This is especially wonderful for bacon, chicken or fried steak.



I have also found that it will keep from accumulating the mountains of steam that arise from most boiling and sweat up your kitchen cupboards. When boiling vegetables, some of the steam will accumulate on the inside of the pan and drip back into it, but enough will escape through these holes to keep the food from boiling over.

Why not try a "pie-cover lid" yourself and see how wonderfully it works. I feel sure that many women will be amazed with the results.

—Louise McDougal

DEAR HELOISE:

After fifteen years of grating carrots and cabbage for salads on my dime store grater and . . . grating my fingernail or finger along with them many times, my husband came up with the idea of using two thimbles on my fingers to prevent this.

—Bobbie Howell

OUT, SCORCHED SPOT

DEAR HELOISE:

A rag dipped in peroxide, wrung out and laid over a scorch and then ironed with a warm iron, will remove scorch from materials.

By using the soaked cloth as a pressing cloth, it will also prevent rescorching of the same garment. Anyone ever made that mistake besides me?

—Scorch

RACK UP

DEAR HELOISE:

Why waste space for a special rack to hold those lids for all your pots and pans?

The best thing I have found is a small dish drainer; the very same kind we drain dishes in! These hold all sizes, shapes, and best of all, are divided, so the lids will stand up where they may be easily selected.

—Hattie May

CLEANING TIP

DEAR HELOISE:

You can clean the bottoms of copperware if you cut a lemon in half (I never bother to use a fresh one, I use the ones that have been already juiced), dip it in salt and rub the bottom of the pan. The pan is clean and shiny as a whistle in a jiff.

—Mrs. Kenneth Armstrong

SOGGY CRACKERS

DEAR HELOISE:

For those soggy crackers and cereal: try keeping them in the oven. If one has a pilot light, it will produce just enough heat to keep the foods crisp in damp weather.

Also, once a big box of cereal is opened and gets soggy, the contents can be made crisp again by putting them on a big cookie sheet and heating for a few minutes in the broiler or oven. Sure makes 'em good.

—Sandy Holloway

HOTHOUSE?

DEAR HELOISE:

House plants do need washing whether people know it or not. Cover the pot with a "bib" (or apron) made from foil so that the leaves are above the bib and the pot with the soil is covered.

Place under kitchen faucet with a spray attachment and spray the soil off the leaves. If the leaves are very gummy from house vapors, they may be easily shampooed with a very mild solution of detergent and rinsed well thereafter. Use cold water.

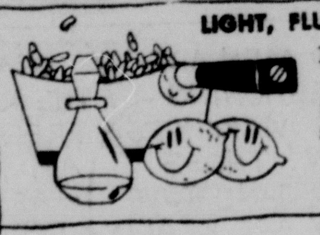
—Horticulturist

LIGHT, FLUFFY RICE



DEAR HELOISE:

When cooking rice, add a spoonful of vinegar or the same amount of lemon juice, and it will be light, separated and fluffy.

—K.S.

DEAR HELOISE:

Mothers can use baby's playpen to dry diapers, either inside or outside the house, if they have no clothesline or the line is already full of the weekly laundry.

Just turn the playpen on its side. This will hold many diapers until they are dry. Also these little pieces of precious white clothes need not be hung singly. They may be hung one on top of the other.

—Loving Laundress

SOAPBOX

DEAR HELOISE:

For those who have good luggage and only use it once a year . . . put a bar of unwrapped soap in the suitcases before storing them.

This will keep that musty smell away. Also . . . you will have a nice bar of soap when ready to travel next time. Nothing bothers me more than to have to use those doll-sized soap bars.

—Mr. T. S.

DEAR HELOISE:

Here's a dilly!

When you have a beautiful flower arrangement and do not want to disturb the arrangement of the flowers . . . use an oven baster to remove the stale water and replace new water.

—Mrs. D. Arcia

DEAR HELOISE:

Here's the perfect answer to canned hams, guests and parties!

Buy that canned ham, but let the grocer slice it on his electric slicer. Make some slices thin, some thick and leave a butt.

Tie together with a string when you get home and cook as usual. When time comes to eat . . . place on platter and garnish, untie string and let those perfect slices fall into place like a pro.

Why should we who have dull knives butcher a ham in hunks? And did you know that I have never seen a market yet that charged for this service?

—Happy Ham

Little Orphan Annie
"What's in a name? That which we call a rose by any other name would smell as sweet." How about an elephant? —Shakespeare.
Real sporty crowd in this town. Best take we've had this year, eh, Colonel? I'll walk t' th' trailer with you!
Oh, I'll be O. K., Slim! Been a long day. You'd better get some sleep!
Whup! Oh, it's you, Sheriff! Gave me quite a start!
Shouldn't be packin' that much cash alone. I'll walk you to your trailer!
Thanks, Sheriff! But shucks, this whole town's sound asleep now! Who'd bother me?
Nobody, right now, if they've got any sense!
Hello, Ma! You still up? Where's Annie?
Gone t'sleep in Pee Wee's tent. He was awful restless, seemed as how!
Amazing the power that child has over him!
What amazes me is how she can sleep so close to Pee Wee, the gamey way all elephants smell!
As the final deep stillness of night settles over the carney lot…
Yonder's th' trailer. This hadn't orter be no trick!
Lights been out for an hour. Just them two old goats an' th' brat!
There's th' dog an' that monkey, too! But they'll be no problem! Just one thing…
What's that?
Grab th' kid, but be sure y'don't knock her off, till she gits a chance t'tell us where she's hid Swordfish Sam's money!
Yeah, sure! C'mon! Time's a'wastin'!
Oh-oh! Git back!
What's th' matter?
It's that sheriff jest waitin' in th' shadders! Light from that car down th' road shined on his star or I'd never 'a' seed him till too late!
Yeah? Well, he cain't hang 'round here f'rever! We got time!
While in Pee Wee's tent…
I'm here, Pee Wee! Aw, why don't y'go to sleep? Do y'smell somethin'? Chee! How can he? But I s'pose an el'phant never notices his own fragrance!

Troops Hold Algiers After Bloodless Coup

Several Foes Of Ben Bella Are Arrested

ALGIERS (AP)—Algerian guerrilla troops held Algiers today after a bloodless coup believed to favor dissident Vice Premier Ahmed Ben Bella's quest for power.

Several known opponents of Ben Bella were arrested. Among them was Amar Oussedik, political commissar of the Algiers autonomous zone, which the guerrilla leaders said was dissolved.

Two thousand guerrillas of the Wilaya (Zone) No. 4 surrounding Algiers occupied the city at dawn Sunday. Their commander, 27-year-old Col. Si Hassan, said he hoped to form a junta of Wilaya commanders to head the government until elections are held in the newly independent nation. Elections for a constituent assembly are scheduled Aug. 12.

VERY GRAVE

The guerrilla command announced it had taken control to re-establish national unity. It pledged to "open the gates" of the capital to all political tendencies seeking a solution to the new nation's political problems.

The announcement was considered a prelude to the installation in Algiers of the seven-man political bureau Ben Bella is sponsoring.

In Paris, Ben Bella's right-hand man, Mohammed Khider, told a news conference the political bureau would be in Algiers on Thursday or Friday. It was set up in the western Algerian city of Tlemcen under Ben Bella's control.

But Khider also warned that "the situation is very grave. If stability is not established within a month, I fear the worst."

The guerrilla troops first seized Radio Algiers, which beamed their appeal to the population for "calm and support."

The city remained quiet throughout the day. Crowds poured out to the beaches as usual.

Area Races In Second Primary; Vote September 1

By JIMMY HATTEN
State Editor

The political pot in Northeast Louisiana was not taken off the fire after the Saturday Democratic Primary. A little seasoning was added and the aroma of electioneering will continue through Sept. 1 when the second primary races will be held.

Still to be decided is the Fifth District Board of Education post and a number of parish school board races.

W. E. "Ed" Whetstone and John F. Mulhearn, both of Monroe, face each other in a runoff, and the big question is where will the approximately 11,704 votes received by the other two candidates in the race fall.

Mulhearn attacked Whestone directly in the first primary. With Whetstone receiving 15,068 votes to Mulhearn's 8,274, the 7,661 received by O. N. Nick Hamilton of Oak Grove and the 4,043 bagged by Bobby C. Wilson of West Monroe loom large in the forthcoming campaign. Both Whetstone and Mulhearn are from Monroe.

A good bit of political interest will center in races for parish school board posts where a number of runoffs loom.

Otherwise, Morehouse and Ouachita named Hillyer S. Dooley Parker as Fourth Judicial District Judge. He defeated George Fink by 10,504 votes to 6,520.

In the Eighth District, Gillis W. Long, cousin of the late Earl K.

Chemists Report Ink Discovery

WAYNE, N.J. (UPI) — Chemists have found a method for removing ink from old newspapers so the paper can be used again, the American Cyanamid Co. announced today.

The company said it worked with the Garden State Paper Co. which originated the process that produces about 150 tons of reclaimed newsprint a day at a plant in New Jersey.

The process involves shredding the paper, reducing it to a pulp and washing out the ink. A dye then is used to restore the original whiteness, and the reclaimed pap paper is produced as it would be in a conventional paper mill.

Albany Troubles Head For Court; Marches Curbed

ALBANY, Ga. (AP)—This city's lengthy integration fight headed today for a court battle over marches, picketing, boycotting and other activities.

With 266 persons arrested last week, Negro followers of the Albany Movement showed little inclination Sunday of joining their leaders in jail.

Scheduled for 2 p.m. today was a hearing before U.S. Dist. Judge J. Robert Elliott. City officials have asked him to enjoin integrationists permanently from protest demonstrations and other activities.

Elliott issued a temporary order 10 days ago, granting such an injunction, but the temporary decree was stayed by a higher court four days later.

However, the stay does not prevent Elliott from acting on the question of a permanent injunction.

MASS RALLY

Meanwhile, integration leader Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., jailed here Friday for the third time, lounged in blue silk pajamas Sunday and spent his time reading, writing and listening to a transistor radio. His cellmate is the Rev. Ralph D. Abernathy.

King fasted for the first 24 hours as is his custom when jailed. King and Abernathy were among 10 Negroes arrested for refusing to disperse after staging a prayer session in front of City Hall.

King's aide, the Rev. Wyatt Tee Walker, tried to arouse several hundred Negroes at the mass rally Sunday.

"Today is a fateful day," Walker said. "This is a decisive moment in the history of Albany."

Then he called for volunteers for a demonstration.

Police Chief Laurie Pritchett said he believed that large scale demonstrations had ended.

The Albany Movement, Pritchett said, "to me is almost nonexistent." He said there was a lack of interest and "the people are tired of going to jail."

He disputed statements made on NBC's "Meet the Press" by Dr. W. G. Anderson, president of the movement, who substituted for King.

Pritchett dismissed as unfounded Anderson's prediction that unless the federal government acts, Albany would become "another Little Rock," with racial clashes.

Anderson also said the Kennedy administration "has not done as much as it can to alleviate the situation in Albany." He called on President Kennedy to "make a firm statement on the situation."

Killer Faces Electric Chair On Friday

CHICAGO (AP) — The electric chair looms Friday for Paul Crump, a condemned killer who wants to live but whose chance to live may hang on a word—rehabilitation.

Crump, 32, who has spent the last nine years in jail for a slaying he doesn't deny, is making his final appeal to escape electrocution.

His appeal, to be heard today in a special session of the Illinois Parole and Pardon Board, is without legal precedent in the state.

Crump's lawyer, Donald Page Moore, has asked the board, in a 211-page brief for clemency to spare his client's life on the ground that "a vicious criminal has become a decent man."

The final decision rests with Gov. Otto Kerner, to whom the board will make a recommendation after the hearing.

Asst. State's Atty. James A. Thompson said there is no room for "emotion or sentiment in my duties."

"Crump has had two trials and two full appeals up to the United States Supreme Court. It was decided both times that he should die in the electric chair. The Cook County state's attorney's office must see that this legal mandate is carried out."

Crump, although his life may depend on it, told The Associated Press. "I don't know what rehabilitation means."

The slim Negro was convicted of slaying Theodore P. Zukowski, 44, chief guard at a South Side food plant. Five guards were brutally beaten during a $20,000 holdup March 29, 1953.

Bushes Survive

Some of the January frost damage is showing good signs of recovery. The bushes in front of Monroe's Post Office, apparently killed by the frost, were cut down. Postmaster Woodrow W. Hathorn said at the time that he hoped this might result in new branches. It did. Although still less than "knee high," the bushes are growing again.

Train Engineer Dies At Controls

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — A freight train rumbled nearly 19 blocks through the city Sunday with the engineer the only person aboard—dead at the controls.

Police said engineer Joseph Chaison, 52, of Riverton, N.J., apparently died of a heart attack in the cab of the 9-car train.

The train, loaded with coke, was brought to a stop by yardmaster Joseph Bolton. He leaped aboard the engine, traveling about 8 miles an hour, after being notified the train was proceeding on a wrong track.

RETURNS FROM CAPE

Test Ban Talks To Occupy JFK

WASHINGTON (AP) — Refreshed by a weekend of sailing, President Kennedy flew back to Washington today to open talks that may develop new U.S. proposals for a nuclear test ban treaty.

Besides the nuclear talks Kennedy also has scheduled a meeting with Lincoln Gordon, ambassador to Brazil, on the shape of Brazil's reshuffled government and its role in the Alliance for Progress.

Gordon has returned for White House and State Department consultations on Brazil, where uncertainty over the government's stability prompted both Washington and Brasilia to postpone a visit the President and Mrs. Kennedy originally had planned to begin today.

Kennedy is expected to confer with Arthur H. Dean on the possibility of modifying U.S. demands to safeguard a nuclear test agreement. Dean is the chief U.S. negotiator at disarmament and nuclear talks in Geneva. Kennedy asked him to come back for discussions. He arrived late Saturday and is due to return to Geneva by the end of the week.

New data turned up by U.S. underground tests may persude the United States to reduce its demands for on-site inspections and control posts designed to enforce any nuclear agreement with the Soviet Union.

2nd Primary Campaigns To Get Underway

South Louisiana State School Board Members

Louisiana's first Democratic primaries went as most political observers expected Saturday, but candidates in two key campaigns faced run-offs today.

The Fifth District race for the State Board of Education was the only campaign out of three that goes into a second primary. Two other board positions were filled in Saturday's election.

Meantime, in South Louisiana, two familiar names popped up in a second primary for the Public Service Commission — chairman Ernest Clements and Dudley J. LeBlanc.

Clements, a Long man from years back, led a field of seven candidates, but was forced into a run-off with LeBlanc, the Hadacol man from Abbeville who once ran for governor.

Clements ran more than 60,000 votes ahead of LeBlanc.

Locally, two Monroe men, W. E. Whetstone and John Mulhearn, won second primary positions for the State Board of Education, but Sen. Jack Fruge of Ville Platte and J. Marshall Brown of New Orleans took first primary victories.

Fruge won the seat now held by Isom J. Guillory of Eunice, who is retiring. Brown, a former legislator who ran for governor in 1960, defeated two opponents to succeed Mrs. Dorothy Meade, retiring after 30 years on the board.

Whetstone, a telephone man, led a Fifth District field of four with 15,058 votes, trailed by Mulhearn, an insurance man, with 8,274.

This was the unofficial vote at

Storm-Battered Climbers Ready To Leave Peak

GRAND TETON NATIONAL Park, Wyo. (AP) — Storm-battered mountain climbers from four eastern states made ready today to descend from Grand Teton Peak on which one of their comrades perished.

Stephen Smith, 21, of Holden, Mass., died of exposure when a snowstorm hit the group of 10 climbers near the top of the 13,766-foot peak in northwestern Wyoming.

Park Rangers found Smith's body Sunday.

Two other climbers, John Fenniman of West Hartford, Conn., and Lester Germer of Millington, N.J., were flown off the peak by helicopter. They were taken to a hospital at Jackson for treatment of explosure and frostbite.

LEFT THE GROUP

The body of Smith was found about 120 feet above the Otter Body, a snowfield at the base of a sheer cliff.

The easterners began their climb Thursday. That same day, a howling storm struck the upper slopes. Smith was one of three climbers who left the group in an attempt to find a way out of the storm.

Dr. John R. Walker of St. John's Hospital at Jackson said the three "tried to make it out Friday, but couldn't."

Dr. Walker said the men flown from the peak seemed in reasonably good condition.

The climbers all are members of the Appalachian Mountain Club which has 70 members in Wyoming for its annual camp.

Order Probe Into Infant's Death

NEW YORK (AP)—The city ordered an investigation today into the first reported infant death here in which the drug thalidomide was involved.

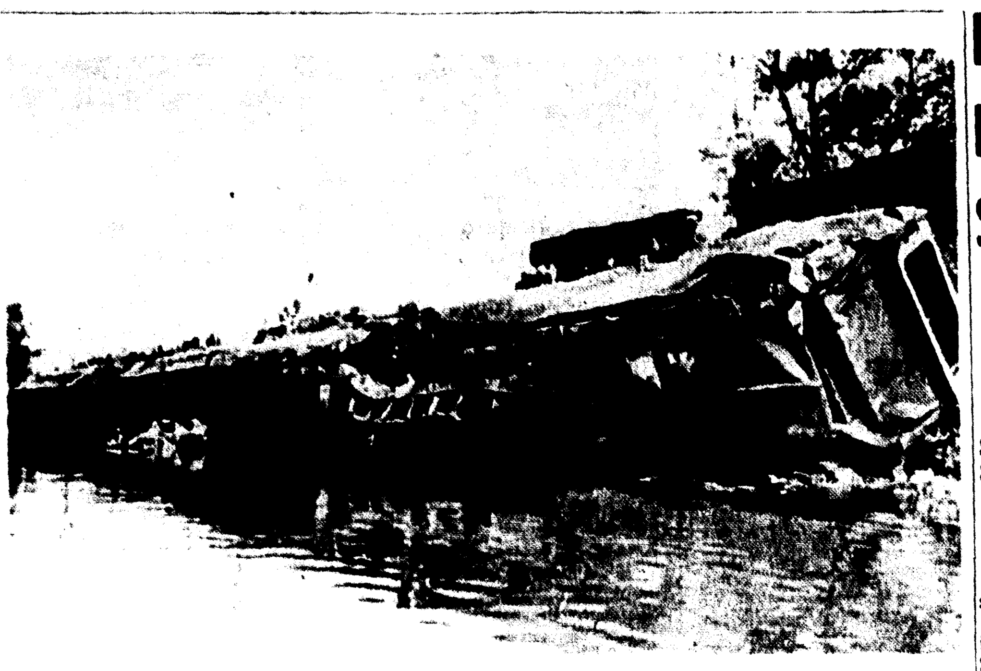
Dr. George James, acting city health commissioner, said he had ordered the probe.

A 43-year-old woman, he said, gave birth to a deformed child in a Queens hospital and the child died shortly after birth.

Dr. James said the woman had received the drug from a Park Avenue psychiatrist who was treating her and that she became pregnant during treatment.

Dr. James declined to identify the principals immediately.

The psychiatrist, Dr. James continued, had ordered a quantity of thalidomide for tranquilizing purposes.



THREE PENNSYLVANIA Railroad passenger cars sit in the Susquehanna River near Harrisburg, Pa., after a passenger excursion train derailed plunging the three cars into the river last Saturday. Train Tragedy Blamed On Track Defect

STEELTON, Pa. (AP) — A Pennsylvania Railroad official says the derailment of a baseball special in which 19 persons were killed and 100 injured Saturday "was apparently the result of track being out of alignment."

"But a definite cause cannot be assigned until a thorough investigation has been completed," James F. Newell, the Pennsylvania's vice president in charge of operations, said Sunday.

The Pennsylvania Public Utility Commission joined the railroad in the investigation of the derailment, and the Interstate Commerce Commission was prepared to move into the probe.

WORST DISASTER

Newell's stagement concerning the track alignment was based on first-hand reports given by Howard C. Kohout, the railroad's regional manager in Philadelphia. Kohout directed the salvage and repair crews that worked throughout Saturday night to repair the 1,500 feet of track.

With its main line back in service, the railroad began preparations to hoist the three death cars which tumbled down an embankment into the shallow waters of the Susquehanna River.

Another railroad spokesman said track was being repaired last week in the area of the derailment.

"Whether or not the repair of track adjacent to where the wreck occurred had anything to do with the derailment is a matter of speculation," said the spokesman.

The wreck was the nation's worst rail disaster since Sept. 15, 1958, when 48 persons died in a train that plunged from an open drawbridge into Newark Bay at Bayonne, N.J.

It was the second wreck involving a Pennsylvania train carrying sports fans within 18 months. An 11-car train from Philadelphia to Bowie Race Track derailed near the southern Maryland track in 1961, killing 6 persons and injuring 50. Excessive speed was blamed.

The baseball special, carrying fans to a National League game

Prisoners Make Unsuccessful Bolt

AMITE, La. (AP)—Sheriff Tom Sanders of Tangipahoa Parish said two parish prisoners made an unsuccessful bolt for freedom.

He said the pair tried to run over jailer Glenn Mixon about 6 a.m. Sunday at cleanup time.

Mixon, with the aid of two Negro trustees, caught and overpowered the pair.

Sanders identified them as Bobby McCallister, 23, convicted murderer awaiting an appeal, and John Day, 30, Mobile, Ala., held on robbery and theft charges.

Another hot day is in store for the Twin Cities area. Ol' Windy Whiffandbiff also noted there is a chance for widely scattered afternoon and evening thundershowers.

Highest predicted is 95 with a low tonight of 75. Sunday's high was 96 and the low was 73.

SHOW FINESSE, POLISH

Younger Longs In Spotlight

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—The Longs of Louisiana—The Bayou state's fabled political dynasty—have a new look today as the second generation of the clan enters the national political scene.

The new Longs operate with much more finesse and polish than did the first generation. But when the occasion demands it—stump speaking tour in rural areas, for instance—they can put on an oratorical show much like that done 30 years ago by Huey P. Long, the self-styled Kingfish and founder of the political dynasty.

Huey's 44-year-old son, Russell has been in politics for 14 years, first winning election to the U.S. Senate before he was legally old enough to serve in the chamber. But until the death of his uncle, the sulphur-tongued Earl K. Long two years ago, Sen. Long has always lived in the shadow of the older Longs.

The new look for the second generation comes from Gillis Long, a 39-year-old attorney and decorated war veteran, who made a successful political debut in Saturday's Democratic primary by defeating Rep. Harold B. McSween in central Louisiana's 8th district.

DOUBLE COUSIN

The defeat of an incumbent congressman, in this state where Democratic nomination traditionally means election, is something that rarely happens. In fact the only other defeat of an incumbent in recent years was Earl Long's resounding triumph two years ago over McSween. The fiery Earl died 10 days later of a heart attack and the party's district executive committee gave the nomination to McSween.

Gillis Long is a double cousin of the Huey P. Long family, related on both the maternal and paternal sides. Except for his crewcut, he bears a striking resemblance to Earl Long.

The strength of the Longs has traditionally been in the country but there's evidence that city voters are accepting the new

Peruvian Junta Hopeful U.S. Aid Still Possible

LIMA, Peru (AP)—Peru's ruling military regime waited hopefully today for a thaw in relations with the United States following the junta's release of deposed President Manuel Prado.

In Washington, a State Department spokesman said "we're very happy that Dr. Prado has been released." He would not say, however, whether the move would help speed U.S. recognition of the junta and restoration of the economic and military aid suspended after the July 18 overthrow of Prado's government.

The junta had promised to release Prado as soon as his six-year constitutional term as president expired Saturday.

The 73-year-old president, held on a ship at the port of Callao, was flown in a military helicopter to the luxurious estate of his nephew, Gustavo Prado, on the outskirts of Lima.

His wife and friends were there to greet him, and there was a celebration with music and dancing.

Three bombs exploded in Lima Sunday. Police started an investigation to find out whether they were set off by political terrorists. There were no casualties. One bomb damaged two automobiles not far from the Prado estate.

Prado did not disclose his future plans, and it remained to be seen whether he had decided to live in exile. He was reported in good health.

One relative called him a "semi-prisoner" at the Prado estate, explaining that "with all the police around the house he cannot leave."

The police, however, said their presence had been requested by the family to make sure that Prado would not be disturbed by unwanted visitors.

The junta president, Gen. Ricardo Godoy, told a news conference earlier Sunday Prado could remain in Peru or go abroad.

LABOR LEADER

Tax Cut Backer Will Testify

WASHINGTON (AP)—AFL-CIO President George Meany, who advocates immediate tax cutting to help spur business recovery, testifies today before a congressional group studying the nation's economy.

Meany said last month he had written President Kennedy, urging a quick reduction in the lowest income tax bracket. Such a cut, Meany said then, would have a maximum effect on the economy.

The House Ways and Means Committee heard last week from business representatives and economists. The tax-writing group has sought to keep its proceedings under a tight lid, taking testimony behind closed door and pledging the witnesses to secrecy.

The House group has emphasized that it is taking a broad look at the economy and is not studying possibilities of tax reductions.

Sen. Paul Douglas, D-Ill., aligned himself Sunday with those who would go slow in considering an immediate tax cut.

Said Douglas: "At Bunker Hill, the commander of the American troops said, 'Don't fire until you see the whites of their eyes.' I wouldn't fire in the form of a tax cut until we saw the whites of the eyes of the recession."

He said there is "no clear proof that we are going to have a recession and certainly we are not, at the moment, in a recession."

Douglas, a former professor of economics, is a member of the Senate Finance Committee. He spoke on a television program taped for New York stations.

His Price For Nuclear Settlement

McClellan Makes Claim At Hearing; Name Withheld

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. McClellan, told the Senate today that a powerful unionist has demanded a payoff as the price for settlement of a strike holding up work on 11 nuclear submarines for the Navy.

McClellan voiced the allegations in appealing for permission for his Senate Investigations subcommittee to launch hearings.

Senators filibustering against the administration's communications satellite bill have invoked a rule barring committees from meeting while the Senate is in session.

HIS REASONS

McClellan asked unanimous consent for his committee to meet, but Sen. Wayne Morse, D-Ore., one of the leaders of the filibuster fight, refused to agree. Morse was cut off from an effort to explain his reasons for objecting.

In his Senate speech, McClellan did not name the man allegedly demanding a payoff as a price for allowing the settlement of the strike which had paralyzed work on nuclear submarines at the Groton, Conn., plant of General Dynamics since July 19.

The Senate met two hours earlier than usual as leaders pressed for an end to the filibuster.

Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield of Montana told reporters that while he would keep the Senate in session late tonight, he still did not plan to have around-the-clock sessions.

Asked whether he had anything up his sleeve to break the filibuster, he shook his head and said: "I'm just smiling through my tears."

McClellan told the Senate that representatives of management and labor had twice reached terms for settlement of the strike, only to have their efforts blocked when rank and file unionists voted not to accept terms.

McClellan said his subcommittee "has information that the settlements heretofore have been obstructed by the efforts of a former president of a (union) local" who had been expelled previously by the union but who still "apparently wields great influence with the rank and file."

This powerful unionist, McClellan charged, "has offered for a

Canadian Says Red Arms Race Proposals Unreal

GENEVA (AP)—Gen. E. L. M. Burns to Canada told the 17-nation disarmament conference today Soviet proposals for ending the arms race are unrealistic and impracticable.

The chief Canadian delegate told the conference's 63rd plenary session that if Soviet disarmament plans were carried out, the strategic position of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization would be considerably weakened as compared to that of the Communist bloc.

Western diplomatic sources said Burns' speech was the West's answer to a speech Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Valerian A. Zorin made last Friday.

EAST BLOC

Zorin told the conference that if the Soviet disarmament plan—calling for the simultaneous destruction of foreign military bases and delivery vehicles for nuclear weapons — was carried out, it would be impossible for any nation to launch a surprise attack.

Burns said Zorin's proposals would leave Western Europe at the mercy of superior East bloc forces by requiring all troops to be withdrawn within their own national boundaries.

Spy For Soviets Offered Asylum

LONDON (AP) — Robert A. Soblen has been offered asylum in an unnamed European country friends said today.

The man under life sentence in the United States as a Soviet spy cannot take advantage of the offer without the approval of Home Secretary Henry Brooke. Soblen now is in a London prison awaiting legal moves to free him.

Two members of Parliament Laborites Scholefield Allen and Barnett Stross, said they would urge the home secretary later to allow Soblen to take up the offer of asylum.

The Home Office regards Soblen as in transit between Israel and New York and has said he must continue his journey if his legal moves to block it fail.

Soblen jumped $100,000 bail in the United States last month and fled to Israel. He was expelled, and slashed himself with a steak knife July 1 as a plane neared London en route to the United States.

The 61-year-old psychiatrist Sunday lost a second effort to seek refuge in Israel. The Cabinet unanimously upheld the Interior Ministry's refusal to let him enter as an immigrant.

Shinto Priest Received By Pope John

CASTEL GANDOLFO, Italy (AP)—A shinto priest was received today by the pontiff of the Roman Catholic Church.

Pope John XXIII granted a 30-minute private audience to Dr. Shizuka Matsubara, rector of the Kenkun Shrine in Kyoto, Japan. The audience took place at the pontiff's summer residence, 15 miles south of Rome.

Dr. Matsubara wore a robe of white, red and violet handwoven silk. It was embroidered in a pattern worn by shinto priests for 2,000 years.

Attending the audience with Dr. Matsubara were his wife, Hideko, his son-in-law and daughter, Dr. and Mrs. Friedemann Freund; and a grandson, 5-month-old Bernhardt Freund. The Freunds live in Germany.

Dr. Matsubara is on a European tour after visiting the United States.

Ellender Protests Opposing JFK

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Allen J. Ellender, D-La., has rejected suggestions he oppose whatever proposals and moves are made by President Kennedy.

Ellender, in a talk for broadcast in Louisiana, said Saturday mail from some constituents to oppose the administration would indicate he was not expected to consider various proposals on their merits.

Such a position, he said, would be "nothing more than blind opposition" and in keeping with the Republican attitude.

Ellender said it "is as bad to be entirely against the President as it is to be entirely for him."

Yankus To Become Aussie Citizen Within 2 Years

ADELAIDE, Australia (AP) — Stanley Yankus, Australia's best know emigrant from America, plans to become an Australian citizen in another two years.

It is three years now since Yankus sold his chicken farm at Dowagiac, Mich., and moved his family to Australia. He said he did this to protest government restrictions on the amount of wheat he could grow on his farm.

Australian laws require five years' residence before a person can seek citizenship.

Yankus these days is not as talkative as when he first arrived.

Yankus and his wife appear to have found a niche in Adelaide, and to be living the normal suburban life of average Australians.

Their two sons, Russell, 15, and Dennis, 14, attend school. Their daughter, Karen, 5, will be going soon.

Yankus started work in Australia as a $36-a week clerk in a firm that makes washing machines and other household appliances.

He has moved since to the big Adelaide department store of Harris Scarfe as an assistant buyer and clerk in the farming implements section.

HOMER OTTIE Ray Shaw, left, and his 18-year-old wife, Reta, were questioned Saturday by Kay County, Okla., officers in the slaying March 14 of a Bartlesville, Okla., woman. Kay County Sheriff Forrest Walker said Mrs. Shaw was arrested Friday when she tried to cash an altered check at a bank in nearby Tonkawa. Her 22-year-old husband was later arrested at the farm where he was working. County Atty. Ralph Haynes said Shaw signed a statement implicating himself and his wife in the slaying of Mrs. Bertha Bartholonew, 41, who was kidnaped with two of her children from her home near Bartlesville March 14. No charges have been filed. (AP Wirephoto)

Accidents Claim 9 Persons

By United Press International

Three automobile wrecks killed nine persons and a 15-year-old boy drowned in the Mississippi River at New Orleans during the weekend death count in Louisiana.

New Orleans police said Preston Johnson, a Negro, apparently drowned Sunday while swimming in the Mississippi River. Dragging operations failed to recover the youth's body.

Killed were Pfc Wayne T. Baras, 22, Kaplan; Sgt. Ronald P. Boudreaux, 25, New Iberia; and Sgt. William G. Davidson, Jr., 25, Houma. Two other men were hurt in the crash.

Mrs. Mary Bright, 37, of Lake Jackson, Tex. and her young son were killed early Sunday when their car struck a bridge near Covington, La., and careened off into a river bed below. Mrs. Bright's husband, Maurice Bright, 41, was seriously hurt and a daughter, Barbara, 12, suffered minor cuts.

Saturday night two cars crashed headon near Kentwood, killing four persons, including three members of a Baton Rouge family.

The dead were Willie Tolar, 36, Mrs. Tolar, 28 and their daughter, Debra, 4. The driver of the other car, Gordon M. Shillings, 47, of Mt. Herman, La., also was killed.

Police said Shillings was attempting to pass another car on a hill when his vehicle collided headon with the Tolar's automobile.

Panel To Answer Dissident Judge In Ole Miss Case

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — A three-judge panel of the U. S. Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals was expected to answer a dissident federal judge this week in the University of Mississippi integration case which has mushroomed into a legal game of football.

Another snag developed in the 14-month-old case last week when the panel disagreed with another judge, a member of the appellate court here but not a member of the panel which had ruled in the case.

Despite a reprimand from the panel, Judge Ben Cameron of Meridian reinstated his order Saturday "staying" the panel's mandate to admit Negro James Meredith, 29, to the university.

Cameron had first stayed the mandate 30 days on July 18 to give the state time to appeal to the U. S. Supreme Court. But last Friday the panel issued a new mandate, severely reprimanding Cameron and directing district Judge Sidney Mize of Gulfport to enjoin state officials from blocking the entry of Meredith.

The panel said that Cameron did not "sit on the case" did not have an opportunity of a sitting judge to study the record to hear the argument to discuss the facts and the law in the judges' conference on the case."

However, in reinstating his stay, Cameron counter-ruled that the panel exceeded its jurisdiction in overruling his original stay. His second 30-day stay was to run from July 28.

Claims Exaggeration

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Postmaster General J. Edward Day said Sunday that magazine publishers had exaggerated the effect of a proposed postal rate increase on their operations.

Day, in a television interview said two-thirds of the cost some magazines said the bill would force them to pay actually would be for advertising mail to get new subscribers. He predicted Senate approval of the House-passed bill.

Severed Foot Restored By Boston Surgeons

BOSTON (AP)—Surgeons were guardedly optimistic today about an operation in which a motorcyclist's severed left foot was sewn back on.

"Circulation was restored and the foot is warm and has a good pulse," a hospital bulletin said.

The patient is Joseph Scimone, 24, a truck driver, whose motorcycle was involved in a head-on collision with an automobile in nearby Revere Saturday.

Two months ago doctors at the same hospital reattached the severed right arm of 12-year-old Little Leaguer Everett Knowles Jr. of Somerville. Knowles is expected back at the hospital this week so surgeons can attempt to reconnect the nerves of the arm.

At Calgary, Alta., earlier in July, doctors rejoined the arm of 17-year-old Hazel Donlin of Clear Lake, Calif., after it nearly had been severed in a 50-foot fall from a carnival ride.

3 Persons Die In Mississippi

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Three Louisiana highway accidents took the lives of nine persons over the weekend—including four who were killed in a two-car headon crash east of Kentwood.

The smashup Saturday killed a Baton Rouge family of three—Willie Tolar, 35; his wife, Bobbie, 28, and their 4-year-old daughter. Also killed was Gordon Schilling, 48, Mt. Herman, the only occupant of his car.

Three National Guard soldiers en route to duty at Ft. Polk died Sunday when their jeep collided with a car at Abbeville.

The victims were identified as Sgt. William Davidson Jr., 29, Houma; Sgt. Ronald P. Boudreaux, 25, New Iberia; and Pfc Wayne Baras, 22, Kaplan.

Mrs. Maurice Bright, 37, of Lake Jackson, Tex., and her 9-year-old son Maurice Bright II, were killed when their car went out of control on a bridge west of Covington.

Urge Job Cuts

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Council of State Chambers of Commerce has suggested that some government job vacancies should go unfilled to help give a pay raise to federal employes.

The council said in a statement Sunday that by reducing the government's work force through normal attrition and rigidly limiting the number of new jobs, the cost of a modest pay hike would be defrayed.

INJURIES MINOR

Six Persons Hurt In Accidents Here

Six persons received minor injuries in accidents in the Twin Cities Sunday. All were given emergency treatment and released friom the hospitals.

Two of the injuries were received in a one-car accident early Sunday, while the other four were hurt in a two-vehicle collision at Jackson and Thomas streets on the southside of Monroe.

The driver of one of the vehicles in the two-car accident was ticketed for reckless driving.

Injured in the two-car accident were Michael Gates, 12, 1306 Hinton street, West Monroe; C. E. Kilpatrick, 56, 1805 East Madison street, Bastrop; Mrs. C. E. Kilpatrick, same address; and Mrs. Ollie Mae Smith, 1306 Hinton street, West Monroe. All were treated at the St. Francis Hospital for contusions, lacerations and abrasions.

The four were passengers in a car driven by Maurice H. Grimes 35, 309 Parkhurst street, Bastrop, which was traveling north on Jackson street. Alon Smith, 44, 1306 Hiiton street, West Monroe, was traveling east on Thomas street and collided with the Grimes vehicle. Smith told officers he did not see the stop sign. He was ticketed with reckless driving.

Grimes was driving a Bastrop fire department automobile when the accident occurred at 11:15 a.m.

Injured in a one-vehicle accident at the intersection of Jackson and Pear streets were Sandra Tarleton, 18, 1809 Jackson street, and Alton Drommond, 18, 504 North Fifth street, both of Monroe. Both were given emergency treatment at the St. Francis Hospital and released.

Miss Tarleton was attempting to make a left turn from Jackson onto Pear street about 2:46 a.m. Sunday when the vehicle went out of control and smashed into a tree. Drummond was a passenger in the vehicle.

Meanwhile, officers are investigating several burglaries, which netted the party or parties small amounts of money.

Edward Carter, 1709 South Third street, Monroe, reported to police the burglary of a newspaper rack at the post office building. Less than $1 was believed taken.

Another newspaper rack, located at the Community Drug Store, 501 Jonesboro Road, West Monroe, was also broken into and the change taken.

A Monroe Negro, L. C. Billingsworth, 1101 Olive street, is in the Conway Charity Hospital for treatment of stab wounds, suffered sometime Saturday night. The Negro was found lying on the sidewalk in front of Marie Brown's Place, 1200 block of De-Siard street, by Monroe police. Police believe the cutting was the climax of a fight.

Clements Will Oppose LeBlanc In Runoff Race

NEW ORLEANS (AP) —Chairman Ernest Clements of Louisiana's Public Service Commission ran well ahead of his six opponents in Saturday's first Democratic primary, but fell short of a majority.

As a result, Clements will face Dudley LeBlanc of Abbeville in a Sept. 1 runoff in the 2nd Public Service Commission District, which includes 29 parishes.

Returns from 871 of the district's 876 precincts gave Clements 95,774 votes — more than 60,000 ahead of LeBlanc, one-time commissioner and candidate for governor.

LeBlanc polled 32,193 votes, followed by Andrew Falcon of Donaldsonville, 25,784; state Sen. Lee Firmin of Franklin, 22,385; J. Bentley Alexander of Baton Rouge 15,069; Ted Nelson of Bunkie, 12,653; and state Rep. Francis Bickford of Tangipahoa Parish, 8,329.

Judge Holds Key To Abortion Case

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — A Superior Court judge holds the key to the fate of a pretty Phoenix television star and the unborn baby she fears will be malformed.

Judge Yale McFate is scheduled to decide today whether the Maricopa County attorney and the attorney general of Arizona will be defendants in Mrs. Robert L. Finkbine's suit for court approval of a proposed abortion.

Miss Sherri, as Mrs. Finkbine is known on "Romper Room," her childrens show, says she has taken thalidomide, blamed for the births of malformed children.

If the judge rules against Mr. and Mrs. Finkbine and co-complainant Good Samaritan Hospital, the cause will reach a dead end. Attorneys for the plaintiffs say that with no defendant there is no case.

But if Judge McFate says either or both officials are proper defendants, the case is expected to proceed. The judge asked Friday that all papers necessary for a hearing be filed by today.

Mrs. Finkbine's attorneys, Howard P. Leibow and Walter Cheifetz, will try to prove that her condition is such that an abortion is justified. State law allows abortions only when an expectant mother's life is in danger.

An abortion, the suit states, is necessary for preservation of Mrs. Finkbine's health and the saving of her life.

Cheifetz denied Sunday a report he would make a deal to drop the case if the county attorney would agree not to prosecute in the event of an abortion.

"The county attorney cannot commit himself as to an assurance he will not prosecute," Cheifetz said.

Mrs. Finkbine, 30, revealed her plight one week ago.

She said she had taken some tranquilizers containing thalidomide. The drug was obtained by her husband, a [illegible]-year-old high school teacher, while he chaperoned a group of students in England last summer.

Mrs. Finkbine told her doctor about taking the drug after reading a newspaper article reporting that thalidomide had been blamed for thousands of malformed infants in Europe, Canada and Australia. A three-member panel of doctors advised the abortion.

Mrs. Finkbine, who has four [illegible] advised the abortion.

Mrs. Finkbine, who has four [illegible], has taken a leave of absence from her job and is in seclusion.

Oil Marketeers Hit Refineries

Northeast members of the Louisiana Oil Marketers Association blasted major oil refineries Sunday for making all the gasoline their plants are capable of turning out and now they have it running out of their ears.

LOMA officers, board of directors and other wholesalers from the [illegible] district took verbal action at a one-day session here.

The directors charged that refineries produce gasoline far in excess of public demand, thereby creating chaotic marketing conditions.

James W. Moore of Monroe is LOMA president.

Comments About Lake Pollution 'Premature'

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — The chairman of the Jefferson Parish council Sunday called comments of a New Orleans official about Lake Pontchartrain pollution "premature."

Cullen C. Schouest referred to comments made by Orleans Parish Levee Board president Gerald Gallinghouse that the lake pollution problem resulted from inactivity by Jefferson Parish officials.

Schouest said "could it be that Mr. Gallinghouse is interested in stopping building in Jefferson Parish and in promoting New Orleans east, and blaming the sewerage situation?"

Schouest said the council never refused to meet with New Orleans officials to discuss the polution problem. He said when the last meeting was called, council members had a previous commitment to attend a convention. He said council members will meet with city officials Monday night.

Schouest called attention to special problems Jefferson had in sewage. He said if it could dump its raw sewage into the Mississippi River as New Orleans did, the Jefferson problem would be as simple as the city's.

Raw sewage from Jefferson canals was blamed for pollution which forced the closing of the lake for the rest of the summer

Miss Flanders Named Library Week Director

Miss Frances Flanders, librarian with the Ouachita Parish Public Library, has been appointed executive director for the State of Louisiana for National Library Week. The special week has been set for April 21 through 27 of next year.

Theme of the special week will be "For a Better-read, Better-informed America."

National Library Week is sponsored by the National Book Committee, a non-profit citizens' group in cooperation with the American Library Association. It is designed, nationally, regionally and locally, to stimulate increased reading by Americans of all ages and to encourage greater use of and support for all libraries.

Stylist Goes From Sacks To Tubes

By JEAN SPRAIN WILSON
Associated Press Fashion Write

PARIS (AP) — Designer Yves Saint-Laurent, who once put women in sacks, put them in tubes today and an audience of celebrities loved it.

The tube, however, is nothing for a man to get panicky about. Although the protege of the late Christian Dior called this the "glove" silhouette, it does not fit quite that closely. The slender elongated sheath does enhance the bust and subtly slides over the hips, hinting at the figure underneath. But it is the sparest of spare silhouettes this season. It appears to have guaranteed Saint-Laurent a second successful show since his army stint, a nervous breakdown, a legal battle with the Christian Dior House and a comeback last January.

Seeming to assure his success was Princess Lee Radziwill. Instead of wearing a Givenchy as is the custom of the princess and her sister, Jacqueline Kennedy while in France, the princess was in a two-piece wool suit made especially for her by Saint-Laurent and rumors were rampant that she would probably interest her trend-setting sister in his costumes.

Princess Radziwill sat with Viscountess Jacqueline de Ribes, one of the world's best-dressed women, and self-consciously fulfilled her role as a fashion reporter for McCall's, an American women's magazine.

As such, she had been turned away by her old couturier, Givenchy, to wait until the official press show a month from now. That, said her friends, is the reason for the non-Givenchy attire today.

If she does interest Mrs. Kennedy in the tube look of Saint-Laurent, neither the President of the United States nor the First Lady, nor all her faithful copyists will be sorry.

The look is fresh, extremely feminine, dramatic without being theatrical, often quite simple and always simply elegant.

His cavalier's suit has widened shoulders, a shapely bust and a supple but small back. A scarf panel animates a straight skirt.

Over those supple tubular dresses, models wore three-quarter coats without rounded shoulders and slender hips.

Shaggy featherweight woolens, often horseblanket plaid, were cut into slim surcoats.

Nautical Version Of Campaign Cliche

Using New England sailing ship jargon, President Kennedy told a press conference last week that the fall elections would show the American people "will choose either to anchor down or to sail."

This is another version of the catch phrase, "Let's get this country moving again," which was coined by adviser Walt Rostow and used throughout the 1960 campaign.

The meaning is clear. The President believes our progress as a nation depends upon push and pull control of private business by the federal government.

The country should indeed be given the opportunity to express itself on these two issues. There should be a choice between more government or more freedom from government for individuals and businesses.

The President has made it clear as to where his party will stand. But will the Republicans as the opposition party prove willing to present their side in clear political terms?

Actually, the opposition party has every reason to avoid the strategy of so-called "metooism" and go on the stump for less federal control. The people have not found the "new frontier" program very exciting. The record on Capitol Hill does not show that there has been a bandwagon rolling for anything from the omnibus farm bill to the "medicare" program. In fact, most of the new proposals have the weary atmosphere of the 1930's about them.

Here is the time and opportunity for the opposition to push a different approach. This lesson should have been learned as far back as 1940, when the GOP offered a new deal with only slight modifications—and lost.

It is perhaps more obvious to the public now than ever before that the real answer to compulsory Social Security medical care for the aged is found in the many voluntary insurance plans aided when necessary by public assistance.

Likewise, it is obvious that the real answer to the farm problem does not lie in continued props and surplus storage, but in a general return to a free market.

The proper role of government is to help create a climate in which a free economy may flourish. Such a climate cannot be established when the President of the United States kuotes his father as saying all businessmen are of lower-than-ordinary parentage. Many in both parties wondered how such a statement could have been made by a member of a family which has prospered under the American system of economy.

If any anchors need to be referred to at this time, they are those which should be tied to the federal government so that the free economy could set sail again.

Liberals Try 'Rotten Apple' Strategy

A student at a California college wrote a penetrating story about a political oddity, then met with an untimely death.

The 19-year-old student, Newton Armstrong, described self-styled "Nazi" fuehrer George Lincoln Rockwell for what he was following a speech Rockwell made at San Diego State College. Less than three weeks later, Armstrong was found dead in his room, a victim of apparent suicide.

It will be recalled Rockwell brought his small band of arm-banded American "nazis" to New Orleans during the school integration crisis, also to protest the showing of the movie "Exodus."

It is important to point out that the liberal faction at San Diego State invited Rockwell to speak there, not Armstrong's conservative group. Rockwell also picketed last Spring's Young Conservative convention in New York.

How can a "nazi" — supposedly an ultra-rightist—throw in with the left - wingers? Here is Armstrong's theory:

1. To rekindle anti-German sentiment among those whose families were persecuted by Hitler's nazis. This would create a distrust of the present-day German republic and weaken the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

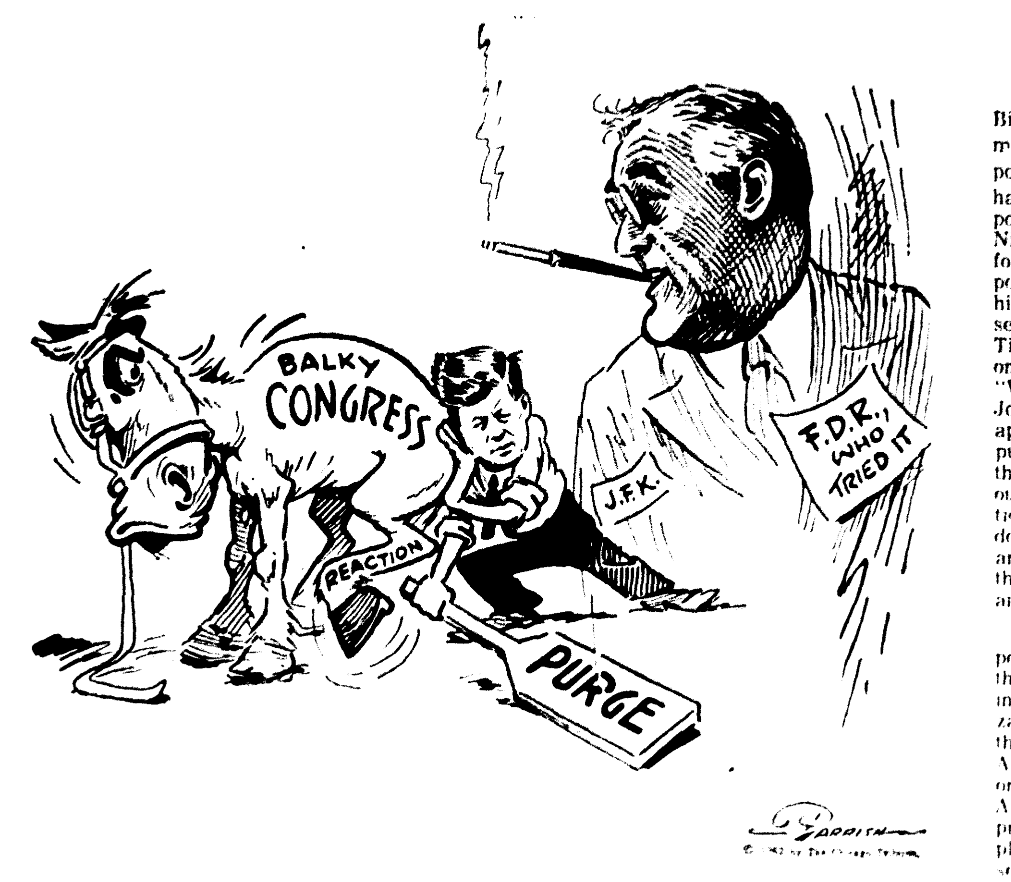
2. To serve as a forerunner for leftist speakers. If a "nazi" can speak, why not a communist?

3. To shift attention from the immediate danger of communism to the supposed rise of "American naziism."

4. To provoke hatred and bigorty, which can be exploited by subsequent leftist "reforms."

5. To discredit American conservatism. If Rockwell can state a few conservative objectives along with his anti-Semitism and other wild schemes, the liberals hope it will make the whole conservative program go sour in the eyes of the public.

'I Guess We All Have To Learn'



Taylor Appointment May Affect Military Organization

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Does President Kennedy's appointment of General Maxwell D Taylor to be chairman of the joint chiefs of staff represent a renewed emphasis on ground forces? This question is a vital one now as the far reaching development of missiles and nuclear weapons seems to be bringing about a stalemate or balance of power so far as major wars are concerned.

One school of thought nowadays assumes that local wars are to be the order of the day and that this phase of American defense policy has been neglected. General Taylor holds that view. He has been intimately identified in recent months with the build-up of forces in Berlin and in dealing with the "guerrilla" warfare problem in southeast Asia.

THERE ARE, however, fundamental differences of opinion here as to what constitutes the safer strategy for the United States. The rivalry between the armed services has by no means been adjouned. The air force and the navy, whose chiefs differed virogously with General Taylor when he was chief of staff of the army, are bound to resume their lively debate over the way the money provided for national defense shall be spent.

General Taylor, like a good many other men of positive views in the armed services, has been a controversial figure. He voluntarily retired as chief of staff of the army in 1959 after he found himself in a one to three position versus the heads of the navy and the air force and the chairman of the joint chiefs of staff, who repeatedly sided aginst him. He felt that President Eisenhower, being an army man, should have supported his views on building up conventional forces. After retiring, General Taylor wrote a book, "The Uncertain Trumpet," which caused a lot of discussion as he reiterated the views he had unsuccessfully advocated in the meetings of the joint chiefs.

Mr Kennedy was very much impressed with the book and used it as ammunition on the political stump in many campaign speeches. It was the basis on which the Democratic presidential nominee criticized President Eisenhower for having failed to increase and modernize conventional forces, for having relied too much on the "massive deterrent" policy, and for setting budget ceilings on national defense.

When General Taylor was selected as personal adviser to President Kennedy shortly after the Cuban "invasion" fiasco, many high officers in the armed services were a bit perturbed. Some of them felt that, since he was to be at the President's side constantly, it meant that the joint chiefs of staff would be virtually subordinated to General Taylor. For that reason, some of the top officers in the navy and air force said this week that they feel it is much better for general Taylor to have the full responsibility as chairman of the joint chiefs than to be exercising influence on military matters at the white house as a personal assistant to the president.

THE COMMENT among various officers in the armed services is that General Taylor was himself not a team player when he was a member of the joint chiefs. It is said that he didn't feel bound to support decisions with which he had disagreed. At the same time some of these same officers recall that General Taylor used to say that a chairman of the joint chiefs shouldn't be bossy or attempt to override his associates. There is speculation now whether he will adopt the same view if he encounters differences of opinion among his fellow staff officers.

Congress, of course, and particularly chairman of the military affairs committees in both houses, will continue to show a sensitiveness to interservice conflicts and differences. General Taylor is no stranger to these committees, and some strong words of praise were spoken in his behalf on capitol hill the other day when he was appointed.

Incidentally, General Lyman L. Lemnitzer, who was appointed to succeed General Lauris Norstad at NATO, has passed the voluntary retirement age of 62. His departure will be mandatory next year when he is 64 unless Congress passes a special act to retain him in that post. He is not unfamiliar with NATO since, as chief of staff of the Army, he has had to deal with its problems. Also, in the 1940's he was instrumental in formulating the original plans for the NATO operation.

THE BIG question mark, however, is whether General Taylor's appointment as head of the joint chiefs means the beginning of an effort on his part, with the co operation of secretary of defense McNamara and President Kennedy, to centralize control of the armed services. In his book, he advocated that the joint chief of staff be dissolved and replaced by a single defense chief of staff and an advisory board, with the service chiefs of staff operating their individual military services.

Egypt's Nasser Says Rockets Can Bombard Israel

By FULTON LEWIS, JR.

Surrounded by one time Nazi big shots, armed with Soviet MIG's, Gamal Abdul Nasser talks of "liberation" for the tiny state of Israel.

The United Arab Republic's loud mouthed, hawk-nosed dictator now boasts a missile force all his own. He says that UAR rockets can hit any spot in Israel.

The U S State Department, however, plans no cutback in foreign aid for Nasser — and no action to break the Arab boycott, a vicious scheme designed by Nasser and carried out by all Arab nations.

The boycott is directed against U S firms said to have connections with Israel. I am in possession of a letter sent by the Government of Kuwait's Israel Boycott Office to a New York firm. It reads in part:

"We have the honor to inform you that we have reliable information to the effect that you have dealings with Israel. Since the Arab States are still at war with Israel, no Arab merchant is allowed to have dealings whatsoever with Israel or any foreign person or company having certain relations with Israel. Any foreign country having certain definite relations with Israel is blacklisted in all the Arab countries."

ON THE blacklist: All U S firms that represent Israeli companies that have branch factories or offices in Israel that "render consultative services and technical experience to Israeli factories."

The list goes on and on. The Minnesota firm of Scherr Tumico Inc recently received such a letter from Syria's Boycott office. Howard James, president of the company, which makes mechanical, optical and electronic measuring devices, shot back:

"We are not impressed by your threats of intimidation and coercion through boycott and blacklist. If the Arab states had progressed industrially and scientifically to the point where your markets were lucrative for our products, we still would not be impressed.

"The efforts you are expending in fomenting hate and strife can better be used to bring something of substance for your people. Cease your war with Israel and you will find this corporation and most all of America ready and anxious to extend you a welcome and helping hand."

Fortune magazine said last year that the number of U S firms on the Arab blacklist had risen from about "twenty in 1957 to nearly four times that today." Five hundred American companies received boycott threats in 1960 alone.

MANY companies — including Emerson Radio, General Tire and Rubber, Dow Chemical and Merritt - Chapman and Scott — have refused to yeild to the boycott and have lost their Arab markets.

The Arab boycott applies also to American owned vessels temporarily chartered to Israel companies or, as happens more frequently, carrying materials from the U S destined in large or small part for Israeli ports.

LEADING the fight in this country for stronger State Department action against practitioners of the Arab boycott is New York Sen Jacob Javits. He sees as a fundamental principle that all Americans are entitled to equal protection of our laws. The State Department, he says, must use all the powers at its disposal to see to it that such discrimination stops.

The New York Senator informs me that Assistant Secretary of State Phillips Talbot discussed the problem in detail with U S Ambassadors to the Arab nations in an Athens conference last month.

"The discrimination, however, continues," says Javits.

Note: The Near East Report says that the Arab boycott applies to people as well as goods. A group of five Americans who reached Jordan in June were expelled because they were "on the blacklist."

The reason: One member of the group, the Rev R E Dawkins, of the Gospel Tabernacle in Kansas City Kans., is editor of a religious weekly that is friendly to Israel.

Birch Society's Influence

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

LOS ANGELES — The John Birch Society has kicked up enormous commotion in California politics. The Los Angeles Times has attacked it as a "subversive" political force and Richard M. Nixon, the Republican nominee for governor, repudiated its support (which never was offered him) in eager endorsement of a series of five articles which the Times published last March. Nixon put the question to himself: "Why do such organizations (as John Birch) have such enormous appeals to thousands of loyal, public - spirited American?" He then answered himself: "Because our existing political organizations, with very few exceptions, do not offer a challenging, vital and effective program to fight the great battle for preserving and extending American ideals."

THE ANSWER was more to the point than the question. Because the question, by employing the insinuating phrase "such organizations," had merely implied that Birch was obnoxious to Americans of high principle. Nixon thus implied that he was an American of unquestionable high principle. And his comment applied not to the details of the series of articles but to an editorial by Otis Chandler, the editor of the Times. This editorial, which Nixon so heartily approved, reviewed the anti-Birch articles and asked, "What are we to think when our last three presidents, Roosevelt, Truman and Eisenhower, are accused of being Communists or Communist dupes."

Actually, the John Birch Society has made no such accusation although I would undertake to prove that Roosevelt betrayed the United States to Moscow, that Truman faltered in the presence of Stalin at Potsdam, and that Eisenhower abandoned the war victory to Russia when he withdrew the conquering allied armies one hundred miles from the final eastern line in obedience to an order which he once defined to me as strictly political. I answered him that the decision was both military and political and that he lost the war then and there. He could have refused to obey in which case Truman might have flown him home in chains. The ultimate outcome is mere conjecture, but Eisenhower unquestionably performed the most valuable service for Russia next to Roosevelt's. It were unthinkable that Ike or Truman had a disloyal motive, but they failed horribly and the cold war is a consequence of their errors of judgment. As to Roosevelt, there is no excuse.

IT APPEARS that Robert Welch, founder of John Birch, made some drastic remarks about Ike in a long letter to a group of intimate friends. He told me a few days ago that one of the recipients violated confidence in passing the contents along. But Welch insisted that the letter was written before the society was organized. And, be that as it may, Welch and the society have never been accused of betraying their country to any foreign enemy and their stated principles all are consistent with the Constitution of the United States.

This political development is a strong reaction by Americans against years of rioting, extortion and political corruption. John Birch only imitates the basic practice of unions in keeping its finances and councils confidential to prevent betrayal to the opposition Party. Democrats should find it repugnant, but strangely there is a heavy drift of Texas Democrats to John Birch. I have a letter from a dignitary of the Church of Christ, which is the religion of Billie Sol Estes, complaining that Jack Cox, the Republican nominee for governor of Texas, made a "weak" speech at a barbecue really at New Braunfels. He wanted stronger stuff from Cox against the Democratic nominee, John Connally.

NIXON is fascinated by some strange majesty which he sees in Eisenhower even though Ike threw him to the wolves in the first campaign and gave him the tips of his fingers the rest of their time together. Nixon will need his help against Pat Brown, the presiding Democrat, and the least that Nixon could do to deserve that help would be to scorn John Birch for its reflections on his patron.

Baby Clinic Plan For Elderly

By MARTIN E SEGAL

The well-baby clinic idea, which was considered a daring public health innovation a few years ago, is now being extended to the elderly.

Purpose of the well-baby clinics is to keep babies from getting sick. And that's exactly what today's well - older folks clinic will seek to do for the elderly.

Yamhill County in Oregon has been selected by the U S Department of Health, Education and Welfare as the site for this unusual experiment in health care of the elderly.

Several older citizens centers are being set up throughout the county to develop and test new methods of providing health services outside hospitals for aged individuals.

THE MAIN emphasis of the centers will be on keeping older people well and able to take care of themselves. But they will not be used solely for health services. They will have a social side too and limited recreational facilities.

People using the centers will be given regular tests for diabetes, glaucoma, high blood pressure, cataracts, hearing loss, anemia, and other ailments that are prevalent in later years.

The centers will also have a health education officer to teach care and feeding of the 60-plus body, and to organize community services for the older folks.

When elderly persons in areas served by the centers become ill, they will have the help of visiting nurse and homemaker services operating out of the centers.

Other practical aims of the center will be to broaden the interests of the elderly, to provide services that will help those living in their own homes to remain there rather than go to institutions, and to prevent those in homes for the aged from having to transfer to nursing homes.

The health services in the center will include psychiatric advice since mental and emotional problems often are as troubling to the elderly as physical problems.

ANOTHER objective of the experiment is to cut down the amount of time elderly patients spend in hospitals. The average hospital patient under 65 spends about eight days a year in the hospital. The average hospital patient 65 and over spends about 15 days a year in the hospital.

The federal government has made a first-year grant of $42,000 for the Yamhill County project. Other state and local agencies will help. Cooperating are the Oregon State Board of Health and the Yamhill County Public Welfare Commission. Local service clubs have promised to provide volunteer aides.

The Oregon centers are pilot projects. The aim is to see if such centers will do as much for the health of the elderly as well-baby clinics did for the health of infants. If they work out they will be duplicated throughout the country.

MY ANSWER

By BILLY GRAHAM

QUESTION: Do the Ten Commandments have anything to do with Christianity? How important are they? R J

ANSWER: The Ten Commandments give a concise statement of God's moral laws and they have never been set aside. They embody man's responsibility to God and his relationship with his fellow men. God still demands that He alone shall be worshipped; that we worship Him in spirit and not through idols or images; that we honor His name and not profane it; that we remember His day and keep it holy or separated from other days; that we honor our parents; that we do not commit murder or adultery; that we do not steal, bear false witness, nor covet things not belonging to us. Jesus Christ summarized the Ten Commandments into loving God with all our beings and our neighbors as ourselves. We cannot keep these commandments in our own strength, but through faith in Jesus Christ and trusting in His help to overcome temptations to violate them.

WASHINGTON SHORTS

DOLLAR SHRINKAGE—A Texan can make even a dollar bill look small — or should we say smaller? Taking an authentic dollar bill, a Texas prankster shrunk it to about half size by soaking it and then applying a mechanical process known as "creping." The pint - sized bill is now making the rounds of the Washington cocktail circuit, where it provokes much hilarity, especially among Republicans who call it the "Kennedy dollar." The Republican National Committee, however, disclaims any responsibility for the shrunken dollar. The Democratic National Committee icily declined to make any comment whatever. White the bill's origin has been traced to Texas, the name of the prankster has not been revealed.

The Secret Service takes a dim view of this "currency creping." "If there's just one, it's probably all right," a spokesman said tersely. "But if someone is manufacturing these things and passing them out by the thousands we might have to order it stopped as upsetting the circulation of money. We like all bills to be the same size. Otherwise, it's confusing to the public."

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

WEATHERBEATEN SKIN

The sun hastens the aging process of the skin. This was demonstrated several years ago via a microscopic comparison of exposed and unexposed areas of the body's surface. The skin of the back and the abdomen showed little evidence of deterioration even in older people.

The ability of the epidermis to protect itself from the rays of Old Sol is related to the amount of pigment. Negroes seldom show degenerative changes on the exposed regions because of an abundance of pigment. Many aging members of this race look deceptively young, thanks to this melanin content.

The face, neck, hands, and arms usually suffer after years of exposure. Premature aging occurs in farmers, sailors, and others whose occupations keep them out of doors daily. Wind and dryness contribute to thickening and wrinkling of the skin.

Young people who consider a deep brown suntan essential are likely to pay the penalty years later when they need to look their best. Some can expect dry, coarse, and leathery skin by age 50 unless they have used sun-screening lotions or ointments, along with common sense. Fair-skinned blonds and redheads are less adapted to withstand ultraviolet than are brunets and the dark-skinned.

But this is only part of the story. Some medical disorders are alleviated or cured by sunning. Others are aggravated, including skin cancer and lupus erythematosus. Allergic reactions occur also and, in some instances, certain drugs and cosmetics sensitize the person to the sun's rays.

Among the many screening products, some are more successful than others in filtering out the harmful rays. A pleasant bask on the beach or at the side of the pool is not dangerous, but be reasonable. Remember, a little sun goes a long way. People who have lived under the boiling sun for centuries cover themselves completely. Let's take the hint.

NOT SO

Mrs G writes: I have married a man with diabetes and now people tell me we won't be able to have children. Is this so?

REPLY

No. Diabetics are capable of reproduction provided they are not sterile. Before the introduction of insulin, young diabetic women seldom lived long enough to become pregnant. This probably is the origin of the "they say" you are hearing.

OFFSPRING OF COUSINS

D E writes: Would the children of second cousins be born deformed or mentally incapable?

REPLY

They could be but they might also be perfect or just normal children. Inbreeding may accentuate the good as well as the bad characteristics of a family.

CAN'T TALK

L C writes: What can be done to recover a voice lost through a cold?

REPLY

Quiet, please. The larynx should be examined when hoarseness persists more than three weeks. Many people blame a cold for loss of voice but other causes must be considered.

APPENDECTOMY AND PREGNANCY

A S writes: Can a woman who had an appendix operation get pregnant?

REPLY

Yes. There is no connection between the appendix and the reproductive organs. Moreover, the appendix can be removed in a pregnant woman who develops appendicitis.

IN SATURDAY'S RACES

Strongly Conservative Candidates Are Beaten

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The Kennedy administration received a political boost in the deep South when Louisiana Democrats renominated one of the President's most loyal backers and defeated a rash of strongly conservative candidates.

The more conservative candidates were beaten in every key race in Saturday's Democratic primary.

Kennedy backers were pleased most by the resounding triumph scored in the 2nd District by Rep. Hale Boggs, House Democratic whip.

Boggs was marked for political extinction by conservatives after he supported Kennedy's successful campaign last year to increase the size of the House Rules Committee. But he easily defeated three opponents, piling up 64 per cent of the vote in a district which includes uptown New Orleans and four outlying parishes (counties).

Another aspect pleasing to Washington was that 25 East Carroll Parish Negroes became the first of their race to vote in that northeast Louisiana area since at least 1922.

Sen. Russell Long, Louisiana's junior senator, won re-nomination to his third full six-year term by a 4-to-1 margin over Phil St. Amant, a retired Army lieutenant colonel. St. Amant, an all-out conservative, called the Long's voting record "socialistic."

The senator's cousin, Gillis Long, 39, won the 8th District House seat from Rep. Harold McSween, 36, a conservative who has generally opposed the administration.

Long was making his first bid for elective office in the political heartland of his famous family.

In the 7th District in southwest Louisiana, Rep. T. A. Thompson easily defeated three opponents, all sharp critics of the federal government's activities.

Two other congressmen defeated token opponents.

Rep. James Morrison of Hammond won renomination in the 6th District over Herbert Price of Baton Rouge, who campaigned as an all-out segregationist. Price accused Morrison of selling out to liberal groups. Morrison won by a 4-to-1 majority.

Rep. F. Edward Hebert of New Orleans, dean of the state's House delegation, defeated Jacob Fink, a contractor, by more than a 7-to-1 margin in the 1st District.

Three other congressmen were renominated without opposition, and none has a Republican opponent in November. They are Reps. Edwin Willis of St. Martinville, Joe D. Waggonner Jr. of Plain Dealing and Otto Passman of Monroe.

Boggs and both Longs will have GOP opposition in the Nov. 6 general election.

Boggs will go against another all-out conservative, David Treen. Treen joined the Republican party this year after resigning as head of the Louisiana States Rights Party, which backed a slate of unpledged electors in the 1960 presidential election.

Sen. Long faces Taylor W. O'Hearn of Shreveport, a political newcomer, while Gillis Long meets Mrs. Dorothy Lewis, wife of Alexandria's postmaster.

Late unofficial returns in the congressional contests:

Senate, 2,171 of 2,197 precincts: Long, 403,070; St. Amant, 100,232.

House, 2nd District, 286 of 287 precincts: Boggs, 58,708; state Rep. John G. Schwegmann Jr., 16,249; Stuart McClendon, 15,071; Paul Pottharst, 2,131.

House, 7th District, 279 of 280 precincts: Thompson, 41,077; Hugh Shearman, 15,405; Allen Commander, 12,036; Larry Stephenson, 5,953.

House, 8th District, 307 of 320 precincts: Long, 29,559; McSween, 23,264; W. H. Lambdin, 3,466.

House, 1st District, 249 of 251 precincts: Hebert, 59,263; Fink 8,287.

AREA RACES

Long, Louisiana's three-time governor, downed Harold B. McSween and W. H. Lambdin, veteran Alexandria city commissioner for the U. S. Representative's job.

McSween, the incumbent had lost to Earl Long two years ago. Long died days after the race and McSween was declared the winner by default.

Gillis Long reveived 29,559 votes to 23,264 for McSween, and 3,466 for Lambdin.

Northeast Louisiana gave Russell Long a resounding vote-edge over his conservative opponent, retired U. S. Army Lt. Col. Phil St. Amant.

Long received 25,854 to 10,617 for St. Amant.

Meanwhile, a runoff battle looms in one of four Ouachita Parish school board races. M. L. Owens Jr. and Roy C. Cash, A. P. Burkett and Paul L. Crowell will battle it out for two posts on the board from ward five.

Charles G. Drennan of ward one, Warren E. Palmer of ward two and Dr. F. H. Hammonds and Fred McVay of ward three nailed down first-primary wins.

Returns from other northeast Louisiana school board races showed:

West Carroll — (ward four) W. R. Willis, incumbent, 242, Mrs. Thomas Brackett, 108, Mack Thomas 359 and L. V. Williamson, 34. A total of 14 precincts out of 14 reported.

Franklin — (19 out of 19), ward two, Rufus Ezell, incumbent, 238, George Carroll, 134, ward three, George H. Scoggin, 136, Mrs. Adrian Scott, 127, Ernest Reeves. A runoff looms between Mrs. Scott and Scoggin. Ward four, Rufus Marshall, incumbent, 165, Henry W. Sowell, 84, W. F. Hixon 70, J. A. Harper, 64. A runoff is scheduled between Marshall and Sowell.

Madison — (Ward four) — Bruce Clark, 493, Carroll Crow, incumbent, 395, Chris Kimbell, 336 and Mrs. Ellen Roper 266. Clark and Crow were elected. Two posts were open.

LaSalle — (Ward 8) — W. T. Bignar, 113, Ernest Coleman, 193 and J. E. Hudnell, 72. Hudnell was the incumbent.

Lincoln — (Ruston ward) — C. W. Colvin, 1,426, Charles Terral, 1,107, Ed Edmunds, 564, R. E. Holliday, 1,927. (Choudrant in ward four), John O'Neal, 87, Bert Pipes, 57, Sammie Whitman, 201. Ward seven, Hico, W. H. Houck, 77, Dennis Owens, 65, Horace Miers, 14 and John Herren, 6.

Jackson — (Ward 2) — C. H. Allen, incumbent, 949, J. B. Durham, 619, M. M. Gatlin, 644, Ross McDonald, 667, Marion J. Smith, 1,109, Elton Terrell, 284, ward three — M. W. Anderson, 182, Kenneth Blalock, 126, L. H. Harvey, incumbent, 206. Two posts were open in ward two and one in ward three.

Catahoula — complete returns. In ward one, Max Good, deputy sheriff, 83, Causey Egloff, 67, ward five — J. Z. Stutson, 301 and Charles Allbritton Jr., 103.

Morehouse — ward six — Clare Clark, 177, Roy Shepherd 165, ward seven — Bernie Turner 69, Frank E. Yeldell, 34.

Richland — ward 2 — Mrs. Agnes Strong, 679, M. K. McConnell, 625, B. L. Wartl, 623 and W. H. Eddins, all in runoff. Otis Henderson, 263, Raymond Roberts, 240, (ward five) — Cecil Pardue, 179 and W. E. Hixon, 167.

Caldwell — (ward three) — Dave A. Bratton, 56 and Wilmer Kennison, incumbent, 125.

Union — (Ward one) — Ingram Ballard, incumbent, 695, Kenneth Brantley, 363, (ward nine), LaVelle Silmon, incumbent, 131, Fred Wade Jr., 95, (ward five) — J. B. Allen, incumbent, 234 and John David Simpson, 114.

Winn — (ward one) — Mrs. Sadye Hahn, 1,015, Willard Harlan, 972, T. H. Harrel, 1,151 and Harold W. Swilley, 251, (ward three) Stanley J. Smith, incumbent, 226, H. C. Thompson, 200, (ward two) J. E. Jones Jr., 277, A. J. McCartney, 276. In the ward one race, Mrs. Hahn and Harrell were both elected as there were two posts open.

2ND PRIMARY

mid-morning today with 270 out of 274 precincts in. Four small precincts are still out in Concordia Parish.

Whetstone and Mulhearn will run it off September 1 but the Democratic nominee faces a Republican, George Snellings, a Monroe attorney, in the general election.

Two other candidates, O. N. Hamilton of Oak Grove with 7,6[illegible] votes and Bobby Wilson of West Monroe with 4,056 votes were eliminated.

In the congressional races U. S. Sen. Russell B. Long of Baton Rouge and U. S. Rep. Hale Boggs of New Orleans were re-elected.

Three other congressmen won easy first primary campaigns—T. A. Thompson, Ville Platte, F. Edward Hebert, New Orleans and James Morrison, Hammond.

But Congressman Harold B. McSween of Alexandria was unseated by Gillis Long, an Alexandria attorney, in a hot Eighth District race.

Locally Congressman Otto E. Passman of Monroe was unopposed.

Meantime Gov. Jimmie H. Davis lost three school board members who were defeated in South Louisiana races after being appointed by the governor.

They were ousted in West Baton Rouge, Lafayette and Calcasieu parishes.

Gordon K. Dameron, appointed by Davis to the West Baton Rouge School Board, was defeated by Larry A. LaVauve, 714 to 531.

In Lafayette, Nathaniel Broussard, also a Davis appointee, was defeated by Jesse Boudreaux, 321 to 165.

And in Lake Charles, in a race for the city school board, a Davis appointee, Robert W. Price, was defeated by Edward Watson.

Shoe Styles Vary To Fit The Occasion

Are you the kind of gal who likes to kick off her shoes the first chance you get? If you are, you're in good company with the rest of the female population. Actually, there's a good, healthy reason for shedding one pair of shoes and slipping into another.

The National Shoe Institute says shoe specialists have long advocated a change of pace in footwear during the day. Muscles at the back of your legs tend to stiffen if you wear the same heel height. And this is true of low heels as well as high.

REFRESHING BREAK

Also, that old devil perspiration is at work in your feet as well as the rest of your body. Changing your shoes gives both shoes and feet a chance to breathe.

This spring, with all of the variety offered, it's easy to find enough different fashions to make a shoe break fun, as well as practical.

Drive a car? Keep a pair of weightless, unlined flats in your glove compartment. You might also slip in a pair of soft, light-as-air pumps for emergency use in case a need for dressier shoes arises.

Sitting behind a desk? Put on a pair of tailored, broad-strapped sandals set on chunkier heels than the ones you're wearing.

Your day to vacuum and dust? Put on rubber soled slip-ons to give you a steady base to work on. Pick a bright color—yellow, green, red—for a fashion lift. Later in the day, change into another pair of shoes on a different heel height. You'll find you won't be so tired by nightfall.

Filipino Mayor Shot To Death

MANILA (AP)—An unidentified gunman shot and killed Mayor Mariano de Raya of Magallanes, in Cavite Province 30 miles south of Manila, early today.

The slaying was attributed to political motives. Cavite Province long has been a hotbed of Philippine political violence.

Conley Offers No Explanation For Departure

FOXBORO, Mass. (UPI) — Contrite pitcher Gene Conley left the door open today for a return to the Boston Red Sox after stepping from a bus in New York and keeping teammates and officials guessing about his weekend whereabouts.

"I just committed a foul up. We all do that," Conley told United Press International from his trailer park home Sunday night. "I'm not going to quit baseball, my arm's still good."

His 1962 record was nine wins, ten losses up to when he stepped off the team bus in the Bronx last Thursday. The team continued on to Washington without Conley or infielder Pumpsie Green who left the bus at the same time.

"It was a bad three days," Conley said but did not elaborate on what took place after he and Green left the bus.

Asked about a possible fine since Green reportedly was fined between $500 and $1,000 for his absence, Conley said, "I hate to think about that."

Green showed up in Washington Friday and was in uniform for the Saturday game. Higgins announced that Conley was on suspension as of Friday.

Conley telegraphed Higgins on Sunday and also talked with him twice by telephone during the day. It was the first word that Higgins had of Conley's whereabouts.

Conley confirmed an early report that he had bought an airline ticket to Israel. He said he did not make the flight after learning he must obtain a passport and other credentials.

Gas Explosions Fatal To Three

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP) — Liquefied gas exploded in a rural home Sunday and caused three deaths.

Vergyle Davis, 60, died today of burns suffered in the blast at her home near suburban Benbrook.

Her husand Joseph J. Davis, 67, and Alice McWilliams, 76, of Sunnyvale, Calif., died Sunday night.

Mrs. Willie McNeely, 80, of Stephenville, Tex., a sister of Mrs. McWilliams, was injured. Hospital attendants said she was in good condition.

in Philadelphia, left nearby Harrisburg — where all passengers boarded—at 5 p.m.

It was rolling along about 70 miles an hour, railroad officials said, when the derailment occurred next to the Bethlehem Steel Co. plant in this central Pennsylvania steel town.

Engineman J. F. Shue of Royalton, Pa., told railroad officials he was doing between 65 and 70 miles per hour. Officials said the speed limit over the straight stretch is 75 mph.

Railroad officials said the stretch of track at Steelton was used by 40 or 50 trains a day. Just an hour before the derailment, officials said, a mail train passed over the same track.

After tumbling down an angled 40-foot embankment, two of the shattered cars of the nine-car coach train came to rest on their sides. A third car, its roof shredded, remained upright in about three feet of water.

The three cars that tumbled into the river were the last three cars of the train and were the only cars occupied. Two empty coaches also left the rails but remained upright. The two, along with three more up front, would have been filled by fans boarding the train at Lancaster and Coatesville.

The death toll might have been higher except that the broad stream is extremely low because of an 11-week drought.

Lightning Lends Helping Hand

The Rev. C. D. Goodwin was midway through his sermon Sunday when lightning struck the church steeple.

No one was hurt, although five cars parked near the church were damaged by tile ripped from the roof.

"Any sleepers in the worship services were certainly waked up quickly," Goodwin said.

Advances Predicted

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Atomic Energy Commission has predicted that nuclear power plants will be economically competitive with conventional electric plants by 1966 in some high-cost areas.

The commission's forecast was made in a statement to the Congressional Atomic Energy Committee. It was made public Sunday by Rep. Chet Holifield, D-Calif., committee chairman.

sum of money and other considerations to withdraw his opposition" and let terms of a third settlement plan hammered out last Friday be accepted.

The new settlement pact is scheduled to be submitted to the rank and file members for ratification or rejection Tuesday, McClellan said, and if the charges against the unionist can be substantiated, he said this would have a great impact on the result.

The story, he said, "ought to be exposed or exploded" by the taking of sworn evidence before his subcommittee.

The submarines, McClellan said, are weapons too badly needed for the nation's defenses to permit obstruction of their production to continue because "somebody won't pay off somebody."

Mansfield took the floor with a plea for "restraint" on the part of the filibusterers and a full attendance by supporters of the bill.

He called Saturday's sessions, in which 10 hours were consumed in twice producing a mere quorum of 50 senators "a sorry procedure."

Mansfield repeated a previous charge, made Friday, that opponents of the satellite bill are milking the rules to "evade consideration and decision."

And he lamented the failure of others to stay on hand for roll calls to provide the necessary quorum for the Senate to function.

Replying to Mansfield, Morse said it was "no hallmark of genius" for Mansfield to have called a Saturday session "when one was not needed."

As for the labor dispute cited by McClellan, Morse said "there is plenty of law on the statute books" to handle it.

Morse told newsmen he did not intend to permit any committees to meet as long as the fight over the satellite bill is on.

Morse dismissed as "unadulterated nonsense" a contention by Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., that by using filibustering tactics in this instance advocates of civil rights legislation are endangering future action in that field.

Humphrey told newsmen Sunday that "I don't think they can come into future battles for civil rights legislation with clean hands."

Replying to this, Morse said in a statement that this was a "below-the-belt, fallacious appeal aimed at stirring up political prejudice against those opposing the private ownership communications bill."

LONGS

breed of Longs much more than they did Huey or Earl.

Russell Long won a resounding victory in Saturday's primary over an arch-conservative, Phil St. Amant, a retired Army officer. He carried every one of the 64 parishes—something no Long has ever before done. Russell also got the endorsement of most newspapers in the state including the largest—the New Orleans Times-Picayune, which has been an anti-Long paper for years.

Gillis Long says he thinks the acceptance of the more educated voters and city dwellers of the second generation of Longs is shown by voting totals in Alexandria, the largest city in the 8th district and a traditional anti-Long stronghold. In some precincts where McSween led Earl Long but more than four-to-one two years ago, Gillis Long either defeated McSween or trailed by a slim margin. Gillis carried all eight parishes in the district.

Russell Long is now the acknowledged political leader of the family. But Gillis has been president for some time of the Long Family Reunion. Already, the vigorous Gillis is being touted for the governorship in some sections.

Many supporters are urging Russell Long to run next year for the governorship—a post held once by his father and three times by his uncle.

He has been silent on his plans but some of his aides are known to have discouraged him. They say he shouldn't give up his seniority in what has been called the world's most exclusive club to return to Louisiana for four years bitter in-fighting and political squabbles that usually go on in the 34-story state capitol which his father built.

Cuban Invaders Say Treatment Is 'Unbearable'

MIAMI (UPI) — Three prisoners of the Fidel Castro government, ransomed for $175,000, returned to the United States Sunday and described treatment of rebels captured in last year's abortive invasion as "unbearable."

But they said morale among the imprisoned members of the Bay of Pigs invasion force is high, despite shabby treatment from guards and illness.

A cheering crowd of about 2,500 Cuban exiles welcomed the three when they landed at Miami International Airport, their freedom purchased through donations from family and friends.

They were Jorge Govin, 33, son of the former owner of the Havana newspaper El Mundo; Ernest Fitzgerald Williams and Fabio Treyere Agrulera.

"The situation of the prisoners is unbearable," Govin said. "Physical cleanliness disappeared months ago."

He said many of the prisoners are ill, suffering from a variety of illnesses. Govin said there is no medicine and very little drinking water is made available by Castro jailers.

"Morale is very high," Govin added. "The Castro regime's thugs have not broken us."

Cadillac

It could easily be in your driveway!

What motorist wouldn't happily trade circumstances with this delighted gentleman?

For this is his first Cadillac—and its arrival in his driveway has occasioned almost as much excitement in the neighborhood as it has in his own home.

But if you appreciate his good fortune—then envy him also his wisdom.

For he has, without any question, made the move to the "car of cars" at the ideal moment. He discovered, for instance, that the Cadillac Coupe is now actually priced below eleven models of other less desirable motor cars.

Furthermore, he found that most of the features he wanted—power steering, power braking and Hydra-Matic drive—were included in the initial price of a Cadillac.

And he has already had a hint of other Cadillac economies. The gasoline gauge has barely budged off the "full" mark and the car moves so quietly that he knows he can drive it with pride for years to come.

Yet, he'll be in for a happy surprise when the time does come to sell it. For a Cadillac can be expected to retain a greater portion of its value than any other motor car.

So if you have a Cadillac in your heart—then let us show you how quickly and easily we could put one in your driveway.

Come see us at any time.

Trivia Piles Up In Library Of Congress

By DICK WEST

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The weekly information bulletin published by the Library of Congress contains a section labeled "acquisition notes."

Usually, the notes impart the tidings that somebody or other has presented to the library a collection of personal papers to have had and to hold, and to cherish forever.

The papers ordinarily consist of old letters, scrapbooks, clippings and other miscellany that the donor, who hated to throw anything away, had been accumulating for several generations.

They are placed on file in the library, thereby enriching that institution's storehouse of trivia while at the same time providing the donor with a certain sense of immortality.

I am not certain as to the procedure used in these acquisitions. In other words, I do not know whether the library calls up someone and says "May we have your papers?" or whether someone calls up the library and says "Would you like to have these papers?"

SUSPECTS DROP AND RUN

My guess is that in some cases the procedure has been for the donor to sidle up to the library under cover of darkness, deposit his papers on the doorstep, and run.

However that may be, I think that presenting one's personal papers to the library is a splendid thing to do. I certainly intend to see that the library gets my papers, and I suggest that you do likewise.

By shutting my eyes real tight, and putting my hands over my ears, I can already visualize what my "acquisition note" will look like.

On the day that it appears in the information bulletin:

"Don Vest, who represents himself as a newspaperman, has presented to the Library of Congress a substantial bundle of his personal papers, loosely bound between covers of genuine cardboard.

PAPERS NOT CATALOGUED

"Although they have been neither catalogued nor indexed, the papers appear to consist of material that Mr. Vest regarded as educational and had put aside for future reference.

"Among the documents in the collection are a clipping about a Kansas City drycleaner who owns a 100-year-old 'goffering iron';

"A report by the National Geographic Society disclosing that woodchucks can eat a ton of hay each year;

"An announcement that the Smithsonian Institution has discovered a frog with membranes between its toes, enabling it to 'parachute' from treetops to the ground;

Last Of Marines Leave Thailand

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP)— The last 1,800 U.S. Marines have left Thailand but America's Navy chief says they can move back just as fast if needed to defend the country against the Communists.

day left the defense of Thailand to the 2,000-man U.S. 27th Infanfighting, and the 90,000-man Thai army, U.S.-trained and equipped.

The American forces moved into Thailand in May when pro-Communist guerrillas in Laos had swept to the Thai border. That was the guerrillas' last big push before the formation of a coalition regime pledged to take Laos out of the cold war.

Thai officials made plain Sunday they don't have much confidence in the ability of Laos to steer a neutral course and prevent Communist infiltration into Thailand and South Viet Nam.

Adm. George W. Anderson, U.S. chief of naval operations, said in Bangkok that the Marines could return to Thailand "with utmost celerity whenever needed."

U.S. Ambassador Kenneth Todd Young declined to discuss the reason for the Marines' leaving, but he emphasized that the withdrawal had been discussed with Thai officials, first when 1,000 Marines were flown out early in July and again when it was decided to pull the entire unit out.

The Marines left their base at Udon, 40 miles below the Laos border, and were flown out to Okinawa. Support personnel and heavy equipment will be sent to Bangkok Tuesday by rail and moved out by ship two or three days later.

The Marines' departure obviously was linked to the 14-nation agreement signed in Geneva last week guaranteeing the independence and neutrality of Laos. The withdrawal apparently signified a lessening of concern in Washington over the security of Thailand's border.

In statements to the local press, the Thai government has expressed fear that the Geneva agreement does not provide sufficient guarantees to prevent an eventual Communist takeover in Laos.

Thai officials say that North Vietnamese who fought with the Pathet Lao guerrillas may never be weeded out, and the danger of Communist infiltration into Thailand will thus continue.

Public Enemy No 1 Held For Robbery

CHICAGO (AP) — Thomas H. Robinson Jr., 55, an escaped convict, who was ranked the nation's public enemy No. 1 after he kidnaped a wealthy Kentucky socialite for $50,000 ransom in 1934, was held by police today for a $14 drug store robbery.

Robinson was picked up by police Saturday minutes after the robbery and one week after his escape from the federal correctional institute in Tallahassee, Fla.

Robinson was serving a life sentence, commuted from death, for the kidnaping of Alice Speed Stoll, a wealthy Louisville society matron, in one of the nation's most notorious abductions.

Robinson was a law student at Vanderbilt University in Nashville when he disguised himself as a telephone repairman and went to the Louisville estate of C. C. Stoll, founder and president of an oil company. Stoll was the intended victim.

Only Stoll's daughter-in-law and a maid were in the house. Robinson tied the maid and abducted Mrs. Stoll, who was then 26.

American Aid To India In Danger

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States is set to pump another $500 million into India's five-year development program but further aid is endangered by India's bargaining for Soviet jet fighter planes.

Reports from New Delhi within the past week said the government of Prime Minister Nehru tentatively has decided to go ahead with negotiations for Soviet MIG21 aircraft. The issue has been smoldering for months and administration officials were appalled and baffled by India's timing on this issue.

The leaks developed almost on the eve of two events in Washington of vital importance to India's future.

Representatives of nations able and willing to help the big Asian democracy are meeting at the World Bank on Monday to work out final terms for matching U.S. funds to be contributed to the current second year of India's third five-year program of economic growth.

This is an ambitious $24-billion undertaking which must have heavy outside financing. The meeting of members of the consortium known informally as the Aid India Club inevitably focuses attention on the amount of funds which the United States is putting into India's development.

This event is taking place just before Congress moves into the final round of decision-making on the Kennedy administration's new foreign aid program. There has always been controversy in Congress over U.S. help to India. And now the administration is deeply concerned lest the prospect of closer military ties between New Delhi and Moscow sharpen this controversy to an extreme degree.

Some leaders believe Indian Defese Minister Krishna Menon has engineered the timing of negotiations between New Delhi and Moscow to provoke an angry reaction in the United States in order to weaken links between India and the West and tighten India's relations with the Soviet Union.

Congress already has voted a $4.8-billion foreign aid authorization bill but the actual funds for the aid program have still to be appropriated. It is then that members of Congress may become involved in a major battle over help for India.

The World Bank organized the Aid India Club in 1958 at a time of extreme financial need in India. In May 1961, the six nations and bank representatives forming the cosortium met here and offered to contribute a total of $2.28 billion in credits to the first two years of the program.

Of that total the United States' offer was $1.04 billion subject to the condition that other governments match the U.S. money dollar-for-dollar.

Last year the United States committed the first $545 million of its offer leaving $500 million for this year. Canada, France, West Germany, Japan and the United Kingdom already have agreed to put up matching funds of $280 million. In the meeting Monday, they are expected to be joined by Austria and the Netherlands as new members of the aid club, together with Belgium and probably Italy.

This group of eight or nine countries is reportedly ready to put up an additional total of $170 million which would bring the volume of matching funds up to $450 million. With a few additional pledges or increases in commitments already made, the gap would be closed, and American officials are confident it will be.

What happens hereafter, however, is a question.

The Western powers have tried unsuccessfully to get the Indians to take British rather than Soviet fighter planes for their air force.

There have been well-based reports that Krishna Menon wants to buy about two squadrons of MIGs along with a deal for the manufacture of the aircraft in India.

Such a development would be a setback to the West's long-range hopes for India as a neutralist country with strong Western ties as well as very friendly relations with the Soviet Union.

HERO AWARDS

4 Persons Cited For Saving Life

Fast action which saved the life of a Monroe teenager earlier this summer drew commendation here Sunday. Four who saved Charles R. Blaylock's life received certificates of heroism.

Ouachita chapter, Order of DeMolay, presented certificates to Dr Jack T Jackson, Monroe physician who used emergency measures to graft a severed artery in Blaylock's leg at St Francis Hospital

Russell Blaylock and Richard Bagwell friends of the injured youth, who rushed him to the hospital after he accidentally shot himself in the leg at the Selman Field firing range

Police Officer Willie Warner, motorcycle patrolman who intercepted the auto, sensed an emergency, and without halting, escorted it to the hospital at speeds ranging up to 95 miles per hour

At the time, Dr Jackson said that Blaylock, who suffered a great loss of blood, could not have been saved if he had arrived at the hospital five minutes later.

J. Ellis Ross, Shriner and Louisiana fifth district highway engineer, presented the Jackson award. Monroe Police Chief James C Kelly presented the award to Warner, and Shriner Carl Thompson presented the other two awards

Last Of Stolen Securities Are Recovered

NEW YORK (AP)—Authorities have recovered the remaining $93,500 of the negotiable securities stolen from Carl M. Loeb, Rhoades & Co., a Wall Street brokerage firm.

Police said an unsigned postcard led them to an accused underworld fence who turned informer and helped break the case.

In the process, police said Sunday they solved a safecracking burglary at a Manhattan grocery firm and recovered part of that loot — and $84,000 certified check which the accused man tried to cash in Las Vegas, Nev.

The postcard was sent to the brokerage house from which more than $122,000 worth of stocks was stolen. The card said: "If you want to find your stock go to the bakery on 14th St., Manhattan."

Dist. Atty. Frank S. Hogan's investigators checked bakeries. At one doughnut shop they were told that Louis Amendola might help them recover the stolen securities.

Amendola, 33, detectives said, admitted a man involved in a grocery safecracking had part of the missing stocks.

Proper Drainage Is Essential For Irrigation Of Row Crops

A good drainage system is essential to effective irrigation of row crops.

Morris, who this year was selected as the Beouf Soil Conservation District's outstanding farmer, farms on seven places. He owns part of the land, and the rest is leased.

PROBLEM

"Using irrigation is what started us getting our drainage systems set up better," he explained. "When we would irrigate about two inches of water on a field and then get a two inch rain we had a problem of too much water.

That is what happened on a 50 acre field several yers ago."

Last year, Morris' brother, O. G., became a partner with him in the operation of the various farm lands.

Cotton and cattle are the principal enterprises.

Morris explained the specialization this way.

"We specialize in beef cattle and cotton. I found out a long time ago that it is better to drop corn and beans and take on cattle and cotton and not be wrapped up in too many things at one time."

On the home farm where Morris lives there are 1,357 acres of land devoted mostly to cotton and pastures for cattle, with some corn and soybeans.

BROOD CATTLE

On all the places he and his brother farm about 2,500 acres. They have about 100 grade brood cattle of Angus and Hereford types, and sell fat calves.

Charles Morris explained that he started following soil and water conservation practices about seven or eight years ago, and "my father before me did conservation work, too."

"I started out with a lot of pot holes and low spots in the fields," said Morris. "It takes a long time to get the work done. We have only so much time, and can get only so many projects a year. Since we had a long dry spell here this summer, a lot has been done."

An area of land that had been in pasture until this year, is being converted to row crop production as the result of drainage work.

A slough through a field has been eliminated, providing drainage for 70 acres and adding 10 acres to the production total. The slough ran through a section of cotton land and interrupted the continuity of the field.

About two or three acres of the slough were left to form a pond on which geese can be headquartered. The Morris' plan to obtain about 200 or 300 geese to clean out grass from cotton rows.

Charles Morris explained that "there are a few insecticides that won't kill or injure the geese, and we don't use much anyway."

A considerable amount of land smoothing has been carried out on the farm.

"There are too many ridges to outright level," he said.

One of the objectives in the farming operations is to use bigger equipment which requires better squaring up of rows and improving of condition of slopes.

To eliminate water pocketing in the field, around 5,000 cubic yards of dirt was moved in the current project.

Assisting the Morris' on the work through technical means were Hale Boyd, engineering technician, John Moncrief, engineer, and Joe Morris, superintendent of district equipment, all associated with the Soil Conservation Service.

Screwworms Infestations On Increase

A new screwworm infestation found in DeSoto Parish calls for increased watchfulness on the part of livestock owners to keep down the spread of this costly pest, according to the Animal Disease Eradication Division of the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

The latest positive case was found in a farm herd near Grand Cane. The herd has been sprayed and other herds in the area have been carefully surveyed. This is the second case reported in Louisiana this year, the first having been found in West Carroll Parish more than a month ago.

REPORTS

Farmers throughout the state are being asked to report suspected screwworms to their veterinarians or their county agents.

Louisiana cattlemen are cooperating this year with a federal and state program to eradicate the screwworm from the southwest United Statss.

POSSIBILITIES CITED

Farm Program Outlook Varied

In 1961 the Kennedy administration got Congress to set up the present emergency feed grain program offering payments to farmers for reducing acreages of corn, sorghum grain and barley.

The 1958 law provided for a corn price support of $1.06 a bushel or 14 cents less than had been in effect under a previous program providing for planting allotments.

Under the present emergency feed grain program, corn is supported at $1.20 a bushel but price assistance is limited to growers who reduce acreages at least 20 per cent. Payments are made on the idled acres as is done in the case of this year's temporary wheat program.

Should no legislation be enacted covering feed grains, the price support on corn would drop to around $1 a bushel and growers would be free to plant whatever acreage they desired. There would be no government payments—subsidies which this year will total about $1.2 billion on wheat and the feed grains.

DEBATE TOPIC

The 1958 act insofar as it applies to corn has been a subject of much debate in and out of Congress. Critics claim that it encourages overproduction by taking off all controls. Backers of the law deny this. They say that government reports show the great bulk of the present corn surplus was accumulated before the 1958 act went into effect and under programs providing for acreage allotments.

Backers of the 1958 act also contend that its provision for lower price supports encourages expanded use of corn in livestock feeding and hence tends to reduce the amount moving into surplus stocks.

Gas Tax Refund Forms Sent Out

By JASPER J. JOYCE JR.
Ouachita Parish County Agent

Some farmers have received or will be receiving in the mail from the Internal Revenue Service Form 2240, claim for refund of federal tax on gasoline used on a farm for 1962.

This form has to be filled out and returned before October 4, and it covers the period from July 1, 1961 through June 30, 1962.

Remember, in filling out these forms, only fill out the amount of gasoline that you can substantiate on your claim. If you don't receive your form you may contact the Monroe office in the Post Office Building, Jackson and Grammont streets. I have a few in my office which I will be glad to mail you. Just call FA 3-2251.

FALL GARDEN

I would like again to remind you to make preparations for the planting of your fall garden. The vegetables that you have left over from your spring garden should not be plowed under as you would in the spring, because it causes such a heat that it can destroy the germination of the seed and slow down the growth of the newly planted garden.

You can pile the residue in a corner of your garden and let it decay in the winter, then spread it back in your garden in the spring and all grass and weeds should be killed by the heat that it would create in rotting.

Don't forget to watch out for any screwworms or maggots that might occur with your livestock and bring in suspect specimens so they can be sent off for identification. Let's cooperate with the officials in the southwest where they are trying to eradicate screwworms by releasing sterile male flies.

HOPEFUL

We hope in a short period of time our area will be completely free of the screwworms. This is a bad pest that bothers us every year.

Some agricultural officials studying the overall national population increase and the declining number of farm people, forecast as great an advance in agriculture by 1970 as was made in the past 10 years.

Fewer workers on our farms will feed more than 215 million Americans then, 30 million more than now, according to the experts. One farm worker will produce enough to feed and clothe about 50 persons on the average.

FIRST OPEN COTTON in Franklin Parish was reported last week by Mrs. D. A. LaBorde, who is holding up two open bolls taken from a 15 acre field on her farm east of Bayou Macon on Winnsboro Route One. The Stoneville 213 variety was being worked by her son-in-law, Royce Bryan. It was planted March 28. (Photo by Otis Hassell)

Attacks Spurred Fire Prevention

The only enemy aerial attacks ever made on the mainland United States were two Japanese bombing missions in September 1942, aimed at setting the West Coast forests on fire.

The incendiary bombs did start fires on the National Forests in Oregon, but they did not light the vast, panic-causing fires the Japanese had hoped for. Instead, the attacks helped to start the nationwide forest fire prevention program symbolized today by Smokey Bear.

IN CONCORDIA PARISH

Woman Charged After Shooting

VIDALIA (Special — A 40-year-old woman here was charged with manslaughter in connection with the shooting of her neighbor Harry Wooten, 43, the Concordia Parish Sheriff's Dept. said.

Mrs. Dora Reed was released on a $1,500 bond and will go before a grand jury in October.

The victim was shot Friday night with a .12 gauge shotgun. Witnesses testifying at the coroner's investigation Saturday said he was killed when he threatened to break into Mrs. Reed's home.

Wooten had been drinking and talking loudly, witnesses allegedly informed officers. They said he threatened to force his way into the woman's house, saying, he was going to get a gun and then return.

After Wooten returned to his neighbor's home located on the Mississippi River levee near Riverside Church here, Mrs. Reed told officers she saw something in his hand. She said she fired one shot over his head and then aimed the next shot at Wooten.

The shot caught Wooten in the chest as he stood midway in the street.

Wooten, an oil field hand, was a native of Arkansas and employed by an oil firm at Baskin.

2 Persons Hurt Near Ruston In Auto Accident

RUSTON (Special) — A 17-year-old Ruston girl and a Louisiana State University student suffered injuries Saturday when a skidding car slammed sideways into a bridge abutment 10 miles south of here on highway 167 caving in the side in which the two youths were ridding.

Miss Penny Brooks of Ruston and Tommy Ponder are in Lincoln General Hospital here. Miss Brooks sustained a fractured pelvis, and Ponder a crushed vertebra, broken ribs, cuts and bruises.

Miss Carolyn Pratt, 17, of Ruston and Tommy Kirkpatrick, driver of the car, of Ruston, were released from the hospital after being treated for minor injuries.

The four youths were en route to a Jonesboro swimming party. At about 2:45 p.m. their car hit a wet spot in the pavement, skidded, went out of control and crashed into the bridge abutment, according to Napoleon Barntey, a Ruston Negro, who was an eyewitness.

Town Without Water For Several Hours

EDWARDSVILLE, Ill. (AP) — Edwardsville residents carried water in buckets, cans and pitchers to their homes from distribution points Sunday before water service was restored to 3,250 homes.

The community of 12,000 persons was without running water from 7:30 p.m. Saturday until Sunday night, and then taps issued only trickles. The Water Department said normal pressure should be restored by noon today.

Smith Services Are Scheduled At Area Church

WISNER (Special) — Funeral services for L. G. Smith, 49, of Wisner, were scheduled for 10 a.m. today at Sicily Island Methodist Church with the Rev. J. J. Davis officiating, assisted by the Rev. James Brown.

Mr. Smith was the father of Miss Carolyn Smith of Monroe, and the brother of Miss Thelma Smith of Monroe, and Mrs. K. O. Moss Sr., West Monroe.

Burial was to be in Highland Park Cemetery at Sicily Island under direction of First National Funeral Home of Winnsboro.

Mr. Smith, a native of Sicily Island and member of the Methodist Church there, died Sunday morning in a Sterlington Clinic after an illness of several months.

Other survivors include his widow, Mrs. Ruby Bass Smith, Wisner; four other daughters, Mrs. Evelyn Davis, Miss Rita Pearl Smith and Miss Jennie Lee Smith, all of Wisner, and Mrs. Marie Wilson, Homestead, Fla.; two sons, L. G. Smith, Jr., and Robert Edward Smith, both of Wisner; a brother, E. D. Smith Jr., Baton Rouge, and a grandson.

Gregory Simon

WINNSBORO (Special) — Graveside services were held at 10 a.m. Monday for Gregory Simon, infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald B. Simon of Winnsboro.

Services were in the New Ogden cemetery at Liddieville, under direction of Mulhearn Funeral home.

The infant died at birth Sunday in Winnsboro.

In addition to his parents, he is survived by his paternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Iley Simon, and maternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Winters, all of Winnsboro.

Child Gets Wig After Hair Growth Destroyed

NORMAN, Okla. (AP) — Paty Lyn Bost, 4, received a very special birthday gift from her parents—a wig.

Paty has no hair because of a burn and subsequent anesthetic. The hair growth was destroyed when she was 7 months old.

Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ted Bost, say she removes her wig each night and places it carefully on its form which she calls "kitty," saying:

"You wear it tonight, kitty, and I'll use it in the morning."

"She had over 29 hours of ether when doctors operated to save her hand and arm, after she burned it on the stove," said Mrs. Bost. "Doctors warned us that the anesthetic might affect her brain or her hair growth.

"So, we're grateful that the result was something we could alter."

Brown Funeral Services Pend

Funeral services were pending early today for Luzon J. Brown, 49-year-old resident of West Monroe, who died Sunday afternoon after suffering a heart attack.

The rites will be under the direction of Peters Funeral Home of Monroe.

Mr. Brown, a maintenance worker for the Louisiana Highway Department, resided at 311 Iris street, West Monroe.

A native of Choudrant, Mr. Brown had resided in West Monroe for the past 18 years. He was a veteran of World War II.

He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Bertha Brown, West Monroe; two sisters, Mrs. Jonnie Bonnett, West Monroe, and Mrs. Valine Head, Newellton; three brothers, Burdie A. Brown, David W. and Thomas A. Brown, all of West Monroe; and a half-brother, Emmett McDaniel, West Monroe.

Woman Fatally Shot; Baby Saved

BENTONVILLE, Ark. (UPI) — A 16-year-old pregnant woman was shot fatally at her home Sunday night, but three doctors delivered her baby a few minutes later.

Deputy sheriff R. D. Arnold said today the baby, a girl, was still doing fine according to the last report he had from the Bates Memorial Hospital.

Killed was Mrs. Myra Red.

Arnold said the shooting was at the apartment house where she and her husband, Ronald, 22, lived. He said she was hit once by a shot from a 22 caliber pistol. Other than that he would not give any details.

Author Expects Citation For Sabotage In Africa

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP)—Author Alan Paton, a foe of South Africa's strict racial policies, says he expects to be cited under the government's new sabotage law.

Paton, who heads South Africa's multiracial Liberal party, said Sunday he was questioned by a member of the security branch police last Thursday.

South Africa's government is expected to announce this week the first of those "banned" under the sabotage law. The government says the law is necessary to strike at communism and other forms of subversion.

Banned persons will be prohibited from attending meetings and their comments and writings — whether political or not—cannot be quoted in South Africa.

One of those expected to be banned is Albert Luthuli, an ex-Zulu chief and Nobel Peace Prize winner who angered the government by his antisegregation leadership among Africans.

Bond Election Slated In Area

RIDGECREST (Special) A bond issue election has been set by Mayor Carlos Rabb and the Ridgecrest Board of Aldermen for Sept. 8 to determine whether the aldermen shall proceed with improvements here.

The proposal includes providing adequate water and sewerage systems by issuing bonds of $49,000 and levying a five mill tax for every dollar on all property within the city limits.

Art Thieves Hunted

HAARLEM, Holland (UPI) — Dutch police called in Interpol Sunday to help them in their hunt for the thieves who stole $150,000 worth of paintings from a villa near here.

The four paintings included a self-portrit by Rembrandt.

Mantle May Miss All-Star Game; Has Sprained Knee

Nationals Are 6-5 Favorites To Win Scrap

By LEO H. PETERSEN

CHICAGO (UPI) — Limping Mickey Mantle was a doubtful starter today for 1962's second All-Star game, in which the favored National League sought to make it a "sweep" by sending southpaw Johnny Podres against the American League's Camilo Pascual.

Mantle suffered a slight strain in his left knee running out an infield bouncer in Sunday's second game against the Chicago White Sox, and Yankee manager Ralph Houk, who also manages the AL All-Stars, said he would wait to see how the knee was before making up his mind about starting the sometimes fragile Yankee star.

If Mantle is unable to play then Al Kaline of the Detroit Tigers, named Sunday by Houk to replace the ailing Jim Landis of the White Sox, more than likely will get the call as Mickey's replacement.

Outside of Mantle's doubtful status, the same players who started the first All-Star game in Washington earlier this month, again will take the field at 2 p.m. EDT at Wrigley Field, home of the Chicago Cubs, with the Nationals a 6-5 favorite to win their second All-Star game of the season and square the series at 16 victories each with one tie.

Podres, who got the call to start today's game when Warren Spahn of the Milwaukee Braves, Hutchinson's first choice, came down with a sore elbow, has been the Los Angeles Dodgers' "stopper" since Sandy Koufax hurt his pitching hand. He, too, is a late replacement, taking teammate Don Drysdale's place on the NL squad.

Pascual, the Minnesota Twins right hander who probably has the best curve ball in the business, got the call from Houk in what may be the last of the two-game a year All-Star classics.

Besides Mantle's "if" status, there was the problem of the weather to contend with. In the event of rain — and the weather forecast said there might be scattered thundershowers — the game would be moved back to a 4 p.m. EDT start. Wrigley Field is the only major league baseball park without lights.

ALTERNATE DATE SET

Should no game be played today, a final attempt will be made to get the game in Tuesday, starting at noon EDT. No NL games are scheduled for Tuesday, but the AL has three night games on tap. That would mean the AL All-Stars would have to leave immediately after the game on Tuesday to join their respective clubs.

The two All-Star Game business began in 1959 in an effort by the players to enrich their pension fund. But it looks as if the leagues, and Commissioner Ford Frick, too, will have no more of the two a year business, although the players unanimously went on record as favoring the continuation of the present format.

That means the nationals will start with Dick Groat, pirate shortstop, leading off, followed by Roberto Clemente of the Pirates in right field, Willie Mays of the Giants in center, Orlando Cepeda of the Giants at first, Tommy Davis of the Dodgers in left, Ken Boyer of the Cards at third, Del Crandall of the Braves behind the plate, Bill Mazeroski of the Pirates at second, and Podres on the mound.

ROLLINS LEADS OFF

For the Americans it will be third baseman Rich Rollins of the Twins leading off with second baseman Billy Moran of the Angels next in line. Roger Maris of the Yankees, playing right field, will bat third, followed by Mantle or Kaline in center, Jim Gentile of the Orioles at first, catcher Earl Battey of the Twins, Leon Wagner of the Angels in left, Luis Aparicio of the White Sox at short and Pascual pitching.

In addition to Podres, Art Mahaffey of Philadelphia was an added player for the second game along with Frank Robinson of the Reds, Eddie Mathews of the Braves and Billy Williams and George Altman of the Cubs. Altman replaces San Francisco's Felipe Alou, who has an injured leg.

THE MIDAS LEAGUE

2nd Golden-Egg Goose Is Gagger

By OSCAR FRALEY

CHICAGO (UPI) — The gentleman who wrote Grimm's Fairy Tales should be in Wrigley Field today to record the fable enacted by a prize bunch of sleeping beauties.

What will transpire, and then expire, it is hoped, will be a second road showing of "Maury and the Beanstalk." To intrigue the children, it is billed as the major leagues' second All-Star Game.

In reality it is a gouge which puts to shame the storied surgery performed on the goose which laid the golden eggs.

Up until a few years ago, the hit and run heroes put the dodge on this extravaganza whenever possible. They were risking injury for free and were delighted to take a day off for a bit of rest. Then they worked out a deal whereby the proceeds went into their pension fund. Thus, being astute enough to add one and one and make it come out two, in 1959 they inaugurated a second All-Star Game.

King Midas never had it so good but even the club owners, long noted for their myopia, finally came to see that this was throwing those Little Red Riding Hoods in the bleacher seats to the avaricious wolves.

They gave them a day off before the first All-Star Game but this one is played strictly from scramble. The ball clubs all had full schedules Sunday and most of the hired hands must be back on the job Tuesday.

FIGHT FOR PENNANT

In this rapid interval, the stars of the Los Angeles Dodgers and San Francisco Giants, who are all hooked up in a duel for the National League pennant, had to make like homesick angels. After their game Sunday, they fled to iron birds to get to Chicago in time for today's contest. The schedule gets them a break in that they don't have to be back for league action until Wednesday.

But look at the Yankees. They had a doubleheader on Sunday, four of their top men flew into Chicago Sunday night, they play today and on Tuesday they must be back in Washington to resume the conference scuffle. Take into consideration, too, that Washington always gives the Yankees fits.

Add, too, that Mickey Mantle is nursing a sore set of pins. Yogi Berra needs all the steam his aging bones can generate, Ralph Terry worked Sunday and is merely commuting for vastly unappreciated exercise and Roger Maris is not particularly noted for a willingness to extend himself in what he considers unnecessary circumstances.

PLAYERS TAKE IT EASY

All of which accentuates the fact that even as chief beneficiaries of the clicking turnstiles in this second All-Star contest, the players en toto cannot be expected to perform as if the pennant were at stake. Proof of that was the sleeping beauty treatment they gave it in the first game at Washington which permitted little Maury Wills and creaking Stan Musial to steal the show.

Musial started the nationals to victory with a base hit. Wills went in and ran for him, and kept right on running—one of the few who gave it the professional all-out try in defiance of strawberries and possible broken bones in a mean-nothing cause.

Ralph Houk, the Yankee manager who pilots the American Leaguers as boss of his league's last year winners, summed it up before the first game.

"I'd sure like to win this one," he said, "but my mind naturally has to be on the pennant race."

His mind, and that of every other guy who will be out there giving it the slow, cautious and easy. The pension fund is great but it's no Prince Charming. One kiss is all these sleeping beauties can stand and it seems obvious the time has come to knock off this second game gouge.

Yanks Option Pepitone

NEW YORK (UPI) — The New York Yankees optioned outfielder-first baseman Joe Pepitone to Richmond of the International League today to make room for Tony Kubek, to be released this week from the Army. Pepitone played in 53 games for the Yanks, batting .244 and hitting five home runs.

Swartz shut out Monroe, 6-0, Southside edged West Monroe, 7-6, and Chatham outscored Drew, 19-13, Sunday in Delta League baseball action.

Sonny Ramsey struck out 15, walked only one and limited Monroe to seven hits in recording the win for Swartz. Ronnie Dees led the winners with three hits and teammates Jimmy Towery and Hugh Coleman added two each. Butch McMillan, who was charged with the loss, was Monroe's top hitter with three safeties in four at-bats while Bob Betz and James Hibbard collected two apiece.

N. M. Welch and Bob Saterfield formed Southside's winning combination and Saterfield, H. B. Bennett and Glenn Johnson all went three for five to pace the winners' 13-hit attack. Brolesfield was three for five and Crawford, who took the loss, managed two hits in five trips to the plate for West Monroe.

MAJOR LEAGUE ROUNDUP

Howard Was Giant-Killer In Dodgers' Series Sweep

By MILTON RICHMAN
UPI Sports Writer

Frank Howard murdered the Giants, and the Dodgers can hardly wait to spring him on the Yankees this fall.

Pretty soon now, the Yankees, with a fat five-game lead in the American League, will send their scouts out to collect information for the World Series.

Howard did an unmerciful job on the Giants Sunday for the third straight game as the Dodgers breezed to a lopsided 11-1 victory and extended their national league lead to four games.

The outsized outfielder drove in five runs with four hits, including a homer, his third in as many games with the giants and his 20th of the season.

DRYSDALE WINS 19TH

Don Drysdale clicked off his ninth straight win and 19th of the season with a six-hitter. The only run off him was Willie Mays' 32nd homer leading off the seventh.

With all the teams taking a break today because of the second All-Star Game, the Dodgers are sitting pretty with a four-game winning streak and eight victories in their last nine starts.

The Yankees are in even better shape despite their split with the White Sox Sunday. Chicago snapped a five-game Yankee winning streak with a 6-2 victory in the nightcap after losing the opener, 7-4.

Charley Maxwell, always at his best on Sunday, hit three homers for the White Sox, including two in the nightcap. Juan Pizarro, kayoed by a five-run rally in the first inning of the opener, came back to gain his 10th triumph in the finale by holding the Yanks to one hit in 4 1/3 innings after relieving starter Mike Joyce.

REDS SWEEP PAIR

Next to the Dodgers, the Cincinnati Reds are causing the most talk in the NL. Winners in 12 of their last 13 games, the Reds swept a pair from the Milwaukee Braves, 8-6 and 2-1, but they're still 8½ games back and may have started their push a bit too late.

The St. Louis Cardinals swept the New York Mets, 6-5 and 5-1. Philadelphia defeated Pittsburgh, 8-1, and the Houston Colts ended a six-game losing streak with a 3-1 nightcap win over the Chicago Cubs after losing the opener, 4-2.

In the AL, the Los Angeles Angels downed the Detroit Tigers, 12-8, in the nightcap after dropping the first game, 7-6. Cleveland beat Minnesota, 3-2, in the first of two, then lost the 11-inning nightcap, 7-5. Kansas City beat Baltimore, 7-3, and Boston licked Washington, 4-2.

Legion Junior Tourneys Open On Two Fronts

Seven Louisiana American Legion Junior baseball clubs open simultaneous tournaments on two fronts tonight at Shreveport and New Orleans to determine finalists for the state championship series.

The T. L. James Contractors of Ruston, the Electrical Distributors of Lake Charles, and Royal Crown Cola of Shreveport are in the north division event at Shreveport.

In New Orleans, the contenders are two New Orleans clubs, the Tulane Shirts and Stumpf-Westsiders, and the Thibodaux Blues and Knights of Columbus 4030 of Baton Rouge.

The winners of the tournaments will play for the state championship left vacant when Brown-Rivers-Scogin of Monroe was dethroned last week in district play by the Ruston Contractors.

Ruston and Lake Charles open the Shreveport tourney at 7:45 o'clock tonight at SPAR Stadium. The winner plays Shreveport Tuesday afternoon at 3 o'clock, and the first two losers appear in an elimination game at 7:45 p.m. Tuesday. Tuesday's winners clash at 6 p.m. Wednesday to settle the issue in a possible double header.

Wins Putting Title

LA HABRA, Calif. (UPI) — Daryl Freeman, 19, of Bristol, Tenn., scored his first tournament victory Sunday when he won the Professional Putters Association $3,000 Pacific Open by seven strokes.

4 Go On Trial In Cage Cases

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — Four men charged with conspiring to bribe college basketball players were to go on trial in Superior Court here today.

The four, indicted by the Durham County grand jury in June, are Lou Brown, former University of North Carolina basketball player, Gerald Vogel, former University of Alabama basketball player, and two New York men, Aaron Wagman and Joseph Greene.

All but Wagman are free under bonds of $3,000 each. Solicitor Dan K. Edwards said Wagman was expected to appear today with the other three.

Bouchee Shipped Back

ST. LOUIS (UPI)—Ed Bouchee is still riding the Syracuse shuttle.

The big first baseman, recalled by the New York Mets less than two weeks ago from their International League farm club, was returned to the Chiefs Sunday for the second time this season. In his place New York purchased infielder Richard Herrscher from Syracuse.

SUSPENDED Boston Red Sox pitcher Gene Conley absent from the team since he left the club in New York Thursday and missed that night's double header in Washington, was located Sunday in his trailer home at Foxboro, Mass. Conley, in a talk with newsmen who located him, would not explain where he had been, claiming it was a "personal matter." He said he would contact club officials soon because it is "my obligation." Houston Asking Cerv Waivers; Browne Shipped

HOUSTON (AP) — The Houston Colts optioned Pidge Browne to their Oklahoma City farm club and asked waivers on Bob Cerv today.

If waivers are obtained, Cerv will be given his unconditional release.

The move cleared the way for the Colts, still moving desperately to halt their backslide in the National League, to bring up reinforcements from their farm system.

Both players have been used largely as pinch hitters, but both are first baseman-outfielders by trade.

After considerable early season success as a pinch hitter, the 33-year-old Browne's average had dipped to .202. Cerv, who had started three games in left field, was hitting .233.

Dixie Host Tournament To Drop One

The Dixie Host Tournament tonight will eliminate one of its four contenders for the official host role of the seventh annual Little Boys Dixie World Series to be held in West Monroe August 20-25.

The host tournament, which opened Saturday in West Monroe, resumes this evening at 6 o'clock with one-time losers East and West All-Stars meeting in an elimination game. All-Stars of West Monroe's North and South leagues, winners in Saturday's openers, meet at 8 o'clock tonight.

The first game winner and second game loser on tonight's card appear in a single elimination game Tuesday evening at 8:00 o'clock for the right to face the all-winner Wednesday.

All games are being played in the Little Boys North Seventh Street Park where the August classic will take place.

BATTING — Frank Howard, Dodgers, again sparked attack as National League leaders completed a sweep over runner-up San Francisco in their vital three-game series, knocking in five runs with homer and three singles in 11-1 romp.

PITCHING — Don Drysdale, Dodgers, won his 19th of season and ninth in a row with six-hit, 11-1 victory over Giants, striking out five and not allowing a walk.

Dodgers Recall Richert

LOS ANGELES (UPI) —Lefthander Pete Richert has been recalled from Omaha by the Los Angeles Dodgers to take up some of the slack created by the finger injury to star southpaw Sandy Koufax. The Dodgers then sent Joe Moeller to their American Association farm on waivers.

CANADIAN OPEN

Kroll Credits Caddy, Friends

MONTREAL (AP) — It was six years between trips to the winner's circle for veteran golfer Ted Kroll, and it took a 35-foot putt and a caddy with lots of friends to help end the long drought.

Kroll captured the $30,000 Canadian Open with a blistering 32 on the back nine for a final round two-under-par 70 Sunday and a 72-hole total of 278, two strokes better than Charlie Sifford.

It was Kroll's first tournament victory since he won the Tam O'Shanter World Championship at Chicago in 1956. The 42-year-old Fort Lauderdale, Fla., veteran was leading money winner that year.

Kroll, who started the third round tied with Sifford, 39-year-old cigar-smoking Los Angeles pro who was five times U.S. Negro champion, dropped three strokes to Sifford on the first nine.

Then his caddy, Russel Witt 17, of suburban St. Lambert, began talking him home.

"I was trying too hard and my caddy told me to cool down a bit. I don't remember his exact words," Kroll said. "He just told me to take it easy. So I said, 'Okay, we'll give it a good go, what are you yelling at me for? I'll try.'"

Kroll battled back to even with Sifford, who was playing in the threesome in front, by the 14th hole.

"Then on the 15th I hit a drive and a four iron, and my caddy told me Charlie had bogied the hole. So I thought I could sneak one in."

Kroll knocked in a 35-foot putt for a birdie and the two-stroke lead he carried in.

"I don't know how my caddy knew what Charlie was doing—he must be psychic," Kroll said.

Actually, young Witt had friends shuttling back and forth to keep tabs on Sifford and run the results back to him.

The victory was worth $4,300 to Kroll. His biggest previous payday this year was $2,450 for a fourth place tie at the doral open in Miami.

Sifford won $3,000, for his 280 total. He finished with a 72.

Give Your Furnishings Treat; Call Hudson Duraclean Firm

Your furnishings always deserve the best treatment and the best treatment we know of is the cleaning process known as Duraclean. The firm in Monroe that is dealer for this system is Hudson Upholstery and Duraclean Service, 5312 DeSiard Street.

A. J. Hudson, owner, believes in keeping up with trends in his business — he just returned from a Duraclean workshop in Chicago — and no home owner who wants upholstery and carpets cleaned can go wrong by calling him.

Duraclean is a cleaning process that has won the commendation of Parents Magazine, bears the Use — tested seal of McCalls Magazine, and also the seal of the American Research and Testing Laboratory.

This amazing process that leaves your furnishings 'Flower fresh' has been pleasing to discriminating homemakers since 1930. Instead of scrubbing, Duraclean spreads a gentle foam over the areas, gently pulling up the dirt. There is no shrinkage, no soaking, no mechanical scrubbing, no harsh soaps or alkalis.

SPECIAL NOTE: Hudson offers pick — up and delivery service on throw rugs.

Angry Britons Hurl Tomatoes, Muss Mosley

MANCHESTER, England (UPI) —A jeering crowd of anti-Fascists Sunday roughed up Sir Oswald Mosley during a free for all in which members of his extremist British Union movement marched two miles through the streets of Manchester.

Angry Britons hurled tomatoes, cabbages and English pennies as big as an American half dollar at the marchers and occasionally broke through police lines to set upon Mosley's group with fists. Two noise bombs went off and one woman swung at Mosley with her handbag.

About 40 members of Mosley's group were marching in the procession, protected by 100 policemen from the angry crowds. But time and again the spectators charged past the police to attack. Mosley himself was knocked down when several persons swung at him. He scrambled to his feet as police fought off the attackers.

They cordoned off an area at an empty lot where Mosley staged a meeting after the march. His microphone went dead shortly after he started speaking.

Gleason Gets 7-Car Train For $90,000

By JAMES BACON
AP Movie-Television Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) —Jackie Gleason, who needs more room than most travelers, will return to New York in a seven-car private train costing $90,000.

Drinks will be served.

The train, following a zig zag course will also be loaded with dancing girls and six-piece Dixieland band.

"It's the only way to go," Gleason told a newsman.

Gleason never flies—on planes.

The high-living comedian said the train will depart from Union Station here Aug. 9, and stop in Phoenix for a day.

"I plan to march in a parade there and attend three parties," he explained.

Next he heads north for Denver.

"I'll play 18 holes of golf there and then maybe another nine in Colorado Springs."

Other stops on the 10 day trek will be Kansas City, St. Louis, Chicago, Pittsburgh, Baltimore and New York.

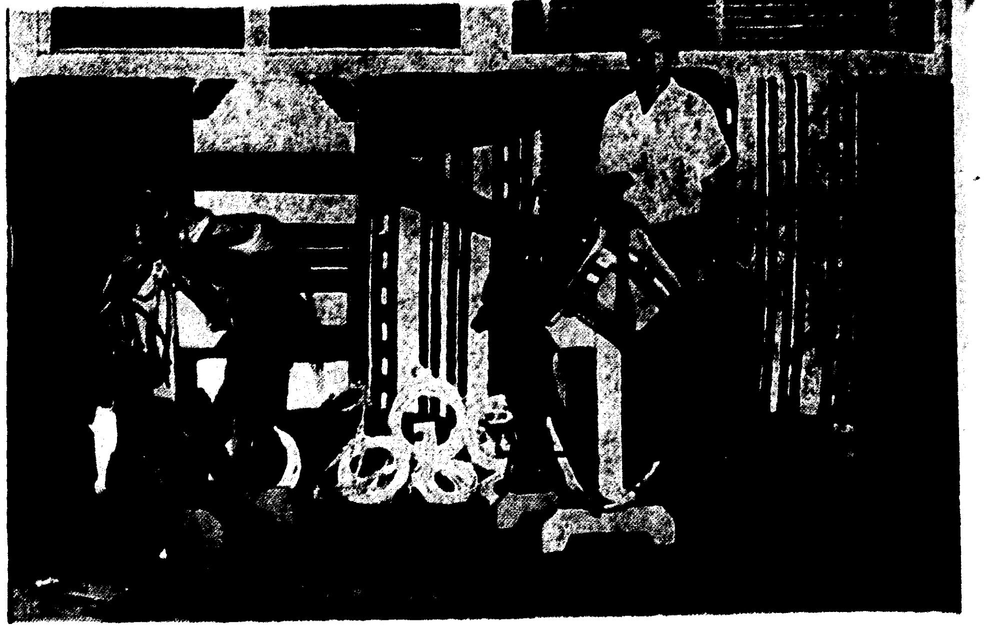
"Upon arrival at Penn Station in New York, we will proceed to the restaurant of a certain obnoxious drunken friend of mine, hoping that he will have prepared bird and bottle for the weary traveler," said Gleanson.

An entourage of some 45 people will join Gleason's wagon train on the rocks special. The trip, however, will not be all pleasure.

Part of the group will include Sue Ann Langdon, his new CBS-TV costar, several television writers and the producers and three secretaries.

The dancing girls also will be featured on Gleason's return to television in September.

MONROE OFFICE Equipment, 510 Walnut street, has a complete supply of school and executive brief cases as indicated above. You'll find also everything for the student —from kindergarten to college senior. Shown above are MOE employes, Mrs. Estelle Stevens, left, and Mary Higginbotham. See story above. (Staff photo)



ROBERT SNOWDEN, employe of Royal Feed and Seed on DeSiard street, stands by two saddles in stock at the firm. Royal Feed are dealers for Hereford and Jumbo saddles—names that mean the best in their field. If they don't have what you want, they can order it for you. Check with them today about their large variety of saddles. (Staff photo)

Royal Feed Carries Best In Saddles For All Uses

Royal Feed and Seed on DeSiard Street has saddles in stock for every use, every style and every pocketbook. Handling the Jumbo and Hereford lines, Royal Feed can easily boast they can supply you with just the saddle you need — and if they don't have it, they can order it for you.

As all riders, ranchers and rodeo enthusiasts know, it is very important to select a saddle that is the proper seat length for him or her. This is just one of many considerations when buying a saddle. But with the wide variety of Jumbo and Hereford products, you can easily find just what you're looking for.

Royal Feed has models for youngsters, too, and they're reasonably priced. The Brahma saddles for boys are something to see. They bear such names as the Oklahoma Kid, Boys Special, Candy Kid, the Wonder Youth and the 'Santa Fe'.

Other saddles — all hand tooled — include models for barrel racing, roping, cutting, quarter horse, and many others for work and show.

Ask Royal Feed and Seed to look at their catalogue of Hereford and Jumbo saddles. The workmanship will astound you. They're in the finest leather, hand made by veterans in the business.

26th Rider Arrives In New England

CONCORD, N. H. (AP) —The 26th Negro "Reverse Freedom Rider" from the south arrived in Concord Sunday.

Crump said he had been a butcher for seven years in his native Albany, Ga., but left there a week ago for California. He stopped in New Orleans where he said he was persuaded by the Citizens Council of Greater New Orleans to accept $5 pocket money and a one-way bus fare to Concord.

Crump said he decided to leave his Georgia home because he did not want to become "involved in integrationist things such as freedom rides and sit-ins."

Crump said he did not want to make trouble but that if he did not join the integrationist groups "they would have made trouble for me."

Kitchen Shower Honors Miss Susanne Smith

Miss Susanne Smith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Smith, and bride-elect of Mark Snellgrove of Plaquemine, Louisiana, whose marriage will be an event of August 19 at the Covenant Presbyterian Church, was honoree at a kitchen shower, Friday, July 20, in the home of Mrs. Will F. Grafton at 2210 Dogwood Drive.

Hostesses with Mrs. Grafton were Mrs Bobby Pappas, Mrs J. S Worley, Mrs. Carl Mittell, Mrs Hendrix Barnett, and Mrs Malcolm Keith.

Miss Smith wore a white denim dress accented with a corsage of red and white carnations interspersed with tiny kitchen utensils. Refreshments were served in the kitchen where the table was covered in white and centered with coral lilies held in a turquoise and brass container and flanked with turquoise tapers in brass candle holders. Another point of interest in the kitchen window was an arrangement of coral periwinkle and birds in a brass compote.

Gifts were presented to the honoree in a wheel barrow covered in aqua ruffles.

Approximately 50 guests were invited.

Wash Hands

The U S Public Health Service has issued this warning: wash your hands thoroughly with soap and water after touching garbage or poisons.

DEAR ABBY

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: My wife invited her whole family out to the house for the Fourth of July when she knew I had been having a lot of trouble with a bad back. I didn't even know anyone was coming until three carloads of them pulled into our driveway. I was in bed at the time and in such agony I could hardly stand up straight. So my wife comes in and asks me if I would mind barbecuing hotdogs for 42 people! I pulled myself out of bed and barbecued, but it almost killed me. I was so mad I didn't speak to her for a week. She still can't see where she did anything wrong. Can you explain it to her, woman to woman?

MISHUGA

DEAR MISH: Your wife was very inconsiderate to have invited guests, knowing your condition. But if you left a sick bed and in agony barbecued hotdogs for 42 people, you must have been delirious. Chew her out and get it over with.

DEAR ABBY: My boy friend is a real nut on safety belts. Since he put them in his car I can't sit close to him any more. The minute we get into his car he straps himself in and tells me to do the same. Abby, this means I am strapped in near the door — just miles from him. I don't like it. Any suggestions?

TOO SAFE

DEAR TOO: You can't be "too safe." Safety belts are for YOUR protection as well as his. Hang onto him — but not while he's driving.

DEAR ABBY: The chapter "For Husbands Only" in your book DEAR ABBY ON MARRIAGE should be printed on the front page of every newspaper in the country. I've never read anything so simple and true and beautiful in all my life. I cry every time I read it. I love you for writing it.

HELEN FROM CHANDLERS

DEAR HELEN: And thank you for your lovely letter. Send me your full name and address and I'll send you an autographed copy of my book.

CONFIDENTIAL TO SID: You have a "guilt" complex. Forget your money and perhaps everyone else will.

Unload your problem on Abby. For a personal reply, send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to ABBY, care of this paper.

Bride-Elect, Miss Webb Feted In Tallulah

Miss Julia Webb and Bill Grimes whose wedding on August 11 is of interest to a wide circle of friends were complimented with a barbecue supper Saturday evening July 21 by Mr. and Mrs. Billy Post on the lawn of their home which was illuminated with hurricane lamps.

For the occasion the bride-elect wore a pink flowered trousseau model and was presented with a corsage. The hosts' gift was a silver butter dish.

Friends who shared the party with the bride and groom-elect were Mr. and Mrs. Claude Grimes, Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Webb Jr., Robert Webb, Dr. Attie Leeves, Mr. R. [illegible] Leeves, Rev. and Mrs. O. R. Francis, Miss Ann Yerger, Miss Margaret DeMoss, Miss Sue Weems, Miss Judith Brown, Miss Carole Lesey, Allen Laird, Wynn Howard, Jerry Fairbanks, Miss Judy Holley of Bastrop, Johnny Byram.

KITCHEN SHOWER

One of the parties honoring Miss Julia Webb, the prospective bride of Bill Grimes, was the kitchen shower on Saturday morning, July 21, at the home of Mrs. D. D. Wood with Mrs. Russell Sprague and Mrs. Dave Berg of Ferriday as cohostesses. For the occasion Miss Webb wore a yellow cotton print dress with a gardenia corsage.

As guests arrived they noted in the entrance hall a caricature bride and groom fashioned from a mop and broom. Arrangements of summer flowers placed at vantage points throughout the reception rooms added to the pleasure of the guests.

Refreshments were served from a table covered with a red and white checked cloth and centered with a miniature chef. A laundry cart containing gifts for the kitchen was rolled in and presented to the bride-elect. Thirty friends were invited to the party.

Old Potatoes

Miss Sally Hinkle Is Feted At Bridal Parties

Miss Sally Hinkle, bride-elect of Frank Harmon Colvett of Memphis, Tennessee, was named honoree at a tea, Wednesday, July 25, in the Foster Wallace home on Island Drive. Hostess with Mrs. Wallace was Mrs. Crawford Yound of Campti.

The receiving line was composed of Mrs. Hinkle, mother of the bride-elect, Mrs. Wallace, Mrs. Young and the honoree.

Yellow gladiolias and roses were featured throughout the reception rooms. In the den, a table centered with an arrangement of yellow carnations in a silver footed bowl held the silver punch bowl. The tea table in the dining room graced with silver and crystal epergne filled with yellow carnations and yellow gladiolias held the silver tea service.

Assisting with the courtesies were Mrs. Burchall Liles, Mrs. Elliot Thompson, Mrs. S. W. Bonnell, Mrs. C. W. Wallace, Miss Mary Helen Young, Mrs. Harrell Webster, Mrs. Thomas Richardson of Plymouth, New Hampshire, Miss Ella Dayle of Batesville, Mississippi, Mrs. Henry Guerriero, Mrs. Jim Wallace, Mrs. Bob Tucker and Mrs. Thomas Barham.

The honoree was attired in a green and white sheer model with tiered skirt and a corsage of white orchids. Over 100 guests called between the hours of 3 and 5 o'clock.

LUNCHEON

Tuesday, July 24, Mrs. Paul Neal entertained for Miss Hinkle with a luncheon given in her home of Island Drive. Centering the dining table was a vase in the shape of a bird containing mixed summer flowers. Blue ceramic birds holding name cards marked places for Mrs. Henry Hankle, Mrs. Burchall Liles, Mrs. Elliot Thompson, Miss Hinkle, Mrs. Neal and Miss Nellie Neal.

Miss Hinkle's trousseau model for the occasion was a striped suit in blue and white with white blouse and accessories. She received a set of cooking ware from her hostess.

BOAT RIDE

Mr. and Mrs. G. T. Morgan and Mr. and Mrs. Craig Morgan honored Miss Hinkle and Mr. Colvett with a boat ride, and barbecue supper Saturday, July 21 on the Morgan's boat, "The Playhouse." The honor couple and their friends enjoyed guitar music and singing on the cruise down the Ouachita.

Buffet Supper Given For Engaged Couple

A buffet supper honoring Miss Ginny Williamson and her fiance Jim Brown and hosted by Mr. and Mrs. John Gowan and Mr. and Mrs. Frank McKay was an event of Thursday evening at the Gowan home in Delhi.

The buffet table covered with a white cloth was centered with a minature bride surrounded with fresh flowers. The honorees were presented with gifts.

In addition to the engaged couple there were present Mr. and Mrs. Cordes Williamson, Mrs. Elizabeth Westmoreland, Mr. and Mrs. Charles M. Brown, Miss Jeanette Tullos, John Davis Gowan, Roy Hammette, Jr., Miss Charlynne King and Bill King and the hosts.

Drying Racks

Garden lounge chairs with nylon strip construction make excellent "drying racks" for freshly laundered knits and other garments which are best dried flat.

After washing, rinsing, and blotting in a towel, drape a fresh towel over the chair and spread the clean garment on it. Then air can circulate freely through and around the "wash" for quick drying.

FBI Investigates GI Disappearance

Bobby Dixon Green, 25, disappeared May 23 when he drove from the base to nearby Leesville

Green was recalled to active duty last October during the Berlin buildup

Base authorities said Green left $1,000 in the post bank and did not take any clothes with him. It also learned Green apparently had been in good spirits at the time he disappeared

No trace of his automobile has been found

M. Green, the soldier's father, has personally led search parties over the big military base. Helicopters also have been thrown into the search.

TELEVISION NOTES

Clark Defended By Supporters

By RICK DU BROW

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Some weeks ago, it was suggested by this viewer that it would be difficult to find a more tasteless television show than Dick Clark's daily dance program on ABC

This, of course, was gentle understatement But since then, I have been informed that if it were not for Clark and his program, the nation might well be deluged by a wave of juvenile delinquency between the hours of 4 and 4 50 p m each day—when the show is aired

This intelligence comes from scores of Clark fans who have written in The phrasing that found its way into most of the letters was to the effect that except for Clark, hordes of teenagers might be roaming the streets, wondering what to do, fighting, stealing, doing heaven knows what, apparently oblivious to the demands of parents and other lesser figures—all between 4 and 4 50 p m

Perhaps Clark could be persuaded to extended his program to three or five or six hours a day, because obviously this would cut down proportionately on juvenile delinquency We might even have a Dick Clark network, going 24 hours a day, and thereby eliminate delinquency completely

Some of the letters were intelligent and forthright; but many indicated it might not be amiss for the writers to get out and roam the streets a little in order to become acquainted with the English language. I quote verbatim one young lady from Walnut Creek, Calif

"Don you no he (Clark) is the great teen age idle of are time" I rilly dig him and them kids what dances He has did gret things for us kids and what have you did. Notiin "

The greatest single objection came concerning the opinion that Clark "offers his viewers a steady diet of music that is primitive, anamalistic, guttural, moronic, almost always forgettable and at times bordering on the suggestive" Having restudied this, I agree it should be adjusted.

Negro Elected To Adventist Leadership

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The Seventh-day Adventist Church has a Negro vice president today, and a racial problem.

The new executive, Frank L Peterson, 69, of Washington, D.C., was elected as one of the church's four general vice presidents at Sunday's business session of the 49th world conference at Civic Auditorium.

The action came as a Negro group within the Church, the Laymen's Leadership Conference, protested racial policy at a mass meeting at the nearby Jac Tar hotel. Church leaders said Peterson's election was not as a result of the demonstration, however

The Laymen's Leadership Conference was formed last year to negotiate with the world conference for greater Negro rights within the Church. It's chairman, Frank W Hale Jr, Negro chairman of the English department at Central State College, Wilberforce, Ohio, told the mass meeting the Church had done almost nothing in the past year toward rooting out segregation and lifting racial bars in employment at Church institutions.

He declared racial plans are patently designed to reduce to the barest minimum the contact between blacks and whites

Nearly 1,000 at the mass meeting applauded Hale's plea for a solid front by the 50,000 Negro members against what he called the Church's discriminatory policies He drew more cheers when he demanded complete integration

Howard B Weeks, director of public relations for the conference, told newsmen later that action has been taken and more will be taken, but only within the framework of the Church

Mr and Mrs Burrell Scott of Oberlin, Ohio the Negro couple who touched off the segregation controversy Friday with the statement that their daughter had been barred from an Ohio Adventist academy, attended the mass meeting but did not speak

The dissident group's contentions were answered Saturday by World Adventist President Reuben R Figuir of Washington, D C

"Sometimes a small group creates a situation that is not at all representative of an organization's point of view" he said in a sermon

"This Church believes in the integration of all peoples regardless of race and this has been it's stand through the years"

Soviets Make Boast Of Having Largest Navy

By GEORGE SYVERSTEN

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union has built the world's most modern navy, its chief claims Adm. Sergei Gorshkov said the fleet's basis is atomic submarines armed with rockets and torpedoes with nuclear warheads

The Soviet naval commander made the boast Sunday in a Pravda article commemorating Navy Day Part of the celebration included a television program from the Baltic port of Leningrad showing a submarine that resembled American nuclear powered underwater craft

Many Western experts believe the Soviet navy includes subs capable of underwater firing of missiles similar to the American Polaris

"The Soviet fleet is now more modern than the navy of any capitalist country, Adm Gorshkov wrote in Pravda

"The basis of our naval fleet is atomic submarines armed with powerful rockets and homing torpedoes with nuclear warheads. They have high speed, great depth of submersion and can operate for extended periods in the most distant regions"

Soviet Vice Adm S Zahkarov said Saturday Soviet nuclear submarines are faster and more maneuverable than American subs

In another Navy Day article, Gorshkov said in an interview with Sovyetskaya Rossiya that his new submarines have journeyed under the Arctic ice cap, a feat first accomplished by the American nuclear sub Nautilus in August 1958

Trud, the labor union newspaper, carried an eyewitness account of missiles weighing "several tons" being launched from submarines during last week's Barents Sea fleet exercises

Shark Attacks Young Marine

SAVANNAH, Ga (AP) — A Marine from Parris Island, S.C., has been hospitalized after being bitten by a shark while swimming in the Atlantic Ocean near here.

Pfc. Robert Stein, 21, suffered a moderately severe wound Saturday on the left foot and a minor cut on the left hand, hospital spokesmen said

It was the second shark attack reported in the vicinity this summer

RUNOFF NECESSARY

Lee Stages Upset Against Fournet

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — City Judge James Nelson Lee of Bunkie scored a political upset by forcing a second primary contest Sept. 1 against Chief Justice John Fournet of the Louisiana Supreme Court.

In a major surprise, Fournet finished only about 2,000 votes ahead of Lee in Saturday's first Democratic primary. A third candidate, Vance Thompson of Alexandria, polled just over 6,000 votes, enough to force a runoff between the top two.

Fournet, 65-year-old veteran of Louisiana political wars back to the days when he was the late Huey P Long's right-hand-man, had been a strong favorite to win first primary renomination as associate justice from the third district

But returns from 407 of 411 precincts gave Fournet, from Jennings, 47,331 votes to 45,277 for Lee and 6,256 for Thompson

In other key judicial contests, Judges Paul Chasez, Luther Hall and Horace Reid won places on the Court of Appeals with first primary victories

Chasez and Hall, both civil district judges in New Orleans, won two places on the 4th Circuit Court, while Reid, a district judge in Amite, won a seat for the third district of the 1st Circuit.

Returns from the 4th Circuit contest for the unexpired term until December, 1964, of retired Judge George Janvier, gave Chasez 90,018 votes to 54,305 for Anna Judge Veters Levy, judge of Orleans Parish juvenile court. The returns included 512 of 538 precincts in the seven-parish area.

In the primary for a newly-created judgeship, running until December, 1970, Judge Hall defeated three opponents. He has been serving on the court, by appointment of the State Supreme Court.

Returns from 513 of 538 precincts gave Hall 54,912 votes, George W. Gill Jr., 26,437, Cyril J. Gracianette 18,365 and Arthur V. Flotte 6,815.

Witching Hour Near In Arkansas

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — The witching hour rapidly began approaching today for the six Arkansas Democratic gubernatorial hopefuls, with Tuesday's primary only hours away.

Most were inactive Sunday, except for Rep. Dale Alford, who held an open house in Little Rock.

For the main, Sunday was spent recharging batteries for the last, long pull—today's campaign grind.

All but two—Vernon Whitten of Mount Holly and David Cox of Weiner—have television appearances set for the election eve.

Today, former Gov. Sid McMath and Alford visited shopping centers, and factories in the Little Rock area while Kenneth Coffelt was in Sheridan, Arkadelphia, Malvern and Benton.

Whitten made stops in Columbia and Union counties for handshaking and last minute urgings.

The incumbent Gov. Orval E. Faubus wound up his stumping tour Saturday night in Jonesboro —after 30 days and 8,000 miles of travel.

The governor plans to spend two hours on television tonight, with his hopes for an unprecedented fifth term riding on Tuesday's primary.

During the many weeks of the hectic campaign, Arkansas voters have heard' charges and counter charges and have seen much duplication of ideas.

One type of program which has appealed to Faubus, McMath and Whiten is the audience-participation television show.

Each of the three held one—with viewers telephoning questions to the candidates.

Sheriff Runoff In St. Bernard Set

CHALMETTE, La. (AP) — St. Bernard Parish voters will pick their new sheriff Sept. 1 between Valentine Riess and John F. (Jack) Rowley.

Riess, president of the parish police jury, and Rowley, son of the late sheriff C. P. (Dutch) Rowley, paced a four-man field in Saturday's first Democratic primary.

Riess was backed by the organization of the late sheriff Dr. Nicholas P. Trist, who died last month.

Complete returns gave Riess 5,109, Rowley 4,780, parish clerk of court Sidney Torres 2,356 and businessman Angelo Chimento 52.

Some 92 per cent of the registered voters cast ballots.

Mrs. Kathryn Virginia Stephenson Hollingsworth sold to James A. Noe all her interest in the property just above for $562.50.

Ike Apologizes For Remarks About Sweden

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP) — Ex-President Dwight D. Eisenhower apologized to the Swedes for saying two years ago that socialism in Sweden had resulted in a soaring suicide rate, an increase in drunkenness and a lack of ambition.

Eisenhower told a welcoming crowd of 2,000 at the Stockholm railway station he was wrong—"I admit it, and I apologize for my error."

The crowd cheered.

Eisenhower said his remark, made in Chicago to a Republican breakfast, had been based on what he had read in an American magazine.

"Since then," he said, "I have had many friends who have returned from Sweden and who have told me that I was wrong."

Adventists Here Protest Sunday Closing Laws

At a special session of its board, the Monroe Seventh-Day Adventist Church adopted a formal protest against Sunday legislation.

The group listed 20 opinions as to why it considered such a law as "neither beneficial nor acceptable."

Among the opinions were those indicating that true keeping of the Sabbath Day cannot be legislated; that the appointing of one religious holiday as a matter of law is tantamount to the establishing of a religion; that Sunday-closing laws in some cases have reached the point where they impose upon certain merchandisers the will of their competitors.

The board's decision also pointed to the businesses and industries which must continue round the clock, every day of the week — as steel mills, paper mills, etc. If work weeks can be limited in these through labor laws, they can also be limited in stores and other businesses for the benefit of the employes, the board's opinion stated.

Pastor J. S. Jameson commented at the close of the board meeting:

"America has grown great through the individuality of its citizens. It seems out of keeping that this private enterprise should be curtailed or discouraged by government action in the name of security or social legislation."

100 Doctors May Not Return

SASKATOON, Sask. (AP)—Many of the doctors who took part in this month's suspension of practice are lost to Saskatchewan Province.

These are doctors who decided to quit the province rather than work under a compulsory medical care plan. At this stage, nobody knows exactly how many will never come back, but estimates run to around 100.

The small city of North Battleford, for example, had 21 doctors before the boycott. Four left for good and three more are winding up their affairs.

In general, however, the family doctor is back in business in this province of 925,000 people.

For three weeks most of the 625 private practitioners boycotted the medical care plan. They closed their offices July 1, calling the plan a threat to their freedom.

Last Monday the doctors signed an agreement with the government ending the boycott.

The agreement provides for a special session of the legislature to amend the medical act to allow doctors to practice outside it.

The new legislation will also allow private nonprofit medical insurance agencies to remain.

The original law made the province's Medical Care Insurance Commission the sole insuring agency.

Asthma Formula Prescribed Most By Doctors—Available Now Without Prescription

Stops Attacks in Minutes . . . Relief Lasts for Hours!

New York, N. Y. (Special)—The asthma formula prescribed more than any other by doctors for their private patients is now available to asthma sufferers without prescription.

Medical tests proved this formula stops asthma attacks in minutes and gives hours of freedom from recurrence of painful asthma spasms.

This formula is so effective that it is the physician's leading asthma prescription—so safe when used as directed that now it can be sold—without prescription in most states—in tiny tablets called Primatene®. These Primatene Tablets open bronchial tubes, loosen congestion, relieve taut nervous tension. All without painful injections.

The secret is—Primatene combines 3 medicines (in full prescription strength) found most effective in combination for asthma distress. Each performs a special purpose.

So look forward to sleep at night, and freedom from asthma spasms. Primatene—98¢, at any drugstore.

AFTER SHELTERS BEATEN

Civil Defense Men Flood Washington

WASHINGTON (AP) — Apprehensive state and local Civil Defense officials are flooding the federal headquarters here with questions about the program's future, in light of a House committee's turndown of the fallout shelter plan.

The Appropriations Committee turned in an adverse report last week on President Kennedy's request for a $568-million funding of the shelter program in this fiscal year. Instead, it approved only $10 million to continue civil defense research studies.

Assistant Secretary of Defense Steuart L. Pittman, in charge of civil defense, said Monday that if Congress goes through with the committee's recommendation, local and private initiative for building fallout shelters would be undermined. He added, in talking to a newsman, that "If the impression is created that the federal government is going to falter, then there can be a very serious negative reaction."

However, Pittman made plain that he does not believe the program to provide federal incentive, including matching funds, for building community shelters to protect as many as 60 million persons from fallout, is dead.

Several possibilities exist, including:

1. The Senate may ease the drastic cut in funds and prevail in Senate-House conference.

2. Even if Congress now supports the cut, it might approve some form of supplemental appropriation when it returns in January.

3. There is enough available from money already apropriated under the fiscal 1962 budget to carry on activities into the beginning of next year.

4. "There is no question in my mind that the President and executive department is going to keep at this."

Pittman said, however, that he did not know whether President Kennedy would attempt personally, through a statement or message, to intercede in current congressional consideration.

He said that inquiries began arriving from state and local officials within a few hours of the announcement Friday of the House committee's action.

In a formal statement, Pittman said, "I cannot believe that Congress intends to throw away the opportunity to provide protection for tens of millions of Americans at a cost of four dollars per person—or to pull back after state governments and many local governments have taken on the burdens of carrying out their part of the program."

Pittman told a newsman that a number of states and localities already have appropriated money with which to match the federal up under the incentive portion of funds they expected would be put the federal program.

Miller Says Cut, Spending Dangerous

WASHINGTON (AP) — Republican National Chairman William E. Miller said Sunday it would be very dangerous to cut taxes at this time unless President Kennedy backs down on requests for programs involving spending.

Miller said an immediate tax cut, now under consideration in administration quarters, would have to be accompanied by a heavy reduction in federal spending lest it lead to a devaluation of the dollar.

Speaking on a recorded ABC television-radio program — "Issues and Answers" — Miller said he wouldn't hesitate to vote for a tax reduction now if the President would announce he no longer wants federal aid to education, his farm program, urban affairs department and a public works pump-priming bill.

Miller said he doesn't accept President Kennedy's assertion that the voters in November will decide whether to sail on with the Democrats or anchor down with the Republicans.

It's the Democrats who are negative, not the Republicans, Miller argued. He said the Democrats have big majorities in Senate and House and with the power of the White House "they can't pass anything."

This should hurt the Democrats in the November election, Miller said, claiming the party in power has nothing but a series of unfulfilled promises upon which to base its campaign.

Voice Of Broadway

By DOROTHY KILGALLEN

Now that Janet Leigh has tearfully filed her divorce action again Tony Curtis, it's appropriate to put her down as the victim of bad public relations advice. Everyone close to the scene knew that she and Tony were having major problems quite some while ago, but a check with her press representative would always elicit a "Heavens, no! They're ecstatically happy. Whoever gave you that Bad One?" Then Janet takes the witness stand and tells the judge that for a long time Tony has been critical of her selection of dresses (translation: he fell for somebody else) and eventually he got around to telling her he didn't want to be married. Any star, or any star's press agent can say "No comment" to reporters, or, for that matter, to lie. But it is a little silly because the truth usually comes out eventually and it just means the journalists aren't going to believe anything that performer says in the future, and certainly isn't going to bother to "check" with her adviser.

Eddie Fisher has the same trouble. Whether through poor advice or his own ego, he's been lying to newspapermen for years. He lied when they asked him if he was going to unload Debbie Reynolds and marry Elizabeth Taylor, then he promptly unloaded Debbie and married Elizabeth. More recently, when Elizabeth's mad passion for Richard Burton was the talk of Rome, Eddie came to New York and denied that there was anything wrong with his marriage to Liz; he was just here on business. (This at a time when she wouldn't even talk to him on the telephone.) Then he goes to the West Coast, where presumably the climate is better for telling the truth, and announced that he is going to file for divorce in Nevada.

Benny Goodman has been quoted as saying the band he took to Russia is the best he's ever had, but make a small bet that all those same musicians won't be playing in the crew that starts touring the United States soon. There'll be some changes made. . . . Mickey Rooney, writing his autobiography for 1963 publication, is being swamped with offers for the magazine and newspaper serialization rights. . . . Comedienne Pat Bright is recuperating in Mt. Sinai Hospital after major surgery. . . . Anne Bancroft has won all kinds of raves for her performance in "The Miracle Worker," but she still keeps working on her art. She attends Actors Studio classes faithfully, and takes singing and dancing lessons three times a week, in case a Broadway musical might tempt her.

One of the most ambitious features scheduled for the World's Fair has yet to be announced. It's known as "Project '64" . . . Beatrice Lillie is a wonder. There she sat, enthralling a group at the Stork Club the other night, looking exactly the same as she looked in the same room more than 20 years ago . . .

Commentary on the movie-going public: An inexpensive film called "Bayou" was released with little fanfare and didn't do very well at the box office. But one of the producers thought of changing the title — and as "Poor White Trash" it's packing 'em in.

Sue Ann Laugdon, a statuseque beauty, is being talked of as Jackie Gleason's new video foil. . . . An old flick of John Wayne's, re-issued as "New Frontier," is such an antique that the female lead was played by Phyllis Isley, who later became known as Jennifer Jones. . . . The publishers of "The Psychiatric Coloring Book," which spoofs the head doctors, claim it's been banned in Vienna. But it will be available in New York in a few days. . . . Robert Mitchum's handsome son, Jim, has been making many transcontinental telephone calls to Mary Ann Mobley, the former Miss America — who'll probably be a successful actress before long. She's a darling, and has eyes for the stage.

The battle for top billing in "The Interns" has been won by Cliff Roberston, now regarded as a hot property. Next in line will be Michael Callan, whose emoting prompted the studio to give him a nice little present — a new sports car. . . . Who minds the war? Almost the entire standing army of Morocco is being used in the battle scenes for "Lawrence of Arabia." . . . Seven Arts wants Natalie Wood and Warren Beatty for "Sunday in New York" . . . Chubby Checker and Fats Domino will have to move over. The newest singer to enter the parlor games name derby is Charlie Chess, who used to be a Western Union messenger in Philadelphia.

The Colonie champagne night-spot on W. 46th is a "dropping in place" for the jazz set, and the other night singer Sallie Blair gave them a treat. She dropped in and introduced a 95-minute jazz symphony which she expects to perform at Carnegie Hall next Winter.

Young Singer Named Sinatra Makes Debut

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) — The frail, young singer belted out a familiar Cole Porter tune as if the song had just been written for him.

He caressed the lyrics and swung with the beat.

The sound was so familiar—and the setting, too—that it could have been 1939. Even the bobby soxers stopped twisting to gather around the bandstand as they used to do.

But it wasn't 1939. It was Saturday night, July 28, 1962, at Disneyland.

The singer—Frank Sinatra Jr., age 18.

Young Sinatra, not officially embarked yet on a professional career, approached the Elliot Brothers band in the Disneyland plaza and asked for a chance to sing.

"The kid's good," said Bill Elliott. "I let him sing for a guest appearance because his name is Sinatra. But I'd sign him permanently even if his name were Joe Smith."

Frank Jr., may talk it over with Frank Sr.

ELECTION ANNULLING

Peru's Coup Puts U.S. In Latin Jam

By WILLIAM L. RYAN

Associated Press News Analyst

Peru's coup d'etat seems to be getting Washington into an uncomfortable Latin jam. If so, this may demonstrate the perils of shooting from the hip

There is a substantial argument that the generals did a foolhardy thing in annulling national elections because they couldn't stand the sight of the leading candidate

There's far less agreement on whether Washington should have moved into the situation so speedily to rebuke and punish the generals.

The United States has been nagged for years by friends and enemies about recognizing and dealing with dictators and military governments

The so-called "Democratic left," represented by men like Venezuela's President Romulo Betancourt and Puerto Rico's Luis Munoz Marin, has urged Washington to take the lead in ostracizing dictatorial regimes.

But the United States is doing business with and helping regimes like those of Paraguay under dictator-General Stroessner, the Haitian dictatorship, the Spanish and Portuguese regimes. It continues to deal with Argentina, whose military last year changed the constitution to suit its own taste.

Exercising much patience, the United States took two years to determine that Fidel Castro was a dictator and to break with Cuba

In Peru's case the United States took only hours to suspend relations and cut off Alliance for Progress aid. Apart from whether that was the advisable moment for this dramatic display there are other questions

Does the United States expect Latin-American nations, with their seas of illiteracy and poverty, to remake themselves overnight in the image of northern democracy without the basic structure to make the metamorphosis feasible?

Peru's military says it will hold new elections next year. Maybe it has that much time, maybe more. But the constitutional election remains curcumvented. The notion remains that if the generals don't like election results, they can cancel them. Will the next regime, elected by sufferance of the military, be any more legal than the present one?

Cut off from the United States what happens to Peru, the third largest nation in South America? Can it be left to drift alone, with its problems, until internal pressures build up an explosion?

If that seems too dangerous, the United States may have to reverse itself. In turn, that could look like an invitation to generals elsewhere to go ahead and knock over elected governments, secure in the knowledge that Washington doesn't dare abandon any Latin nation for too long.

That would raise threats in nations like El Salvador, or like Venezuela, where President Betancourt has hopes of being the first elected president in a century to complete his term

On the other side of the fence, the extreme left could be expected to shout happy "I-told-you-so's."

Thus the United States seems in an unenviable position regarding Peru. Damned if it does, damned if it doesn't.

5 Elderly Women Die In Car Crash

HIGHLAND, N.Y. (AP) — Five elderly women — three of them sisters — were driving home to Poughkeepsie after a pleasant Sunday dinner in nearby Kingston.

The family of Alphonse Tuozzo was on its way home to New Paltz after a day of pleasure driving.

The two cars met head on late Sunday in the quiet upstate town of Lloyd.

The five elderly women were killed and Tuozzo, 66, fatally injured.

Killed instantly were Elizabeth J. O'Shea, 68, identified by police as the driver of one of the cars, and all of the car's passengers: Mary O'Shea, 65, Lucy Daughton, 73; Kathryn Schlosser, 72, and Julia Schlimmer, about 65.

The O'Shea women and Mrs. Daughton, a widow were sisters.

Tuozzo died in a Poughkeepsie hospital a few hours after the accident. His wife, Grace, 64, who police said was driving the family car, was in critical condition in the hospital. Their daughter, Patricia, 28, was listed in serious condition

Peace In Congo Dependent On Tshombe Reaction

LEOPOLDVILLE, Congo (AP) — International Efforts for peaceful unification of the Congo appeared to hinge today on Katanga President Moise Tshombe's reaction to proposals for a new constitution, unveiled Sunday by federal Premier Cyrille Adoula

The constitution would grant local autonomy to the provinces, a concession to Tshombe's demand for a looser central government.

Adoula said each province would control local administrations, make its own economic arrangements and be responsible for maintaining law and order within its boundaries

Such matters as foreign affairs, customs, foreign trade and defense would rest with the central government

There was no immediate reaction from Elizabethville, the Katanga capital, to Adoula's proposals

Adoula called on U.N. jurists to draw up a final document for presentation to Congo's Parliament in September

Investigations continued into the forced landing of a Rhodesian chartered plane at Manono in northern Katanga Saturday

The aircraft, owned by the Rhodesian Air Services, reported it had been shot at and forced to land at a U.N. airstrip

U.N. officials were skeptical of reports the plane had been shot at. They expressed belief it had had engine trouble

Workers Will Return Today At Celotex Firm

MARRERO, La. (AP) — The Celotex Corporation, scene of a three-month-old strike, will see workers return today after union members accepted a new contract.

Members of local 4-179 of the Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers voted Sunday to accept a wage increase of six cents an hour. Another six cent raise is effective next March. The new contract also provides for improvements in insurance benefits and shift differentials.

Officials of the firm, which manufactures insulating fiberboard, and union negotiators reached an agreement Saturday.

The new contract is good for two years and is retroative to March 8, the date the old contract expired.

Wreck Kill 3 National Guard Men From State

The victims were identified as Sgt. William Davidson, Jr., 29, of Houma; Sgt. Ronald P. Boudreaux, 25, of New Iberia and Pfc. Wayne Baras, 22, of Kaplan.

All were members of the 1st Battle Group, 156th Infantry, 39th Division, home based at Jeanerette.

Another soldier, Sp4 Henry B. Toups, Jr., 25, of Houma, was hospitalized when the jeep in which the soldiers were riding was struck by a car driven by Joseph A. Sandos of Erath.

Sandos was hospitalized with two fractured ribs and scalp lacerations.

Officers said the jeep was one in a convoy leaving the Abbeville Armory for Ft. Polk when the accident occurred.
